ALDERMEN WANT SALOONS, DIFFER ON OTHER LIQUOR HOME RULE IDEAS

Canvass Shows General Agreement Among Them That Public Hearings Should Be Held to Determine St. Louis Policy.

MEMBERS OF BOARD STATE THEIR VIEWS

Golden for Sale by Drink Regardless of Democratic Platform Pledge—Comptroller Nolte Favors $1500 Bar License Fee.

Members of the Board of Aldermen, who will have to establish regulations if the new State liquor law grants St. Louis home rule, were today agreed that they want the saloon. They differed on the question of the license fee, and they were in some doubt about Sunday closing.

If the present House bill, permitting St. Louis to have saloons under local regulation, becomes law, public hearings will at once be called by the Aldermen. All who were questioned by a Post-Dispatch reporter seemed agreed on the idea of hearings, mainly to discuss Sunday closing and high or low license fees.

The House of Delegates, predecessor body of the Board of Aldermen, had at times as many as 10 saloonkeepers in its membership of 28. None of the Aldermen seen today seemed to fear the word "saloon" or the thing itself.

Emmett Golden's Views.

Emmett Golden of the Twenty-seventh Ward, vice-president of the board, mentioned the fact that the Democratic platforms opposed return of the saloon. "We may not be conforming to the platforms," he said, "but this matter of handling liquor in a large city is a very practical one, and the only way I see is sale by the drink.

"The working man can't buy a bottle or a case whenever he happens to want a drink," Golden said, "and he shouldn't have to buy a meal just because he is thirsty. There should be a place where he can get a drink, whether it is called saloon, tavern or something else. There should be an Excise Commissioner, appointed by the Mayor, to enforce regulations strictly.

"The license fee shouldn't be so high as to make it impossible for people to get into the business. As to Sunday closing, I don't see why a well-regulated saloon should be closed any day."

Pahl Remembers "Lid Clubs."

Alderman Pahl of the Twenty-fourth Ward remembered that before prohibition, when the Sunday closing law was enforced, "lid clubs" sold liquor on Sunday. "To avoid lid clubs," he said, "we might let the saloons open at noon Sunday. The license should not be too high; State, Federal and city license together should not be much more than $800 a year."

Alderman O'Toole, Thirteenth Ward, said the saloon was necessary, if bootlegging was to be stopped. "There are taverns running all over town, cheating by selling liquor," he said, "and if the law doesn't permit saloons to open, these taverns will keep on cheating. I think the saloons should close Sunday mornings."

Alderman Lietchen, Third Ward, is for a low saloon license fee—not more than $300 for the city, and for all-day Sunday closing. He, too, thought the bootlegger would be removed by the saloon, and would continue without it.

For $600 City Saloon License.

Alderman Scott, Twenty-first Ward, suggested a $600 city saloon license fee, and thought the Sunday closing question was a good subject for discussion at public hearings.

Alderman Genteman, First Ward, also wished to hear from the public on the Sunday question. As to license fee, he advocated the pre-prohibition figure of $1000 for city-state license, the city getting two-thirds of the fee and the state one-third.

Alderman Collins, Nineteenth Ward, floor leader, was for leaving the open questions to public hearings. Alderman Terry, Twenty-fifth Ward, was not ready to express his views. Some other members expressed doubt whether the Legislature would pass, or the Governor would sign, the House bill granting St. Louis liquor home rule.

Comptroller Nolte's Suggestion.

Comptroller Nolte said that, if the Aldermen asked his views about

SURPRISE WEDDING

MR. and MRS. JAMES A. REED

EX-SENATOR REED WEDS MRS. NELL Q. DONNELLY

They Leave Kansas City on Chicago Train for Short Honeymoon Trip.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 14.—Married in a surprise ceremony last night, former United States Senator James A. Reed and his bride, who was Mrs. Nell Q. Donnelly, wealthy manufacturer of aprons and women's house dresses, boarded a train for Chicago and today were honeymooning somewhere in seclusion.

They made no announcement of their destination or plans other than to say they would hold open house at his home here on New Year's day. Reed is 72 years old, his bride 43.

Twenty guests assembled at Mrs. Donnelly's apartment for a dinner of duck and venison. After the dinner, without any preliminary announcement, Federal Judge John C. Pollock asked the guests to stand and then entered into a discussion of marriage. The Judge was well along in the ceremony before the guests realized they were attending a wedding.

The marriage was the second for both. The first Mrs. Reed, the former Laura Olmstead, Cedar Rapids, Ia., died Oct. 12, 1932. Divorce last year terminated Mrs. Donnelly's marriage to Paul Donnelly. She has been active in Democratic politics in Missouri and has attended several national conventions. For many years she was a friend and political supporter of Reed.

When she was kidnaped and held for ransom two years ago Reed declared publicly: "If a single hair of Mrs. Donnelly's head is harmed, I'll devote the rest of my life to tracking down her kidnapers and sending them to the gallows." She was released after 34 hours, unharmed and without payment of ransom. Her kidnapers are in prison.

Mrs. Reed's former husband, Donnelly, some time after the divorce, married Virginia George, 22, an actress.

ROOSEVELT CALLS RECOVERY PROGRAM 'ESTABLISHED FACT'

"It Has Worked, Is Working and Is Going to Work," President Says.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—President Roosevelt, in a telegram read last night at a testimonial dinner to Grover A. Whalen, NRA Administrator for New York, said: "The Recovery program is an established fact. It has worked, is working and is going to work."

Roosevelt paid tribute to Whalen, saying: "We in Washington are not unmindful or ungrateful to him or those who have been associated with him in promoting this greatest of peacetime opportunities, the restoration of national recovery."

AVIATRIX SOUGHT IN THE KILLING OF PASADENA DENTIST

Police Hope Woman, Frequent Companion of Murder Victim, Will Be Able to Furnish Clew.

BODY IS FOUND ON THE STREET

Wallet and Watch Missing but Officers Do Not Think That Robbery Was the Motive.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 14.—Police are searching for a red-haired woman following the murder of Dr. Leonard Siever, 45 years old, "esthetic dentist," whose body was found near two stone sphinxes of the Scottish Rite Cathedral here early yesterday.

Police said jealousy possibly might have been the motive for the killing, as a friend reported Dr. Siever had "lost all faith in women" because a woman to whom he was devoted had proved untrue.

Officers said the red-haired woman was an aviatrix known in social circles for her elaborate parties and had been Dr. Siever's companion on many occasions. They hoped she might be able to give some clew to the death of Dr. Siever, who enjoyed a professional and social reputation along Pasadena's "millionaire row."

Dr. Siever's professional cards carried the phrase "esthetics in dentistry," and he played soft music on a phonograph while he worked on his socially prominent patients.

Watch and Wallet Missing.

Harold Fox, a milkman, found the dentist's body by his parked automobile. Siever had been shot twice, once through the base of the skull and again through the heart. Dr. Siever's pockets had been rifled and his watch and wallet were missing, but authorities said they thought this had been done in an attempt to disguise the motive.

A note and letter were found in his clothing. The note read: "11:30, Tuesday. Rockwell."

The letter was from Dr. Leon G. Lyons, Hollywood dentist, who told investigators it concerned French lessons Siever had been taking from him in exchange for dental work. It referred to a $2 debt.

The "Rockwell" referred to in the note was Miss Mary Rockwell of Hollywood, Detective - Lieutenant Robert Sears learned. She was a patient of Dr. Siever and the "11:30" referred to the time of her appointment with the dentist.

He Had an Engagement.

The time of the killing was set by authorities as between 6:30 and 7:15 p. m. Tuesday. Dr. Siever left his office about that time, police learned, and was to have called for Mrs. Frances Coen Cooke, socially prominent divorcee, to escort her to the home of Mrs. Edna Herbst, also socially prominent.

"Leonard called me Tuesday afternoon and asked me to go with Mrs. Cooke and himself to play squash," Mrs. Herbst told authorities.

Mrs. Cooke said she "waited and waited for Leonard and when he didn't come I became angry and then worried."

"Finally I telephoned Mrs. Herbst and then I went to her home in a taxicab," she continued. "We agreed that something serious must have happened and both of us worried."

Described as "Trusted Pal."

Mrs. W. Paul Loveland told police Dr. Siever had been a "trusted pal" of hers and directed that his affairs be turned over to Wheelock Pooler, whom she described as "Siever's friend."

Dr. Francis P. Weston, former Pasadena police surgeon with whom Siever, a bachelor, made his home, said Siever was known among his intimates as a mystic and a student with a strong desire for knowledge. He played the violin and was a student in a music course.

Siever was born in Siban, Russia. His parents brought him to America when he was a child and he was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1916. He was naturalized the same year. He was a founder of the Artist-Student League, a benefit foundation for music students, to which he contributed several scholarships.

Dr. Siever's only known relative is Mrs. Rose Dinkawitz of Norwalk, Conn., and police said they were in communication with her.

LINDBERGHS LAND IN PUERTO RICO FROM TRINIDAD

Reach San Juan After 750-Mile Flight—They Plan to Continue to Miami, Fla., Tomorrow.

THEY ARE GUESTS OF GOVERNOR

Pass Over Virgin Islands, Their First Contact With U. S. Possession Since Start of Trip.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Dec. 14.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here this afternoon, after a flight of 750 miles from Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The Lindberghs, who arrived here at 12:35 p. m. (St. Louis time), had covered the distance in 5 hours, 40 minutes. They took off from Port-of-Spain at 6:55 a. m.

Now only 1180 miles lies between them and Miami, the northern terminus of the Pan American Airways route which they followed today from Trinidad. They plan to take off for Miami at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

In San Juan, the American couple were to be the guests of Acting Gov. Benjamin J. Horton and Mrs. Horton.

Col. Lindbergh flew a course taking him over the islands of the Lesser Antilles as far as Saba Island, where he struck off to the west and made a bee-line for the Puerto Rican capital.

His first contact with American territory since he left New York this summer on an aerial exploration tour which has embraced four continents, came when he flew over the Island of St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, an American possession. A short time later he circled the harbor of St. Thomas, capital of the Virgin Islands.

REJECTS BANKER MITCHELL'S OFFER TO COMPROMISE TAX

Morgenthau Says Treasury Will Proceed Legally to Collect on Income.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Acting Secretary Morgenthau said today he had declined a compromise in the income tax case against Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank in New York, and "will proceed with the ordinary legal processes and collect the tax."

Morgenthau volunteered only the following brief announcement: "I have decided it is in the public interest to proceed with the ordinary legal processes and collect the tax."

Mitchell was acquitted in criminal proceedings regarding his income tax returns but the Government has pending a civil case to collect taxes it alleges are due. Morgenthau said the Treasury had been asked to settle the case but had declined.

SENECA TAYLOR TELLS WRESTLERS: 'BE AGGRESSIVE'

State Athletic Commissioner Got Rid of Referee Sharpe Because of 'Pink Tea Ideas', He Declares.

CASE IS GIVEN TO THE JURY

Twelve Men, None of Whom Ever Saw a Bout to Decide Sharpe's $25,000 Action Against Packs

Trial of the $25,000 damage suit of Harry S. Sharpe, veteran referee, against Tom Packs, local wrestling promoter, was concluded this afternoon and the case given to a jury in Circuit Judge Kirkwood's court.

Members of the jury, none of whom had ever seen a wrestling bout, had been treated during the four days of the trial to colorful descriptions of modern wrestling tactics, and had heard Sharpe's story of being beaten by fans who, he alleged, had been whipped into a frenzy by the violence of the wrestlers on the night of the Londos-Grobmeier match at the Coliseum in February, 1930.

Taylor Favors "Aggressiveness."

Credit for the new style of wrestling was assumed yesterday by State Athletic Commissioner Seneca C. Taylor, a defense witness. "Rough House" Nelson, a grappler who boasted of his prowess an "an expert hair puller and eye gouger," had explained it as something adopted by the "bad boys" of the mat for their financial gain, and Sharpe had spoken of it as "supershowmanship," but Taylor had another word for it—"aggressiveness."

The commissioner was asked by Robert Kratky, of counsel for Sharpe, if there had not been some development in the "intensity" of wrestling since he took office in 1929 by appointment of the Governor. "Yes," was the answer. "There is more energy and less sleeping."

"Aggressive" Is the Word.

"The wrestlers have instructions from you to make it exciting?" "Aggressive is the word I use," Taylor replied. "Aggressive. I tell them: 'Get in there and be aggressive. Let's have some action.'"

"And under your instructions the wrestlers butt each other, pull hair, gouge eyes and pitch their opponents out of the ring?" "I ask them not to do those very things," Taylor answered. "I tell them to move around and not sit there hugging and kissing one another. The old style of wrestling was very much like that. One wrestler would grab a leg for 15 minutes or so, and then he'd grab the other one for half an hour, and after a while the crowd would go home. Now it's hard to get them to go home."

Hard to Call Fouls.

Taylor agreed the new school of wrestling tended to produce fouls, but unless the aggrieved wrestler claimed a foul, he said, it was hard for the referee to call one. Some of the "bad boys," he admitted, were pretty rough. Zaharias, he said, was the "king of them all," but Daviscourt was just about as bad. "I talk to him about it before a match and after it, and then talk some more," Taylor said, "but it doesn't do much good."

"The 'bad boys' are big attractions?" Kratky asked. "The worse they are, the better the attraction," the Commissioner agreed.

The questioning turned then to Commissioner Taylor's relations with Sharpe, who has not been active as a referee since the Londos-Grobmeier bout. Taylor said he would be glad to have Sharpe as a boxing referee, "if he would work in harmony with the Commissioner," that he had never heard his integrity questioned, but that they disagreed about how wrestling should be conducted.

Against "Pink Tea Wrestling."

"Sharpe wants one kind of wrestling and I want another," Taylor said. "He wants the 'pink tea' type, that's what I call it. Sharpe would raise hell with the wrestlers and tell them they shouldn't wrestle like I told them. He'd fire 'em and I'd reinstate 'em. Finally I had to get rid of him and we have a type of wrestling in St. Louis unlike what they have anywhere else."

They made a strange contrast as they eyed each other across the courtroom—Sharpe, the grizzled veteran whose broken nose and rugged visage attest a long career in the ring, including a record 77-round bout in 1893 in which he knocked his opponent senseless—and Taylor, the white-haired, pink-faced Commissioner, whose brow wrinkled as he peered over shell-

WHOLESALE BUTTER 16 CENTS, 35-YEAR LOW FOR DECEMBER

Decline at Chicago Caused by Report Government Is to Stop Buying.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—A sharp drop of 3 cents a pound in wholesale butter prices today carried the market to a 35-year low level for December.

Chicago butter, 92 score or extras as it is called in the trade, dropped to 16 cents a pound from yesterday's price of 19 cents with cheaper grades off almost as much. The abrupt decline was caused by a wide-spread report that the Dairy Marketing Corporation, a Government subsidized agency, will cease buying butter at the end of this week. This organization had been buying butter for relief purposes and is said to have taken 45,000,000 pounds.

83 MEN TAKEN 90 MILES TO JAIL BY AIRPLANES

Arrested in Quebec Following Strike Clash; Trial Set for Dec. 21.

VILLE MARIE, Que., Dec. 14.—Eighty-three men, most of them striking lumberjacks, were moved 90 miles from Rouyn, Que., to Ville Marie's new jail by four airplanes making hourly trips in a light snowstorm yesterday.

They were arrested Monday after a clash between strikers and police and will be tried Dec. 21. Jail facilities at Rouyn were inadequate so four General Airways pilots were sworn in as special constables and each was accompanied on the flights by an officer. Five men were taken by each plane on a single trip.

NINE CHILDREN KILLED AS TRAIN HITS SCHOOL BUS

30 Are Injured in Accident Near Crescent City, Fla., —Three of Dead in One Family.

By the Associated Press.

CRESCENT CITY, Fla., Dec. 14.—Nine school children were killed and about 30 injured, some gravely, when an Atlantic Coast Line freight train struck a packed school bus five miles south of here today in a heavy fog.

Seven children, three of them from a single family, were killed outright, and two others died later. while several others are not expected to survive.

The crash came when D. R. Niles, elderly bus driver, had reached the end of his five-mile rural route and was about to return here with the children, all students at the elementary school. Niles was injured, but physicians said he would recover.

The paved highway parallels the railroad track for some distance at the scene and the occupants of many automobiles gathered to give aid to the injured. Parents of the children, mostly farmers in this citrus and trucking section, went to the scene searching for their loved ones.

The dead: Elsie Gorton, 15 years old; Eddie McGrady, 10; Hilda Hardy; Evelyn, 9, William, 12, and Frederick, all children of Mrs. Bennie Smith, a widow; Troy Tipton; Willard Owen; Hazel McGrady, 13.

R. A. Howell, engineer, said the train was proceeding north and the bus south. The highway parallels the railroad for a considerable distance and Howell said the bus driver made a left turn directly in front of the train at the crossing. Howell said the accident occurred at 7:45 o'clock in a heavy fog. He said, however, that the highway was only about 75 feet from the railroad track and the visibility for that distance and further was good.

Howell said he did not see the truck until he was within 10 feet of the crossing. He applied his brakes but was going about 35 miles an hour and the brakes hardly had time to take hold before the impact.

WOMAN JUMPS FROM LINER AT SEA; BODY RECOVERED

Suicide Near Azores Disclosed on Arrival of the Conte di Savoia in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The suicide of Josephine Mraz, who jumped from the liner Conte de Savoia last Sunday, was disclosed when the liner docked today.

Captain Antonio Lena said the ship was half a mile off the Azores, when two deck stewards saw the woman climb on a chair, wave farewell and jump from the rail before she could be stopped. A lifeboat was launched and the ship circled about for more than an hour before she was found. Taken abroad, a fruitless attempt was made to revive her.

The woman was 35 years old, lived in Hungary and was en route here with her aunt to visit her sister, Maria, in the Bronx.

PARK RELIEF PROGRAM VIRTUALLY DEFEATED

Senator Casey Blocks Sales Tax to Provide Funds; Still Chance for Other Revenue but Below Estimated Need.

MOTOR OIL LEVY BEING CONSIDERED

Also a Charge on Tobacco, in Addition to That on Liquor — Personal Antagonisms Upset Executive's Plans.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 14.—Gov. Park stood virtually defeated today in his legislative program for unemployment relief. Senator Casey of Kansas City, the controlling power in the Senate, has definitely blocked the 1 per cent sales tax bill, on which the Governor depended to provide the necessary funds for relief, and the opinion of both friends and foes of the Governor is that other means will be found to obtain money through new taxes, but the Governor's plan seems to have been definitely set aside.

Following a session of the Ways and Means Committee late yesterday, at which consideration of the sales tax was postponed for a week, with the expected adjournment of the Legislature only 10 days away, Senate leaders began groping about for other means of obtaining revenue. Serious thought was being given to reviving the tobacco tax, and Senator Donnelly, majority floor leader, began working toward the preparation of a bill to tax motor oil 1 cent per gallon.

Retailers to Get Figures.

The Governor had been confident his sales tax bill would be reported from the committee yesterday, his view being shared by Senator Wisdom, chairman of the committee, but immediately after the committee went into session it was apparent that Senator Casey was determined to block a favorable report and even to block a vote in the committee on the bill.

He raised a question as to the accuracy of statistics presented by the State Tax Commission covering the experience of other states with the tax, and insisted the commission should submit its figures to the Missouri Retailers' Association, organized to oppose the passage of a sales tax bill, for checking.

A motion to that effect was made in open session by Casey, and the committee went into executive session to consider it. Behind the closed doors the friends of the Governor, of whom it appears there were only four on the committee, quickly realized the hopelessness of getting the bill out of the committee, and it was not even put to a vote. Instead, the committee decided to continue the matter until next Tuesday, when another hearing will be had. While there was no formal action submitting the Tax Commission figures to the Retailers' Association, it was the understanding that would be done.

Personal Antagonism.

It is practically certain the Legislature will adjourn by the end of next week. It would, of course, be possible for the Senate to act on the measure if it should be reported by the committee next Wednesday, but there is not the slightest sign that the opposition of Senator Casey will be less in a week than it is now. The votes of the Senators who invariably support Casey, with those who are opposed to the principle of a sales tax, are sufficient to defeat the bill if it should reach the floor.

With the end of the sales tax, the Governor will have emerged from his special session of the Legislature with his program defeated, a result due in no small measure to a personal antagonism to the Governor, which developed even before the session was called. Senators felt that the Governor had ignored them by failing to confer with them on the recommendations for legislation.

Another matter which has had no small part in the opposition to the Governor's bills grew out of the failure of Senators to receive invitations to the wedding of the Governor's daughter a month ago. Only three of the 34 Senators were asked and all of them expected to be invited. While no Senator would place his opposition on that ground, the resentment of a number of them has

MISSOURI LIQUOR BILL IS RUSHED TO CONFERENCE

Senate and House Act Quickly to Put Disputed Measure in Hands of Joint Committee.

LEGAL SALE LIKELY EARLY NEXT WEEK

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 14.—Legal liquor in Missouri by early next week appeared today to be a possibility in view of quick action by the Senate today to throw the liquor bill into a conference committee.

Immediately on convening of the Senate this morning, Senator Donnelly, majority floor leader, offered a motion, which was adopted, to refuse to concur in all the 66 amendments adopted by the House to the Senate bill, and to ask the House to recede from the amendments.

This was a perfunctory form of motion, and was followed by a refusal of the House to recede from its amendments. It requested the appointment of a conference committee.

Conference Committee Chosen.

Members of the joint conference committee were announced this afternoon by Senator Kinney of St. Louis, president pro tem of the Senate, and Speaker Meredith of the House, before the convening of the two houses for the afternoon session.

The conference committee will be made up of five members of each house. In the past it has been customary to appoint three members from each house to conference committees. The committee was enlarged at the request of Meredith, who said more than half of the House members had asked for appointments to the committee.

The Senate members are: Donnelly of Lebanon, Democratic majority floor leader in the Senate; Clark of Richmond; Casey of Kansas City, all Democrats; Terry of Festus and Titus of Joplin, both Republicans.

The House members are: Dale of Ray County; Hayward of Shelby; Bennett of Dent; Taylor of Chariton, all Democrats, and Presley of Dallas, Republican minority floor leader in the House.

The conference committee includes only one member from the larger cities—Senator Casey of Kansas City. House members had urged Speaker Meredith to appoint House members from both St. Louis and Kansas City, but he restricted his selections to rural sections of the State. However, Representative Taylor of Chariton County, offered the House amendment to the Senate control bill, which the House adopted, giving St. Louis home rule.

Protest by St. Louisan.

Members of the House delegations from the City of St. Louis and St. Louis County protested against the ignoring of the city and county in the Speaker's selections.

"It is very unjust that a city of more than 800,000 popunlation be left out," said Representative O'Brien of the Fourth (St. Louis) District. "We asked for representation on the House committee, but were ignored."

Representative Ryan of St. Louis County, also protested. "The county has more than 211,000 population," Ryan said.

The report, if the committee can reach an agreement, will recommend that the Senate concur in certain of the amendments, and that the House recede from the others. However, the committee has the power to make any recommendations it sees fit, even to completely rewriting the bill. The report will be of effect only when it is approved by both houses, and if it should be rejected by either house a new conference committee would be appointed and the work done over again, and so on until some committee made a report acceptable to both houses. There have been times in other sessions when as many as six conference committees were appointed before an agreement was reached.

Although the adoption of 66 amendments by the House might be taken to indicate the two houses were far apart, as a matter of fact many of the amendments are of an inconsequential nature and probably will cause little trouble in the committee.

Sale by Drink Chief Issue.

As passed by the Senate the bill permitted sale by the drink any place in the State, in effect authorizing saloons any place, but permitting such sale to be outlawed by vote in any incorporated city, town or village, or in the area in any country outside of incorporated places.

The House amended the bill to grant St. Louis complete home rule in liquor matters, but prohibited sale by the drink in the rest of the State except in railroad dining cars of any liquor, except wine and beer having an alcoholic content of not more than 12 per cent, which would be permitted in hotel dining rooms and guest rooms, restaurants and clubs. Local option as to these by-the-drink sales was authorized by a House amendment in any city or town having a population of 1000 or more, and in the area of any county outside of towns of that size.

The Senate and House are in agreement that package or bottle sale shall be permitted any place in the State and that no local option is authorized on sale by the bottle.

Demand From Kansas City.

The St. Louis home rule provision will be the subject of discussion in the committee with the prospect of a change to permit Kansas City, and possibly some smaller cities, to exercise the same right. Since the adoption of the St. Louis amendment Tuesday night, there has been a strong demand from Kansas City that it be included in this provision.

The two houses are not far apart on the subject of taxes. The Senate fixed the tax on hard liquor at 80 cents a gallon, and the House at 96 cents. The Senate tax on beer was 93 cents a barrel and that of the House $1.

The difference is more pronounced on license fees. The Senate adopted a license of $200 a year for places in which liquor was sold by the package, while the House fixed it at $25. The Senate permitted County Courts to fix local licenses at $200 to $400 a year, while the House limited the local license fee to $25. No limit was placed by either house on license fees which municipalities may impose.

With these exceptions, the House amendments deal largely with the machinery of operating the law and with small details which should cause the conferees little trouble.

Kansas City Protests, and Wants Home Rule, Too.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 14.—Insistent that sale of liquor by drink should be permitted in Kansas City if allowed in St. Louis, civic leaders have voiced resentment against the pending State liquor control bill.

Tom Pendergast, leader of the Democratic organization, said, "We want the same extension of authority in Kansas City as given in St. Louis." Edgar Keating, House member from Kansas City, drew fire for requesting that sale by drink be denied this city because of possible effects on Democratic chances at the spring election.

"I am not worried about the political effect of liquor on the spring election here, and I try to make that plain now," Pendergast said. He said Keating did not speak for the Pendergast organization in making the request.

Resolutions of protest were drawn up quickly by the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, the Kansas City Hotel Men's Association and the City Apparel Association. Many other organizations planned to deluge the State Legislature with resolutions deploring "discrimination."

Pendergast expressed himself in favor of sale of liquor in hotels, clubs and "first-class restaurants," but added he was opposed to return of "the old saloon."

been quite well known in Jefferson City since the invitations were issued.

It matters not that, in the preparation of the invitation list, no name was included for official or political reasons, the list being limited to personal friends. The feeling existed just the same.

Short of Five Million.

While the sales tax appears to be dead, that does not mean that no money will be raised for relief, but it probably means the amount will fall short of the $5,000,000 a year which Wallace Crossley, State Relief Director, has said is the minimum amount which will be required. It had been estimated that the sales tax would produce $7,000,000 annually, and that, with the revenue to be derived from liquor tax and liquor licenses, it would care for the relief needs and meet the State revenue deficit, which will exceed $2,000,000 by Jan. 1.

Senator Casey and other opponents of the sales tax have estimated the liquor revenue will be approximately $4,250,000 annually, but there are no dependable statistics on which to make estimates. Some Senators have expressed doubt that it will exceed $2,000,000.

For a time there was a prospect that bills increasing the inheritance tax, which have passed the House, would add $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 of new revenue, but the opposition to these bills when taken up in the Senate yesterday was so strong that Senator Joffee, who was handling them, feared to let them get to a vote, and placed them on the informal calendar.

If the tobacco tax bill, which has been permitted to slumber, should be brought out and passed, it might produce $1,500,000 a year. The motor oil tax, which Senator Donnelly is considering, would produce considerable revenue, but he has not obtained any satisfactory basis for estimating the amount.

The fact is, that there has been current for some time a report that ruling powers in the Senate intended to adjourn the Legislature as soon as the liquor bill was put in final shape and passed. Senator Casey said on the floor several weeks ago that in his opinion the only reason justifying a special session was the passage of a liquor control bill.

It is hardly probable an adjournment will be forced without some revenue measure being adopted, but it also is hardly probable that the additional revenue to be provided, in addition to the liquor tax, will exceed $3,000,000.

JAMES A. HOUCHIN DIES SUDDENLY IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 14.—James A. Houchin, 60 years old, former banker and Democratic politician of Jefferson City, Mo., died suddenly here today in a barbershop into which he was carried after collapsing on the street. For several years he had suffered from pernicious anemia.

Houchin, who twice ran for the Democratic nomination for Governor, had been residing for the past two months with his brother, Bert M. Houchin, 2114 Bellevue avenue, Maplewood. He went to Springfield yesterday to become distributer there for Mar-Salle of St. Louis, 3139 Olive street, a liquor distributing concern with which his brother is identified.

Former president of the Farmers' & Merchants' Bank at Jefferson City, Houchin resigned about a week before the bank closed on April 2, 1926.

Houchin at one time operated an overall factory at Jefferson City, using convict labor, later moving the company to St. Louis and using free labor. In running for the nomination for Governor, he was defeated both times in the primary.

Surviving also are his daughter, Mrs. Myrene Hobbs; his father, John B. Houchin, and two sisters, all of Jefferson City, and a brother, Will Houchin, White Hall, Ill. His wife, member of a pioneer Missouri family, died in 1924.

saloon license fees, he would recommend a tax at least equal to that before prohibition, and possibly as high as the $1500 suggested by Collector Koeln.

Collector Koeln's proposal, discussed at conferences in the Mayor's office a few weeks ago, was that the number of licenses should be limited to 1500, and the city license fee fixed at $1500 a year. He copied this plan from that of Boston in former years. In Boston, Koeln said, licenses were a permanent asset, and holders of licenses observed the regulations carefully, in order not to forfeit them. Koeln cited a case where a Boston license, as part of a saloonkeeper's estate, brought the saloon man's widow $20,000.

Mayor Dickmann said yesterday he would favor high license and a limited number of saloons, but not necessarily the exact number of 1500 at $1500 each. He said he would call a conference, as soon as the State law is enacted, to discuss the measures to be adopted. Before the Legislature took up the question, conferences of brewery representatives, ministers and social workers were held in the Mayor's office to discuss liquor control plans.

The Greater St. Louis Beer and Liquor Dealers' Association, with headquarters at 1123 Washington avenue, met Tuesday at 2729 North Grand boulevard, and elected these officers: President, Luke Baber; vice-president, Otto Huehn; secretary, John A. Baber; treasurer, Edward Weber; directors, Philip Lears, John Keane, Louis Fisher, Vincent Enfusino and J. D. De Leal.

SETS PRIVATE UTILITY RATE LOWER THAN CITY PLANT'S

Illinois Board Fixes Charges After Geneseo (Ill.) Council Denies Company New Franchise.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—A privately owned utility company today had permission from the Illinois Commerce Commission to undersell, for the first 40 kilowatt hours of service it supplies, the Geneseo (Ill.) municipal plant with which it competes.

The private company, the Illinois Northern Utilities, was allowed a new schedule of rates, having this effect, in an order handed down by the Commission yesterday. The order is a temporary one, but will hold until the Commission acts again.

The city plant sells its power at 7 cents for the first 20 kilowatt hours, 6½ for the next 20. The new rate schedule permits the Illinois Northern to sell at 6½ cents for the first 20 hours, 6 for the next.

"The Commission retains control," said Irvin Rooks, the Commission's counsel, "and has until April 7, 1934, to decide whether to make the new rates permanent. We will not, of course, allow the private company to offer these rates at a loss."

The ruling followed a controversy between the two when the Geneseo City Council ordered the utilities company to remove its property from the city after refusing to renew its franchise. The commission suggested the franchise question be taken into the State courts, and counsel for the Geneseo authorities and the municipa lplant indicated this step was under consideration.

CONVICTED OF MURDER IN FARM EVICTION KILLING

One of Four Defendants Found Guilty in Slaying of Land Owner.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 14.—Frank Vanderpool of Hymera, Ind., was convicted of first degree murder last night in the death of Andy Reedy. Emil Reedy, Louis Wells and James Vanderpool, were acquitted. The three, however, still face a similar indictment for the killing of Oral Reedy. Frank Vanderpool will be sentenced tomorrow. The State did not ask for the death penalty in the cases, which were brought here from Sullivan County on changes of venue.

The Reedys were killed at their farm home near Hymera on Feb. 23 when several men went to their farm to protest against the eviction of Otis Turner from a farm owned by Andy Reedy.

Frank Vanderpool on the witness stand admitted he formed the mob and was responsible for the shootings.

Fourteen men were indicted in Sullivan County in connection with the killings. One, Otis Turner, was convicted there and sentenced to life imprisonment. Another Haskell Brown was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to serve from two to 25 years. Eight other persons await trial in Sullivan County.

PACKING HOUSE MEN TAKE STRIKE VOTE

St. Louis Workers Demand Higher Wages and Guarantee of 32 Hours a Week.

A strike of St. Louis packing house employes is threatened in support of workers' demands for higher wages and guaranteed hours.

A secret strike vote was taken yesterday and the result will be announced tomorrow noon.

Leaders claim that St. Louis packing plants are "100 per cent union" as a result of an organization drive begun last August. The local group has been chartered in the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' and Butchers' Workmen of North America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. In the event the workers vote to strike, the date of the walkout will be set by the union international executive board, meeting at Chicago.

It is estimated 2500 butchers and laborers are employed in 25 St. Louis packing plants. About 1000 workers filled North St. Louis Turner Hall last night to hear talks by E. W. Jimerson of East St. Louis, international union vice-president, and Michael Roth, secretary-treasurer of the local group A meeting attended by several hundred night workers was held in the afternoon at the same hall. Ballots were passed among the men. The results are being tabulated today.

Jimerson told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the union representatives had dickered with individual employers for several months without results. The employes are asking for minimum wage scales of 75 cents an hour for butchers and 60 cents an hour for laborers, with a guarantee of 32 hours' work a week. The present wage scales are 45 to 52 cents for butchers and 42½ cents for laborers, the latter being the hourly minimum under the packing house code adopted Aug. 1.

Asked for his opinion of the temper of the employes, Jimerson described them as "dissatisfied with conditions." The present average weekly working period is less than 30 hours, according to Jimerson, who said that at the present minimum scales this constituted "less than a living wage."

A wage increase of 3½ per cent to 10 per cent given 1200 employes of the Independent Packing Co., owned by Swift & Co., a week ago, was described by Jimerson as "inadequate and designed to placate dissatisfied employes."

Swift & Co., and Armour & Co., raised the wages of workers in their East St. Louis plants 10 per cent on Dec. 2. The East Side workers had been paid less than those in St. Louis packing plants.

A French note, declaring the Government's intention to default, is ready for presentation in Washington today by the French Ambassador.

It is understood the note bases the refusal to pay the moratorium installment of $6,093,759.44, on Parliament's failure to ratify the payment. This installment is due tomorrow in addition to the war debt installment of $22,000,000.

SANTA CLAUS OF SLATER, MO., TOO POOR TO REPLY TO MAIL

Tenant Farmer Has Wife and Eight Little Clauses; Gets Letters from Many Lands.

SLATER, Mo., Dec. 14.—The rocky, rutted road leading to the tiny home of Santa Claus is popular again.

The rural mailman has prepared for a busy season. Hundreds of letters and packages, coming not only from the United States, but Sweden, Denmark, France, Germany, England and Italy as well, are deposited in the Claus box annually.

There was a time when Mr. Claus—that is his real name and he's 52 years old and a tenant farmer near Slater—answered all correspondence.

But this year—"Money which might go for postage now goes for food," the head of the house explains. There is Mrs. Claus and there are eight little Clauses. The Claus home is small and unattractive. The original two rooms were built when President Polk was in the White House.

"Christmas will not be much for us this year," Claus says. "But we are all well, we have enough to eat and a home in which to live. Thousands haven't that."

DANNEMORA FUGITIVE CAUGHT

Hospital Inmate Captured After Shooting a Pursuer.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Dec. 14.—An escaped inmate of Dannemora State Hospital for Insane Criminals, stumbling through a sub-zero night after shooting a pursuer, sought refuge in a farm house early today and was captured there by State police.

JOBS FOR 31,000 WITH CWA AID IN CITY AND COUNTY

Directors Announce Full Quotas Are Expected to Be Assigned to Work Tomorrow.

ABOUT TWO-THIRDS ON RELIEF ROLLS

Rest Selected From Among Unemployed Who Have Not Asked for Help—Places for Women.

City and county today had adopted improvement plans sufficient to employ their full quotas of CWA workers after four days of intense activity, stimulated by the announcement last Saturday that unless the men were put to work this week the funds would be withdrawn.

In the city, Budget Director Meyers, and in the county, CWA Chairman Asa B. Wallace, promised that all the workers would be assigned to jobs by tomorrow. The city's quota is 22,919 and the county's 8500. About two-thirds of those put to work are being taken from relief rolls, the balance from among the unemployed who have not yet asked for public help.

The assignment office in the city, at 1823 Washington avenue, was busy again today directing to jobs thousands of men sent to it by relief agencies or Missouri State Employment Service. The county assignment office, 7805 Forsythe boulevard, also had a large crowd to deal with.

Requisitions for 23,869 workers had been sent to the St. Louis assignment office by city department heads, and Meyers said about 1000 more would be asked for in order to allow for the inevitable shrinkage caused by illness, failure of workers to report and other factors.

Work in Hand.

Among the largest items in the latest requisitions by city departments was one for 1223 men to fill up a pond and otherwise complete an extensive grading and shaping project at Broadway and Riverview drive. For installation of automatic traffic signals on recently widened Market street, Natural Bridge avenue and Delmar boulevard, 103 men were sought. Sixty-eight were requested for smoke abatement work, and 450 to dig a sewer on Jamieson avenue.

The county assignment office requires 18 unemployed women with dependents to complete a staff of 72 for educational research work under the direction of Washington University. Women with higher education are required. Associate Professor Theodore Lentz, of Washington University planned to receive applications for that employment there this afternoon.

Rate of Pay.

The county committee also wants 150 trucks to be hired at $1.05 an hour, including the compensation of the driver. CWA workers receive standard wages, with a minimum of 35 cents an hour for laborers on highways, 45 cents an hour for other common labor and $1.10 an hour for skilled workmen.

Canteen service to provide coffee and sandwiches for men waiting at the county assignment office was established yesterday by Democratic and Republican women's organizations. The Red Cross began such service in the city yesterday.

Kratky sought to show that not all wrestling bouts were "pink tea" affairs, even before Taylor became Commissioner.

"Anything 'pink tea' about Stecher's scissors?" he inquired. "No, Joe was always aggressive," Taylor answered.

"What about Mr. Lewis and his headlock?" "No, sir! He crushes them," the Commissioner replied with enthusiasm, rubbing his hands in fond recollection.

Lewis, an interested spectator in the rear of the courtroom, had been standing agape, leaning forward to catch the testimony. At this tribute to his art, which won him the nickname "Strangler" before the current crop of "bad boys" had graduated from the preliminary class, his mouth opened in a cavernous grin and his body shook with silent laughter.

Taylor, and Promoter Packs, who followed him on the stand, both said they had talked to Sharpe after the Londos-Grobmeier bout, and that he told them only that he had engaged in a fight with spectators who booed him. Guards were plentiful around the ring, they said, and Sharpe spoke of his fight only after he had left the dressing room once, and returned some time later.

About two-thirds of those put to work are being taken from relief rolls, the balance from among the unemployed who have not yet asked for public help.

The assignment office in the city, at 1823 Washington avenue, was busy again today directing to jobs thousands of men sent to it by relief agencies or Missouri State Employment Service. The county assignment office, 7805 Forsythe boulevard, also had a large crowd to deal with.

Requisitions for 23,869 workers had been sent to the St. Louis assignment office by city department heads, and Meyers said about 1000 more would be asked for in order to allow for the inevitable shrinkage caused by illness, failure of workers to report and other factors.

Work in Hand.

Among the largest items in the latest requisitions by city departments was one for 1223 men to fill up a pond and otherwise complete an extensive grading and shaping project at Broadway and Riverview drive. For installation of automatic traffic signals on recently widened Market street, Natural Bridge avenue and Delmar boulevard, 103 men were sought. Sixty-eight were requested for smoke abatement work, and 450 to dig a sewer on Jamieson avenue.

The county assignment office requires 18 unemployed women with dependents to complete a staff of 72 for educational research work under the direction of Washington University. Women with higher education are required. Associate Professor Theodore Lentz, of Washington University planned to receive applications for that employment there this afternoon.

Rate of Pay.

The county committee also wants 150 trucks to be hired at $1.05 an hour, including the compensation of the driver. CWA workers receive standard wages, with a minimum of 35 cents an hour for laborers on highways, 45 cents an hour for other common labor and $1.10 an hour for skilled workmen. Canteen service to provide coffee and sandwiches for men waiting at the county assignment office was established yesterday by Democratic and Republican women's organizations. The Red Cross began such service in the city yesterday.

Kratky sought to show that not all wrestling bouts were "pink tea" affairs, even before Taylor became Commissioner.

"Anything 'pink tea' about Stecher's scissors?" he inquired. "No, Joe was always aggressive," Taylor answered.

"What about Mr. Lewis and his headlock?" "No, sir! He crushes them," the Commissioner replied with enthusiasm, rubbing his hands in fond recollection.

Lewis, an interested spectator in the rear of the courtroom, had been standing agape, leaning forward to catch the testimony. At this tribute to his art, which won him the nickname "Strangler" before the current crop of "bad boys" had graduated from the preliminary class, his mouth opened in a cavernous grin and his body shook with silent laughter.

Taylor, and Promoter Packs, who followed him on the stand, both said they had talked to Sharpe after the Londos-Grobmeier bout, and that he told them only that he had engaged in a fight with spectators who booed him. Guards were plentiful around the ring, they said, and Sharpe spoke of his fight only after he had left the dressing room once, and returned some time later.

Packs, tall, sleek and slender, restless with nervous energy in contrast with the stodgy demeanor of the wrestlers with whom he is associated, traced his 15-year career as a sports promoter in accents reminiscent of his native Greece, using the present perfect tense without regard to the chronology of the events related.

Says Taylor Handles Details.

He made it clear that Commissioner Taylor ran his shows, told him how many guards to obtain, how much to pay his officials and handled all the details, so that even if Sharpe was left unprotected, which is denied, it was not the responsibility of the promoter. This account dovetailed with Taylor's testimony.

On cross examination Packs was asked if he held the wrestling franchise for St. Louis. Indignantly he denied that there was such a thing. He answered no to questions as to whether he managed a "wrestling circuit" or paid any wrestlers a fixed salary. Whenever he made a match, he said, he submitted it with all its terms and conditions to Commissioner Taylor for his approval.

"Well, did you ever submit Gus Sonnenberg's name to the Commissioner?" Kratky asked. "Why should I? He's not known here."

"He was a claimant to the world's championship, wasn't he?"

"You can claim it. Who would believe you?"

"Did you ever submit the name of Don George?" "I never did."

Lewis and Londos.

"Have you submitted Lewis, lately, that is?" "Lewis is not interested in wrestling for me," Packs answered. "He ran out on a match for me last summer. I'll sign him for a match right now, if he'll wrestle anybody but a bum."

"Will you match him with Londos?" asked Kratky, referring to the man now recognized by the Packs group of wrestlers as world champion, a title formerly held by Lewis. "I might not be able to pay Londos what he wants," was the answer, given as court was adjourned for the day.

Lewis had started to make his way through the crowded courtroom when Packs charged that he had "run out" on a match. Before the jury had left the room he caught Packs by the shoulder and protested vehemently. He was ready to wrestle anybody, he said, but he wanted Londos.

Spectators surged around the pair and recriminations flew thick and fast. Packs insisted that Lewis should wrestle Steele or Pesek, before he could ask for a match with Londos. "I'll wrestle them both on the same night and then take on Londos," Lewis boasted.

Commissioner Taylor promised that if Lewis beat Steele he might have his match with Londos within 90 days, and the contract was signed in the courtroom. Taylor suggested a 60-40 split of 30 per cent of the net receipts, but Lewis wanted "winner take all," and so it was arranged, the match to be held at the Arena on the night of Dec. 20.

Defense Argument.

In the closing argument, A. E. L. Gardner, counsel for Packs, told the jury he did not believe Sharpe had asked for special protection on the night in question. Sharpe's testimony, he recalled, was that the crowd had been inflamed by the preliminary bouts, handled by other officials, and he argued that if any officials had been attacked by the crowd, it would have been them and not Sharpe.

"They contend that he was the only referee that night who observed the rules of wrestling," Gardner said. "He handled the Londos-Grobmeier match with kid gloves. You heard it said that he favored the 'pink tea' type of wrestling. There is no testimony that he did anything to incite the crowd. Apparently he handled the bout in a most professional way."

If Sharpe was beaten that night, Gardner argued, it was after he had returned to the dressing room from the ring, and had left it again. He referred to the testimony of Taylor and Packs that Sharpe had left the dressing room, and that he told them, on his return, that he had fought with fans who "booed" him.

Kratky, in closing, contended the story of Sharpe's reported fight with fans was of a piece with the "super showmanship" of the wrestling bouts. Sharpe, he pointed out, was 60 years old, had "pinktea" ideas, and was not the man to go out of his way to pick a fight with fans.

"Don't let yourselves be fooled by 'super-showmen'", Kratky pleaded, "as they fool thousands of people in the great halls of this city."

WANTS DAUGHTER SHE GAVE AWAY

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
MRS DOROTHY COLEMAN

WITNESSES TELL OF 17 ADOPTIONS IN ONE FAMILY

Testimony Taken in Mother's Suit to Regain Daughter She Gave Away Seven Years Ago.

Life in the Tichacek household before and after the death of Mrs. Margaret Tichacek, who had adopted 17 children, was described in contrasting terms yesterday by witnesses in the suit of Mrs. Dorothy Coleman to regain custody of her 11-year-old daughter, Betty Jane, who was adopted by Mrs. Tichacek seven years ago.

The case was taken under advisement today by Judges Becker and Kane of the Court of Appeals. The hearing was to determine whether Betty Jane's custody should revert to her mother because of the death of the foster-mother, or should remain with two older adopted sons, Harry and Edward Finch, as provided in Mrs. Tichacek's will.

The Tichacek home, at 4359 Page boulevard, was ruled with a firm but kindly hand by Mrs. Tichacek, witnesses testified. The house was kept neat and clean and Betty Jane and Gertrude Finch, 7, another adopted child, received every motherly attention. But after Mrs. Tichacek's death, in August, 1932, conditions changed rapidly for the worse and the children ceased to receive proper care, witnesses said.

Says She Cleaned Up House.

"Conditions were simply pitiful," testified Mrs. Byrdella Finch, who entered the home last July as the bride of Harry Finch. "The whole house was filthy, the beds were not changed regularly and the place was overrun with vermin. When I moved in I wouldn't consider putting my belongings in until everything was cleaned up. The cause of the trouble was that Harry was away at work most of the time and the others there didn't know how to keep house."

The house once more is a suitable abode as a result of her efforts, Mrs. Finch testified, and she is eager to have Betty Jane remain. "I loved that child long before Mrs. Tichacek died and I used to ask her to let Betty Jane stay with me occasionally. She wouldn't let me have her then but told me some day, perhaps, Betty Jane would be my own. Now she is like my own daughter and loves me as much as I do her." Mrs. Finch, 39 years old, has been married four times and has two grown sons, who live out of the city.

Mrs. Finch, under cross-examination today, denied she was arrested and fined $100 in 1929 for driving an automobile when intoxicated. Police Sergt. William J. Sweetin of the Soulard Street District, however, testified he arrested her on Russell boulevard and took her to City Hospital, where she was pronounced intoxicated.

"She was unable to get out of her car and could not walk without assistance," he testified. "Later on the case came up in Police Court and she was fined $100."

Girl's Mother Testifies.

Mrs. Coleman, 32 years old, a wooden shoe-heel trimmer, testified one of her reasons for wanting the child back, besides her natural desire as a mother, was because she had heard Betty Jane was not being properly cared for. When she turned Betty Jane over to Mrs. Tichacek, she said, it was because she had no way to care for the child at the time. Now, however, a home awaits the girl with her grandparents in Kirkwood, where Mrs. Coleman spends week-ends. The latter rooms at 1420 Mississippi avenue in order to be near her work.

"I didn't know what I was doing when I signed my name to the adoption papers," she testified. "I was about frantic, my mother was sick and I had no money. Mrs. Tichacek was a distant relative of my husband and very fond of Betty Jane. It seemed the only thing to do at the time. Afterwards, though, Mrs. Tichacek wouldn't let me see Betty Jane and neither would Harry after his mother died. Today was the first time I had seen my child in four years."

Mrs. Coleman said her husband deserted her before Betty Jane was born and had never provided for their support. They lived together again for a few months when the child was 3 years old, but Mrs. Coleman continued working, she said. She does not know Coleman's whereabouts.

Says Adoption Was Regular.

Finch, 42 years old, a special delivery carrier for the postoffice, testified he had taken the interest of a father and older brother in Betty Jane. Mrs. Coleman was well aware that she was signing adoption papers and even got in touch with her husband to obtain his consent, he said. "She said she didn't want the child because to keep her would interfere with her social pleasures," he testified. "The reason we decided not to let Mrs. Coleman see Betty Jane was because the child was always upset after her mother left."

Former Fire Chief Frank De Voto, a friend, and former Postmaster A. J. Michener, who employed Finch, testified as to Finch's good character. Several other friends and neighbors of the Finches said the home was a proper one for a child. Mrs. Jenny G. Kenefick, principal of Riddick School, testified the child's school record was good. A Juvenile Court investigator said she found home conditions satisfactory after investigation of anonymous complaints.

SEVEN MEN LOOT 96 DEPOSIT BOXES IN CHICAGO BANK

Securities and Valuables Worth From $50,000 to $100,000 Taken in Daylight Holdup.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Securities and valuables estimated by police to be worth from $50,000 and $100,000 were missing today following the looting of 96 safety deposit boxes in the closed Unity Trust & Savings Bank by seven men in a daring daylight robbery.

Early yesterday afternoon three of the gang appeared at the vaults, kept open for the convenience of holders of boxes, and overpowered the attendant, Joseph Kinch. Later the others joined them. All afternoon they worked swinging sledge hammers and applying cold chisels as they forced open one box after another and extracted the contents.

They apparently had little fear of police detection for among their equipment was a low wave radio receiving set, which when hooked up in the bank basement, permitted them to listen in on all local police calls.

Four other persons who appeared at the bank during the afternoon were promptly subdued with weapons and hustled into a back room and tied up with Kinch, the attendant.

COACH OF COLUMBIA CREW SHOT TO DEATH NEAR BEACH

Gun Found Beside Body of Richard J. Glendon, Who Had Left Apparently to Go Hunting.

CHATHAM, Mass., Dec. 14.—The body of Richard J. (Young Dick) Glendon, Columbia crew coach, was found about a quarter of a mile from the beach here today. A shotgun lay beside the body, which bore a gunshot wound in the right side. He had been missing since yesterday, when he left home ostensibly to go on a hunting trip. Dr. C. H. Klein, medical examiner, said he thought death was accidental.

Richard A. Glendon, the man's father, formerly was crew coach at the Naval Academy.

An element of mystery was added to the case when the coach's father reported to police that he found a letter in his son's room. A policeman who was in the house at the time it was found said the elder Glendon hurried down the stairs from his son's room, exclaiming? "He's done. We've got to keep looking now until we find him."

Found Strangled in Her Apartment After Sending Two Gangsters to Sing Sing Penitentiary.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Margie Palesky Criochock, 26 years old, was found strangled to death in her West Side apartment yesterday.

With the disclosure that she had been held as a material witness in the killing of an ex-convict for which two gangsters were sent to Sing Sing, police thought she was killed by friends of the convicted men or by a third man implicated in the convict murder.

Mrs. Criochock, who came here from Shenandoah, Pa., was found on her bed with a piece of electric light cord drawn tightly around her neck. She was dressed in pajamas. A pillow had been pressed over her face and the room showed signs of a struggle.

Women living in the apartment house said they heard a man shouting in her apartment Saturday night: "You're not going to live long, baby!"

Mrs. Criochock, they said, replied: "I'm not afraid of anybody. I won't be killed."

Mrs. Criochock and a woman known as Billie Curnow were held as material witnesses in the murder of Joseph Mortillaro, ex-convict, who was found shot to death in Van Cortlandt Park in November, 1932. George de Perno, 27, and Irving Leder, 28, were charged with the murder and later pleaded guilty to lesser charges when they learned that Mrs. Criochock and the other woman were held as witnesses against them. They now are serving long terms in Sing Sing.

Police said the two women were present at a party at which De Perno accused Mortillaro of "stealing his girl" and vowed to kill him. The former convict was found dead a short time later.

Mrs. Criochock was released as a material witness from the Bronx County jail only two weeks ago and rented an apartment under the name of Marian Smith. Neighbors knew little about her.

Police said she had a husband, John Criochock, living in Shenandoah, and a small son. Her father was Andrew Palesky, also of Shenandoah.

In her apartment were found several Christmas packages addressed to "John" and "Jimmy." A clerk in a nearby drug store said she told him she planned to go to Shenandoah for the holidays.

Mauna Loa Eruption Subsides.

By the Associated Press.

HILO, Hawaii, Dec. 14.—Smoke and vapor cleared away yesterday from the summit of Mauna Loa, active volcano, indicating the last eruption which began Dec. 2 had subsided. For more than a week lava surged in the Mokuaweoweo crater, while showers of rocks fell. The crater threw a red glow on the night sky that was visible a hundred miles.

U. S. PROSECUTOR OF CAPONE TALKS AT EAST ST. LOUIS

George E. Q. Johnson Says Courageous Jurors Are Needed to Break Crime's Reign.

The need of courageous jurors and fearless witnesses if laws against crime are to be enforced was described by George E. Q. Johnson, former United States District Attorney of Chicago and successful prosecutor of Al Capone, in an address yesterday to the East St. Louis Rotary Club.

"Government is not a self-operating machine," Johnson said. It depends on honest, dutiful men in public office, and rests its responsibilities on every citizen. They must support it in each of its functions, and that includes being a courageous juror.

"Criminal activities of a powerful gang end only when public sentiment becomes crystalized against them, resulting in militant citizenship; and, the jury is one of the essential branches of Government that can break the reign of crime."

Johnson said the organized gangs of today, with their "invisible governments," are made possible by the tolerance of murder and other crimes in the public mind because of public fear. "And talkers did die," he said, relating that in one Chicago case, six defendants and eight of their associates were murdered.

Power of Money.

The power of money is the dominant factor in organized crime, the speaker said, and there are four principal sources of revenue, the violation of liquor laws, gambling establishments, prostitution and racketeering, including control of labor organizations. "There never was at any time big money made by criminal gangs, that someone in public office wasn't getting a part of it," Johnson said.

The "invisible government" is built up with the power of money, corruption of public officials, influence with politicians, intimidation at the polls, control of elections, and creating fear in the minds of citizens, each one a prospective juror or witness. The speaker said that in one Chicago criminal case, 783 prospective jurors were examined before 12 were selected for service, and nearly all came with prepared answers obviously seeking to excuse themselves from service. The defendant was acquitted.

"But it is no wonder that people are baffled at the course of the courts," Johnson said, relating how Al Capone celebrated, with a $20,000 champagne dinner, the acquittals of two of his gunmen in the fatal shooting of two police officers, and the next day a policeman was found guilty of killing a dive-keeper, whose place he was trying to close up.

Two Men Who Helped.

"In the case against Al Capone, however, for evasion of income tax for which he was sent to prison, there were witnesses who showed admirable courage," Johnson said. "Two were residents of Cicero, named Bragg and Hoover, who had accompanied a constable, named Morgan, on a raid at Capone's gambling establishment.

"Their testimony was valuable because after the raid Capone came to them, announced he was the owner, and made certain other admissions. After that they were beaten up by hoodlums, and their families by threats kept in a state of terror that bordered on nervous breakdown. Still, when the Government prepared its case against Capone, these men said they would testify and did without any retractions.

"When I asked one of them, who had been born in England, to testify, he replied, 'I took an oath to support this Government, when I became a citizen. I believe its my duty. I'll testify.'"

Johnson, whose appointment as a Federal Judge at Chicago was not confirmed after former President Hoover's defeat, spoke at the Broadview Hotel. He was introduced by Harold G. Baker, former U. S. District Attorney at East St. Louis, who, he recalled in his address, had secured the arrest of a former employe of Capone who testified as to Capone's records of income.

PLEA MADE FOR TOYS FOR MAYOR'S CHRISTMAS PARTY

Persons Desiring to Contribute Are Asked to Notify Manager of Auditorium.

Contributions of used toys for distribution at the Christmas party for the needy to be held in the new Municipal Auditorium, are sought by Mayor Dickmann, sponsoring the affair. Those with toys to donate are asked to notify James Darst, manager of the Auditorium, who will arrange for necessary repairs by city firemen.

Donations have been received of 1000 pounds of ham, 1500 tin cups, 25,000 paper plates and napkins and other accessories. It is estimated that about 25,000 persons will be fed, and arrangements have been made with Democratic committeewomen to supervise serving at the rate of about 2000 meals an hour. Miss Mayme Dickmann, the Mayor's sister, will superintend the work.

ANTI-FASCIST IS ACQUITTED OF KILLING IN NEW YORK

Court Disregards Prosecutor's Demand to Arrest Witness Who Admitted Perjury.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Athos Terzani, anti-Fascist, was found not guilty by a jury yesterday at Long Island City of the murder of Anthony Fierro last July at a rally of the Khaki Shirts of America, a Fascist organization commanded by Art J. Smith.

Judge Thomas Downs closed the case without any comment on the incident of Samuel S. Wein, former quartermaster-general of the Khaki Shirts, whose arrest on perjury charges was asked for by prosecutors after he testified he swore falsely at a grand jury session that Terzani killed Fierro. Wein, who said he perjured himself under fear of death at Smith's orders, said the Khaki Shirts "framed" Terzani and that another man, a Khaki Shirt, killed Fierro.

The jury's verdict at the end of half an hour of deliberation was received with applause. Bailiffs quieted the crowd. Two policemen seized Fort Velona, a defense witness and cartoonist for an anti-Mussolini Italian daily, as the leader of the outburst.

"I apologize," Fort said to the Judge. "I don't know whether I want to accept your apology," the court said. "You are one of those busybodies who want to run everything. It's loafers like you that cause trouble. Do you want to obey the law?" Fort muttered something. "Don't lie to me," the court said. "We've had enough lies in this case. It's been saturated with lies. Now get out of the county."

Denies He Robbed Mae West.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—Repudiating an alleged confession of the robbery of Mae West, actress, Edward H. Friedman pleaded not guilty yesterday and his trial was set for Jan. 15. Friedman's lawyer asked Superior Judge Charles Fricke to set aside the confession on the ground it was obtained by torture. Photographs of alleged injuries caused by police were attached to two affidavits saying Friedman appeared to be dazed after his arrest.

GIRL BURNED TO DEATH ON DAY SHE WAS TO HAVE BEEN WED

Young Woman Trapped in Upper Story of Structure at Pittsfield, Mass.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 14.—The body of Miss Mary Burns, 20 years old, of Troy, N. Y., was found today in the fire ruins of the Star Realty Co. building. She was to have been married today.

The roof of the building fell in shortly after she was seen at an upper story window.

Miss Burns, who was to have been married at Stephentown, N. Y., had been visiting the parents of her fiance, Nelson la Fountaine, who was taken from the building in an unconscious condition.

Seven persons, occupants of top-floor apartments, were carried to safety over ladders. Four of them, including La Fountaine, were taken to a hospital suffering from smoke inhalation.

The fire was thought to have started in a dancing school on the second floor of the four-story brick building. The cause was not known. Loss was estimated at $300,000—$150,000 to the building and $150,000 to the contents.

HARRY H. BARRETT DIES

Canton (Mo.) Editor Was Father of Former State Attorney-General.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, Mo., Dec. 14.—Harry H. Barrett, editor emeritus of the Canton News-Press, one of the oldest newspapers in Missouri, died yesterday at the age of 78.

He was the father of Jesse W. Barrett, St. Louis, president of the Missouri Bar Association, former Attorney-General of Missouri, and former commander of the Missouri Department of the American Legion.

GAPS IN AUDITORIUM ROOF SPACES FOR FIRE SHUTTERS

They Will Be Filled by Steel Plates That Open Automatically in Case of Blaze.

Although the exterior of the new Municipal Auditorium is virtually completed, there are two large apertures in a section of the roof, which mystify passersby.

These holes eventually will be filled by steel plates forming shutters, which will open in event of fire, to provide a direct outlet for smoke and flames. The shutters will be directly over the scenery loft of the big stage. They will be held shut by fusible links, which will melt at a given temperature, whereupon gravity will open the ventilators. Each set of shutters will measure about 20 by 40 feet.

Eugene S. Klein, one of the architects of the Plaza Commission, explained that such shutters are required by city ordinance and underwriters' regulations. They will operate in conjunction with curtains of water to be released automatically in case of fire.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Traffic Patrolman Louis G. Windieck saw two young men snatch bundles from a moving truck yesterday. He chased them, caught them, turned them over to two other policemen, and then fell dead. He had exhausted himself in the short chase and had suffered a heart attack.

DEFENDS PRISON CAMP AND GETS 10 YEARS OFF

Florida Convict Rewarded for Writing Letter Denying Charges of Cruelty.

By the Associated Press.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Dec. 14.—The State Pardon Board yesterday cut 10 years of a man's sentence because he wrote a letter denying charges of cruel treatment and unfair punishment to prisoners in Florida road camps. He was Gerald O. Steele, sentenced Nov. 3, 1931, to 15 years for armed robbery in Dade County.

Nathan Mayo, State Prison Commissioner, notified him that "I have read yur letter to the Pardon Board and the Governor specially appreciated it.

"On account of the fair spirit of co-operation the board voluntarily has commuted your sentence to five years."

Prison records show Steele's home is in Olean, N. Y. He is in a State road camp near Blounstown. On Dece. 10 he wrote to Mayo:

"I have read in the papers of the past week about the case of Jack Larue (escaped Florida prisoner fighting extradition from Chicago) and some of the statements he is making in regard to the road camps. I would like to make a few statements myself, as my home is also in the North and as there has been so much said that is untrue in regard to the camps that would lead people there to believe the camps are nothing but places of cruel treatment and unsanitary conditions, which is not true and also unfair to officials of the camps.

"Of course there is punishment meted out to those who disobey the rules, but it is in no way detrimental to the health of anyone. I can also say truthfully that in the two years I have been an inmate I have never seen a man treated cruelly or punished unfairly or unreasonably.

"I am writing this of my own accord. . . . The officials are willing in any way to help anyone who tries to help himself."

ILLINOIS HOUSE PASSES LIQUOR CONTROL BILL

Measure Authorizes Local Licensing, but Allows State Board to Revoke Permits.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 14.—The compromise bill for liquor regulation through a State commission was approved by the House of Representatives yesterday and was sent to the Senate. The vote was 102 to 38, not a vote to spare for emergency enactment.

The House action was a victory for Gov. Horner and down-state legislators and a defeat for Mayor Kelly and the Chicago Democratic machine.

The compromise bill would let local governments issue retail liquor licenses but create a State commission of three men to hear appeals for revocation of permits.

The vote was taken after outspoken warnings from down-state Representatives that if the compromise bill were defeated, its supporters would pass without the emergency clause a control plan with no home rule provisions.

R. A. HUBER ON CODE BOARD

R. A. Huber, vice-president and treasurer of Anheuser-Busch, has been appointed to the Board of Code Authority for the NRA liquor code to hear complaints. The other two members are C. W. Feigenspan of Newark, N. J., and Joseph Goldie of San Francisco.

The board has 12 subsidiary regional boards which will attempt to settle all local complaints. Any grievances which the board cannot settle are referred to NRA authorities at Washington.

MASS MEETING TO DISCUSS BONDS TO GET PWA FUND

Building Trades Council to Push Its Proposal for $58,200,000 Program of Improvements.

A mass meeting in favor of a large city bond issue for improvements, with the aid of Federal public works funds, will be held next week under auspices of the Building Trades Council. A committee was appointed by the council last night to fix the time and place. Various organizations will be invited to send representatives.

The council approved the resolution adopted by its Executive Board Monday, which demanded early submission of a bond issue for the city's share of a $58,200,000 program of improvements.

City officials are preparing for filing with the Public Works Administration by tomorrow applications for grants aggregating $1,191,000 on improvements to cost $4,800,000. This is for work at Memorial and Union Station plazas, Municipal Auditorium and Civil Courts building and erection of a war memorial. These proposals are part of Mayor Dickmann's new $20,000,000 improvement program, contingent on the voting of a bond issue to pay the city's share, which was announced when a Building Trades Council committee called on the Mayor Tuesday.

Wants City to get Its Share.

Robert J. Lee, president of the Building Trades Council, urged a bond issue to enable St. Louis to gets its full proportionate share of the Federal public works fund, addressing his organization last night. He advocated bonds regardless of the form of taxation to support them. Mayor Dickmann had said he favored the new issue only if not more than half the cost of supporting it would be borne by real estate.

"The average wage of the building trades here," said Lee, "is about $30 a week. If we could put the 15,000 idle members of the building trades to work it would mean that $450,000 would be put into circulation every week, or over twenty million dollars in a year. Just think what that purchasing power would mean to all St. Louis. It would be reflected in every line of business and do more than anything else to bring back prosperity.

Replies to Mayor.

"In my opinion, the Mayor has not gone far enough. There is no other city in better condition financially to participate fully in the President's public works program, so why not adopt a program to support the public works plan 100 per cent? The Mayor says he is opposed to a bond issue unless some other means than a tax on real estate can be found for financing it. No other practical method, however, has been suggested. I believe it is to the best interest of St. Louis, and absolutely essential, that a bond issue large enough for the city to receive a full allotment from the Government be submitted by the Mayor to the voters, whether or not it has to be paid for by a property tax or otherwise. Give the people a chance to say 'yes' or 'no' themselves on the public works proposition.

"Our taxes have been reduced nearly 20 per cent. I do not believe our people will object to paying a few cents extra for a bond issue if it will mean they will be put to work. People do not complain much about taxes in times of prosperity. Give us work and we won't quarrel about a few cents extra for a bond issue."

Lee said a small percentage of the work under the temporary Civil Works Administration scheme was going to the building trades.

Hugh Miller Urges Bonds.

Hugh Miller, State engineer for the PWA, addressing the council, told about improvements planned by the city, St. Louis County and the State, and urged the building workers to support the proposed bond issues of all those governments. He said the State and county bonds should have the council's backing in order to provide work outside the city and prevent an influx of mechanics here.

Pressure by the building trades on the Legislature, to obtain passage of Gov. Park's bills to permit smaller cities to issue plant revenue bonds for municipal utilities, was suggested by Miller. He asserted that State Senators Kinney, Brogan, Nolte and Depelheuer of St. Louis were in a position to have these measures taken up on the Senate floor, and asked the Council: "Have you enough power to get them to get those bills out?"

There were 51 applications for utility plants to cost about $7,000,000 depending on these bills, Miller related. Included are 30 waterworks, 11 sewer or sewage disposal systems, eight electric plants and two gas plants.

"The whole idea of the PWA," Miller concluded, "is to take men off the soup roll and put them on—what shall I say?"

"Beefsteaks," a union man answered.

Attacks Utility Lobby.

H. S. Julian, State attorney for the PWA, spoke briefly about the utility lobby opposing the municipal utility bills, and the aims of the PWA. He charged that electric companies had been selling current, in general, for about 15 times the production cost.

City Counselor Hay told the council about the city's improvement plan and policy, details of which have been published. He asserted the administration had adopted a "rather ambitious program" and invited suggestions and criticism.

There was a brief debate by council members after the speakers had left. Harry J. Hagen of the Lathers' Union, who was on the committee which called on the Mayor Tuesday, said: "If you listen to Hay long enough, he'll make you think black's white." Hagen urged insistence on a large program, saying the council was not particular what undertakings were included and considered its $58,200,000 list as only partial. He announced the council would try to have the Board of Education expend the $2,000,000 construction program adopted Tuesday.

For City-Owned Utilities.

It was brought out that the council had communicated with other Missouri labor groups and written legislators in an effort to have the municipal utility bills passed. One delegate said: "It's time to prevail on our representatives at Jefferson City we want something for St. Louis and not for a bunch of power magnates."

The city's PWA application on the two plazas and the war memorial, which is to go on Memorial Plaza, asks for a $717,000 grant, placing the total cost at $2,890,000. This includes $1,210,000 for the memorial structure, as designed several years ago by the Plaza Commission; $1,500,000 for the beautification of Memorial Plaza, and $180,000 for the ornamentation of Union Station Plaza. The commission's design for Memorial Plaza would be followed. This includes a cascade, an electrically-lighted fountain, pools, sculptures and ornamental lights. At the station plaza, balustrades, gardens, steps, walks, benches and urns would be provided.

The other application seeks a $474,000 grant on work amounting to $1,910,000 for completion of portions of Municipal Auditorium and Civil Courts Building not already provided for. At the auditorium $1,140,000 would be spent and at the courthouse $770,000.

WHISKY TRUST CHARGE MADE AT HEARING ON TAX

Spokesman for Independent Kentucky Distillers Says Combine Has Corner on Barrel Timber.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — The existence of a "whisky trust" was charged at a joint congressional hearing on liquor taxes today by Harvey H. Smith, spokesman for a group of independent Kentucky

He gave his testimony after Representative Buck (Dem.), California, testified there was no need of increasing the tariff duties on foreign wines, because the American producers would not be able to supply the demand for some time. Wine must be aged from one to four years, he added, explaining the domestic product would have to wait for the process.

Smith said that "the whisky trust has all the white oak timber cornered for the purpose of controlling barrel production."

Smith contended that if his distillers could make their own barrels, they could produce good whisky for $6.71 a barrel. He said the barrels could be made for from $1.81 to $2.40 each, but, if bought from outsiders, they would cost $7.50.

He testified whisky could be manufactured for 11 to 15 cents a gallon and aged within a year. He recommended a maximum tax of $1.50 a gallon, asserting that would permit it to be sold for $1 a quart.

"Scandalous Situation."

The opinion that strict Federal and state regulation of the liquor traffic since repeal had "opened the door to more opportunities for enforcement graft and political influence than ever existed under prohibition," was voiced by Representative O'Connor (Dem.), New York.

O'Connor said there was a "scandalous situation" in the liquor industry and supported the charge by Smith of a "whisky trust." He recommended a $5 a gallon tax on liquor, the highest levy any witness had proposed.

"Little did we think that our efforts to dislodge the Federal Government from the invasion of state rights would be rewarded by a vicious interference under the NRA," he said.

O'Connor said the price of whisky would be the same to the public whether the tax was $1.10 or $8. He said the distillers' lobby has had its representative working on members of Congress, the Treasury Department, the Secretary of State the Department of Agriculture and even the White House.

"This week the whisky trust is negotiating to buy back 77,000 gallons of a well known American whisky which was sold by the trust to the bootlegger, and it is also negotiating the purchase from the bootlegger of another item of 54,000 gallons of Canadian whisky," he said.

"Their own stock of four-year-old straight whisky, being low, they propose to cut this illegitimate straight whisky from 10 to 24 times. They admit they are going to cut it 10 times, but the more customary formula is 18 times—that is, one part of whisky to nine parts of water and nine parts of raw alcohol."

Cochran Finds Prices Too High.

The possibility of return of national prohibition, if the bootlegger is not eliminated by repeal, was suggested by Representative Cochran (Dem.), St. Louis. Cochran gave warning that the bootlegger will remain unless legal liquor is sold cheaply enough to reach the poor man.

"If we are going to make a success, we have got to put good whisky in reach of the poor man or the bootlegger will remain," Cochran said.

"The eighteenth amendment can be put back, and, as sure as we are here today, if we do not put liquor within the reach of all, we are going to have a reaction we will be sorry for."

Plea for Grape Industry.

Representative Buck urged that distilled wine of less than 14 per cent be permitted to go tax free. Speaking as a vineyardist, Buck said the grape industry was in need of rehabilitation and that any tax on distilled wine would fall on the growers of grapes.

As a maximum wine tax schedule, Buck suggested: Distilled wine of 14 per cent or less of alcohol, 10 cents a gallon; 14-21 per cent, 20 cents; over 21 per cent, 40 cents; carbonated wine, 20 cents; naturally fermented champagne, $1.20; brandy used for fortifying, 20 cents.

The joint hearing was concluded this morning.

PURSE THIEF CAUGHT AFTER RADIO CALL

Youth, 17, Seized by Policemen, Admits Robbing 15 Women in Last Month.

A 17-year-old youth identified as the one who robbed several women of their purses on West End streets last night, was captured an hour after the first theft as the result of a police radio broadcast.

The youth, who said he was Joseph Weaver, 1712 South Vandeventer avenue, admitted the thefts, according to police, and told officers he had snatched 15 purses from women in the last month, obtaining about $40. Police records show Weaver is on parole from Bellefontaine Farms, institution for incorrigible boys, after having been sent there for stealing bicycles.

The women robbed last night were Mrs. Valeria Newcomb, a nurse at St. Luke's Hospital; Miss Marion L. Griffin and her sister, Miss Susan Griffin, 5575 Waterman avenue, and Mrs. Iza Marshall, 265 Union boulevard. The first three and Miss Elsie Carr, St. Luke's Hospital, who was with Mrs. Newcomb, identified the boy.

Mrs. Newcomb was robbed of $1.50 at 9 o'clock and the Griffin sisters of $5 a half hour later. Reports of both thefts were broadcast. About 10 o'clock Detectives Clarence Willis and Clark Gahen saw Weaver at Union boulevard and Pershing avenue. They pursued him into Portland place, firing several shots, were joined by a watchman and captured the youth on the front porch at 47 Portland place.

The theft of $4.75 from Mrs. Marshall, which occurred a few minutes before the capture, was reported later. The boy had $6.60 in his possession. He told police he had been stealing purses because it was "an easy way to get spending money."

Aybert Eberline, proprietor of the Terminal-Lucas Pharmacy, 3201 Lucas avenue, was robbed of $4.56 in cash, a watch and $10 in merchandise by two Negroes, one of whom was armed, at 8:30 a. m. today. The robbers tied Eberline in a back room and locked the front door from the outside on their way out. There is no telephone in the store and it was half an hour before Eberline could free his feet, get to the door and attract a passerby, who called police.

Envoy to Pan-American Parley From Havana Says This Country 'Intervened' in Island.

INSISTS SAN MARTIN BE RECOGNIZED

Peru Proposes Substitute for Hull's Tariff Reduction Plan — Economic Congress Called for 1934

By the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 14. — Consideration of a United States recommendation to reduce American trade barriers brought forth an attack on the Cuban policy of the United States at the Pan-American conference yesterday.

Angel Alberto Giraudy, Cuban Minister of Labor, said that the United States had intervened in his country by not recognizing the Government of Ramon Grau San Martin.

"If Ambassador Welles' propagating the revolution as charged by the Uruguayan Minister to Havana is not intervention," he maintained, "if upholding a minority group against the wishes of the people is not intervention, if surrounding the island with war ships is not intervention — then the United States never intervened in Cuba."

Giraudy's outburst came after Dr. Alfonso Lopez of Colombia had successfully moved for the immediate consideration of the United States tariff proposal, submitted by Secretary of State Hull.

Praise for Secretary Hull.

Lopez maintained that the tariff proposal and the United States Senate investigation of international bankers indicated a trend toward aligning the United States with the needs and desires of Latin-America. He praised Secretary of State Hull's "transcendental" refusal to defend international bankers in the present conference and the non-intervention of the United States during the Cuban revolution.

At that point Giraudy attacked the American Government.

Felipe Barreda Laos, Peruvian delegate, declared that other international groups attempted a reduction in tariffs but they continued to rise "because nations raise tariffs in self-defense." He maintained that a most-favored-nation clause incorporated in the United States proposal would mean the derogation of many recent South American commercial treaties.

Substittue for Hull Plan.

Barreda Laos proposed as a substitute for the United States measure the statement, "The Pan-American Conference agrees that high tariffs and other trade barriers contribute powerfully to prolong the present world crisis."

He said that such a measure could be signed by all delegations, while many were unable to sign Hull's proposal, by which Governments would pledge themselves to a program of reducing high tariffs through bilateral pacts and, at the earliest possible date, to ask other nations of the world to join in gradually scaling down tariffs.

Peru and Hayti felt they were unable to sign the United States resolution, the former suggesting as a substitute a declaration that high tariffs were prolonging the depression.

Delegates voted to hold an economic Congress of Pan-American nations in 1934, at which Mexico's debt postponement proposal will be the chief topic of discussion. The meeting will be at Santiago, Chile.

The delegates also voted to hold the next Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru. Normally the conference meets every four years.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 14.—A wireless message from the motorship Wyatt Earp, on which Lincoln Ellsworth, Sir Hubert Wilkins and Bernt Balchen are making an Antarctic expedition, received here yesterday, said icebergs were sighted Tuesday night. Their position was given as 1700 miles from the South Pole, 500 miles from the nearest point of land on the Antarctic continent, Oates Island, to which the ship apparently was heading.

He maintained that a most-favored-nation clause incorporated in the United States proposal would mean the derogation of many recent South American commercial treaties.

Substitue for Hull Plan.

Barreda Laos proposed as a substitute for the United States measure the statement, "The Pan-American Conference agrees that high tariffs and other trade barriers contribute powerfully to prolong the present world crisis."

He said that such a measure could be signed by all delegations, while many were unable to sign Hull's proposal, by which Governments would pledge themselves to a program of reducing high tariffs through bilateral pacts and, at the earliest possible date, to ask other nations of the world to join in gradually scaling down tariffs.

Peru and Hayti felt they were unable to sign the United States resolution, the former suggesting as a substitute a declaration that high tariffs were prolonging the depression.

Delegates voted to hold an economic Congress of Pan-American nations in 1934, at which Mexico's debt postponement proposal will be the chief topic of discussion. The meeting will be at Santiago, Chile.

The delegates also voted to hold the next Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru. Normally the conference meets every four years.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 14.—A wireless message from the motorship Wyatt Earp, on which Lincoln Ellsworth, Sir Hubert Wilkins and Bernt Balchen are making an Antarctic expedition, received here yesterday, said icebergs were sighted Tuesday night. Their position was given as 1700 miles from the South Pole, 500 miles from the nearest point of land on the Antarctic continent, Oates Island, to which the ship apparently was heading.

Inquiry Into Newsprint Dumping.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The Treasury Department disclosed today that the Customs Bureau is making an investigation of complaints that Canadian newsprint is being dumped in the United States. Pending the outcome, bonds are being required on all shipments of newsprint from Canada into this country.

ROOSEVELT TO ASK CONGRESS FOR MORE THAN FIVE BILLION

Minimum Emergency Expenditures Put at $2,775,000,000 While Budget Will Total at Least $2,600,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — The administration will ask Congress for appropriations of at least $5,375,000,000 at the coming session and the ultimate figure may be six billions or more.

President Roosevelt's aids have added minimum estimates for emergency expenditures and found they totaled $2,775,000,000 without figuring in a cent for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, whose requirements cannot be forecast. To that amount they added $2,600,000,000 of budget bureau estimates for the ordinary governmental operating expenses during the next fiscal year.

"One of the items figuring in the budget was brought prominently to the fore by the disclosure by President Roosevelt that he intended to continue the work of the Civil Works Administration until next spring, gradually tapering off the work between March 1 and May 1. By that time, the administration hopes that the public works program will be able to absorb gradually those now cared for by the civil works plan.

Praises Work of Cummings.

Meanwhile, Acting Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury, disturbed at continuing newspaper dispatches of dissension between himself and his subordinates, called reporters to his office for a special press conference. He praised the work of Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Bank Deposit Insurance Corporation, and expressed the hope that he would stay with the Treasury.

Cummings is planning to retire soon after Jan. 1 to take an important post with a Chicago bank. Thomas Hewes, Assistant Secretary, resigned because of friction between himself and Morgenthau resulting from orders by the latter virtually stripping him of his responsibilities.

"Mr. Cummings has done a magnificent job," said Morgenthau.

On Emergency List.

President Roosevelt renewed his study of the 1935 budget yesterday in a conference attended by Morgenthau, the latter's assistant, Earle Bailie, and Lewis Douglas, the Director of the Budget.

The estimate of emergency expenditures, involving disbursements after Feb. 15, when present funds will be exhausted, included $350,000,000 which Roosevelt said would be asked for the Civil Works Administration, $250,000,000 Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, estimates as the minimum needs of the Emergency Relief Corporation, including the Federal Surplus Corporation, and the figure most generally mentioned for the Public Works Administration, $1,875,000,000.

The last figure is regarded by Public Works officials as an absolute minimum. Their present appropriation of $3,300,000,000 is nearly exhausted. They have applications pending which, if all were approved, would entail outlays of nearly three billion dollars more. These may be cut nearly in half, however, as unmeritorious projects are eliminated. Meanwhile, additional applications are expected. Figures mentioned in congressional circles run as high as 10 billion dollars.

Estimates Hard to Fix.

Hopkins also regarded the relief administration's $250,000,000 as an irreducible minimum. Its requirements may run as high as $500,000,000, he said. There is no telling what the R. F. C. will need. So far this fiscal year, less than six months, the Treasury has advanced it $456,000,000.

In addition, the NRA will need money for running expenses, as may the Tennessee Valley authority, but these amounts will be relatively small. The theory behind the Farm Administration is that it pays for itself with the taxes levied on processors of foodstuffs.

Morgenthau took occasion at his press conference to deny published reports that Hewes left because of dissatisfaction with the administration's monetary policy. The subject never was mentioned, Morgenthau said. Hewes also denied this. It was understood that President Roosevelt offered Hewes another post with the administration but that the latter declined it.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — The RFC today reported through the clerk of the House of Rpresentatives it had made 204 loans aggregating $232,843,368 in October, which, with increases aggregating $3,261,175 to previous loans, brought its total to $236,104,543.

Of the total loans during the month $104,569,536 was authorized to banks and trust companies, including $98,341,502 to aid in the reorganization or liquidation of banks that are closed or in process of liquidation.

A total of $2,095,538 was advanced to building and loan associations; $300,000 to an insurance company; $90,713,870 to mortgage loan companies; $30,000,000 to Federal Land Banks; $475,000 to Joint Stock Land Banks; $166,418 to agricultural credit corporations; $1,896,465 (rediscounts) to regional agricultural credit corporations; $1,896,465 (reto a state fund created for the purpose of insuring the repayment of deposits of public money.

Among the mortgage company loans authorized in October was one of $86,000,000 to the Institutional Securities Corporation of New York City. It is this class of loans which the Senate Banking Committee has been investigating recently to determine whether there had been any abuses arising out of the new law permitting loans to such companies.

MARCEL PILOT-GOLAZ CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF SWITZERLAND

Elected by Federal Assembly; New Vice-President Is Rudolf Minger.

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 14.—Marcel Pilet-Golaz, former vice-president, was elected president of Switzerland by the Federal Assembly today. Minister of War Rudolf Minger was chosen vice-president.

In Switzerland, a Federal council of seven members is elected for three years by the Federal Assembly. Re-election is automatic, death or resignation virtually the only factors leading to change. One of the members is president of the confederation, the other vice-president. Each serves one year. The vice-president automatically succeeds the president and another member of the council becomes vice-president.

DEATH DEMANDED FOR TWO IN REICHSTAG FIRE TRIAL

Prosecution in Closing Argument Advises Acquittal of All But Torgler and Van Der Lubbe.

By the Associated Press.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Dec. 14. — The prosecution today demanded death for Ernst Torgler, former Communist leader in the Reichstag, and Marinus Van Der Lubbe, young Dutch brick mason, for treason as the prosecution completed its case in the trial of five men accused of burning the Reichstag building last February.

At the same time the prosecution asked for the acquittal of the three other defendants, Wassil Taneff, Georgi Dimitroff and Blagoi Popoff, Bulgarian Communists.

In his closing argument, the prosecutor admitted that the evidence against the defendants was wholly circumstantial. In the course of the trial Van Der Lubbe said he, unassisted, set the Reichstag building on fire.

BRITAIN TO AID COMPANIES IN COMPLETING BIG LINER

Neville Chamberlain Announces Plan for Resumption of Work; Ship to Be World's Largest.

LONDON, Dec. 14. — Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, commenting in the House of Commons on the expected merger of the Cunard and White Star shipping lines, announced a program would be presented for aiding completion of the Cunard liner 534, designed to be the largest ship afloat when the companies combine.

Following that announcement last night, Walter Runciman, president of England's Board of Trade, although saying subsidies might do more harm than good, said "we may be forced reluctantly to take measures to safeguard our shipping." Runciman said a subsidy for tramp ships was under consideration. He said Britain should "hit back and hit hard at aggressive countries fighting" her shipping.

It was believed work might be started on the 534—to cost about $25,000,000, with a tonnage of 73,000—about Christmas. Work on the 534 was suspended more than a year ago.

PARAGUAYANS TAKE BOLIVIAN STRONGHOLD

Capture Saavedra in Chaco—Munoz Fortress Reported in Flames.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 14.—The Paraguayan army was reported, in dispatches from Asuncion, Paraguay, to have taken the Bolivian stronghold, Fort Saavedra, and swept westward to bombard Fort Munoz, another Bolivian post in the Chaco Boreal. Fort Munoz was said to be in flames.

The capture of Saavedra was announced by the Paraguayan Ministry of Defense. The communique said Saavedra was captured after the Bolivian garrison set fire to the barracks.

Advices from Asuncion yesterday told of the fall of the Bolivian fortress, Murgia, adding that at that time the Paraguayans were fighting their way steadily nearer Saavedra.

Only the Seventh Division of the Bolivian army remained intact in the Chaco area. Four regiments remained of the Second Division and part of the First. The rest of the army were Paraguayan prisoners of war.

A high officer of the Paraguayan Defense Ministry stated that in the capture of Aliguata and Gondra fortresses the Paraguayans had taken 9000 prisoners, including 250 officers, with 3000 more prisoners in other operations. He said there were known to be 1700 Bolivian casualties in the fighting of the last two days.

A badly nepleted Bolvian army faced new Paraguayan onslaughts today, while Governments of both countries prepared to consider a strenuous plea from the Pan-American conference at Montevideo for an armistice. The conference hoped for an answer within 48 hours.

Bolivia Names New Commander of Forces in Chaco.

By the Associated Press.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 14.—The Ministry of War today announced that Gen. Enrique Penaranda had been made commander-in-chief of Bolivian forces in the war against Paraguay in the Chaco.

(On Dec. 12 it was rumored that Gen. Hans Kundt, German-born chief of staff of the Bolivian army, had been replaced as a result of reverses suffered in the Chaco. The Bolivian Government at first officially denied that there had been a change in the high command of the army but later issued a communique saying Gen. Jose Lanza had been appointed acting chief of staff. Whether Penaranda now replaces Lanza was not explained by the Government.)

EIGHT-NATION SILVER TREATY SENT TO MEXICAN CONGRESS

First Country Acts to Ratify Pact Signed at World Economic Parley.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Dec. 14. — The Government yesterday sent to the Mexican Congress for ratification the silver treaty signed at the World Economic Conference July 22 under which eight signatory nations agreed to take steps to raise the value of silver, increase its use as currency and prevent dumping.

Mexico, Australia, Canada, the United States and Peru signed the treaty as producers, and India, China and Spain as consumers. Mexico is the first country to request ratification.

The Ministry of Finance, in a statement accompanying the request, declared Mexico already had gone farther than it promised to do in the treaty, and that the Bank of Mexico "has been accumulating considerable amounts of white metal and coining it," in order to liquidate existing stocks.

The five producing countries agreed under the treaty not to sell any large quantities of silver and to participate in the purchase of or take other steps to retire 35,000,000 ounces from the market annually during the years 1934-1939 and to coin this amount or use it for monetary reserves. India agreed not to sell more than 140,000,000 ounces, Spain no more than 20,000,000, and China agreed not to sell any during the specified period.

WHEAT PARLEY GROUP OPPOSES U. S. EXPORT AID

By Associated Press. Copyright, 1933.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The United States is among the countries the International Wheat Marketing Committee has found guilty of placing obstacles in the way of world-wide recovery in that commodity.

While Americans have taken the lead in efforts here to raise the wheat price level, the negotiators find operation of the Pacific Northwest Emergency Export Association in the United States a depressing factor.

The organization operates in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

The committee, a part of the world wheat commission set up last summer when export quotas were set for the major producing nations, is making an investigation of all direct and indirect subsidies in an effort to determine whether schemes suggested here for the improvement of the world market are workable.

The export association, it is held by many of the delegates, contributes to the world wheat glut by buying home wheat and selling it at a considerable loss on world markets—the United States Secretary of the Treasury making up the association's losses from the processing tax on flour.

The American association engages, according to information here, in actively selling in China and Central America.

Federal Officials Deny U. S. Obstructs Wheat Market's Recovery.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Department of Agriculture officials denied today that the United States was obstructing recovery of the world wheat market. They said there was an understanding at the time of the original London conference that the United States would proceed with export sales under its quota, which was set at 47,000,000 bushels.

For Auto License Fee Cut.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM well pleased with the work so far of the State Legislature on the bill to reduce automobile license fees, and with the recommendations of Gov. Park in regard to it.

There is no doubt that the present rates are unjust. Though we do not expect a perfectly fair schedule of rates, yet a great improvement can easily be made. Farmers are paying license fees on old cars that are in many instances not worth the license fee! But such vehicles provide them with a means of making the weekly trip to town. If more road money is needed, let the rates be raised on the newer and higher-priced cars. Men who own such cars are able to stand the additional amount, and they get the most benefit from the improved roads. A man who makes his living by the daily use of his car should certainly pay a higher fee than one who makes but one or two short trips each week.

It is reasonable to believe that lower rates will mean that more fees will be paid and that the road funds will not be greatly diminished. Moreover, I believe that we can get along quite as well with less expenditure on roads. We cannot live by roads alone! How much more important are our roads than are our public schools?

I am confident that more than a majority of the people of the State are for a reduction of automobile license fees, and the will of the people should be embodied in a State law. The people were disappointed when the Legislature failed to act in reducing the fees during its last session, but I hope it does not disappoint us again.

Mr. Wilson's Prophecy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

RALPH B. WILSON of Babson Reports, Inc., says: "With a multitude of economic forces converging to make this area the natural headquarters of a new prosperity, St. Louis will be the economic capital of an inland empire. St. Louis is in line for future greatness, surpassing anything the area has known heretofore."

One of the many reasons he gave in support of his prediction was the spectacular progress of air express and air passenger business.

With the prophetic words of Mr. Wilson still ringing in our ears, I wonder how long we St. Louisans are going to delay in laying the groundwork to enable the city to be the leader in the aviation industry? St. Louis should be to aviation what Detroit is to the automobile.

Identifying Union Men.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MY laundry man tells me that all union laundry drivers get a button every month with their local number on it.

If so, why don't all of them wear it, so we can tell whether we are patronizing a union man or not?

I suggest: No button, no laundry.

Questions for the Professors.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTICE that 10 prominent economists of Princeton University have signed a declaration registering their protest against currency inflation because, to their way of thinking, it will harm the workers, the beneficiaries of life insurance, bank depositors, hospitals and colleges.

Would the learned professors encourage deflation? Do they contend that deflation would benefit the workers? Has not deflation wrecked the insurer and frustrated the hopes of the beneficiaries? Do they know that by inflation we mean more money in circulation? A normal and an honest dollar? Do they know that depression and deflation have added 30 billions to the burden of the debtors, concurrently accruing to the benefit of creditors? That the gold standard is a myth? That bankers' credit is our monetary medium? That by expanding and contracting the volume of money (credit in their language), the bankers have virtually become terrestrial pirates? Will these economists forever remain the hirelings of predatory wealth?
THOMAS TUMBOVE.

Father Coughlin, Meet Cervantes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

LIKE Don Quixote, Father Coughlin, bestriding his ass (the gullible public), rides forth to tilt at windmills. Like the famous Quixote, the chivalrous Father Coughlin has allowed his imagination to run away with him. He, in his present feverish condition, cannot be held responsible for his seemingly slanderous ravings against Al Smith, whose record for public service is impeccable.

It is regrettable, however, that the worthy Father should have neglected his Cervantes. He might have derived therefrom a better sense of proportion, and perhaps would have been saved from the bewitching effect of over-zealous application to political and economic fantasy.

The Legislature: A Problem for Missouri

There is no more amazing spectacle in the political history of Missouri than the way in which the present special session of the State Legislature is deliberately forfeiting its opportunity to make amends, in part at least, for the utterly faithless performance of the regular session. If the state of legislative disorganization now existing in Jefferson City is no worse than that which lasted from January until April, it would seem to be only because the regular session set a record for futility that could hardly be surpassed.

No one with even a slight interest in public affairs can have forgotten the promise with which the Legislature met soon after the New Year. Two months before, the people of Missouri had voted for a New Deal in government, State as well as national. Democrats had been elected to supplant Republicans in legislative and administrative offices. Responsibility for the public welfare had been placed in new hands in the hope of establishing government that would respond to the needs of the rank and file instead of to the beck and call of special interests.

In the face of this unmistakable mandate, the Legislature proceeded to turn its back on every important reform with which it was presented. It killed the permanent registration bill, the housing bill and the State bar bill. It refused to enact measures providing for a scientific renovation of Missouri's antiquated governmental structure, for drivers' licenses, for county planning commissions in counties which desire them and for control of water power development so as not to sacrifice the beauty of Missouri streams. By a disgraceful bargain between wet and dry members, a beer bill was passed, but the McCawley bone-dry law was left on the statute books.

Its sins of commission were as great as those of omission. It passed the notorious Buford "mystery" bill, a vicious creation of the utility lobby, fortunately vetoed by the Governor. It passed the sorry Weeks bill, which almost immediately had the State confused as to its meaning and at a loss over how to apply its complicated provisions. It redistricted the State for representation in Congress, and did it in a fashion so grossly unfair to St. Louis that, in the Congress elected next fall, the city and county will have a Representative for each 333,000 persons, while the rest of the State will have one for each 250,000.

This shameful performance was properly condemned in every part of the State. Disillusioned Missouri had seen enough to cause it to repudiate the "New Deal" in State government at its earliest opportunity. Democratic newspapers, such as the Jefferson City Capital News, noted the rising dissatisfaction with deep concern and reminded the party that it must be prepared for the inevitable consequences of broken campaign pledges.

As time passed, it became evident that Gov. Park would be forced to call the Legislature in special session. With repeal imminent, he acted late in the summer to serve the best interests of the State by appointing an advisory liquor legislation commission. In September, he announced the Legislature would be convened again. The program which he outlined for it was, on the whole, thoroughly commendable.

Placing himself squarely behind the admirable recommendations of the liquor commission, the Governor called for repeal of the McCawley Act. Faced with the prospect of a bankrupt State Treasury after the first of the year, he urged the enactment of legislation to replenish the depleted general revenue fund. He came out for measures to enable municipalities to co-operate with the Federal public works program by purchasing or building water works, gas and electric power plants, and for laying sewer systems. He took a stand for revision of the insurance laws and a $15,000,000 bond issue for rebuilding and remodeling State eleemosynary and penal institutions.

With this program before it, the Legislature met in mid-October. Two months have passed, and not a single measure of importance has been enacted. The House and Senate have spent most of their time at loggerheads over liquor control, with neither standing for the recommendations of the commission. Proposals have ranged from the restoration of the old-time saloon to liquor sales only on trains, ridiculous on its face. As approved by the House this week, the Senate bill is so loaded down with amendments that some of the legislators have frankly admitted that they are not certain what it provides.

The utility lobbyists, flushed with their success at the regular session, have made Jefferson City their headquarters from the outset of the special meeting. They have sought to forestall the public works measures which would enable communities to build their own utility plants, and to authorize them to issue revenue bonds by a majority vote, instead of two-thirds. Certain key members of the Senate are working hand in hand with these interests, and the result is the most vicious kind of government by committee. Indeed, the influence of these lobbyists has been such that Secretary of the Interior Ickes has felt it necessary to denounce their activities in a message to Hugh Miller, State engineer of the Public Works Administration.

The treatment of the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution is another instance of the lack of sympathy between the "New Deal" in Missouri and the New Deal in Washington. The Roosevelt administration stands behind the amendment, knowing that it is needed to safeguard the great gains in child conservation brought about by the Recovery Act. Ignoring this, a willful group in the Missouri Senate is holding up the resolution. While the House registered approval by a close vote, the amendment's opponents have been able to raise the question of whether the necessary majority was obtained.

For this disgraceful reflection on a people's capacity to govern themselves, the citizens of Missouri are largely to blame. They have paid but scant attention to the qualifications of legislative candidates. Good men have offered themselves from time to time, only to fail of nomination when the voters did not support them in the all-important primary. On the other hand, those with special interests to serve have made certain of nominating and electing candidates who would do their bidding.

There is only one remedy, and that is an awakening in the voters of a determination to make the Legislature a truly representative body. By spring, candidates will be announcing themselves, many of them for re-election. In a little more than eight months, the primary will be held. The records of present members are available to all. They should be broadcast in each senatorial district and county. The Missouri Bar Association, for instance, should remind the voters which legislators supported its campaign to make the bar self-disciplining and which ones lined up on the side of Rat Alley. Other organizations should participate in the primary campaign in similar fashion.

Missouri does not need to have such a Legislature as that now humiliating the State at Jefferson City. Given the right kind of membership, the General Assembly would do many things that have needed doing for a long time. It would enact permanent registration legislation and thereby save the taxpayers large sums of money every year while at the same time providing for the convenience of the voters. It would revise the criminal code. It would reconstruct State government in the interest of efficiency and concentrated power, as has been done in numerous other states. It would change the primary date from August to a month more suited to the nominating process. It would make a practice of serving the people.

If the special session follows the course of wisdom, it will turn about-face and give the program outlined for it the consideration due. Some of these measures must be enacted if government in Missouri is to be efficiently maintained. Let the Legislature make out the best case for itself that it possibly can. The voters, disillusioned but wiser, will soon be passing judgment, to the end, we are confident, that government in this State will be a model for other states, not a sorry contrast.

OUR 48-RING CIRCUS.

These post-repeal days are taking on the aspect of a 48-ring circus, with something going on in every ring, though it may be merely talk in those states still bound to prohibition by constitution or statute. The performances and juggling acts are of entertaining variety.

Montana, Michigan, Oregon and Pennsylvania will sell liquor through state dispensaries; Illinois is in a blissful and chaotic state of non-regulation, and Nevada, with local option, finds that the old-time saloon has returned to Reno. Legislatures are debating the question in several states, but Indiana is saved that trouble by having a State Excise Director, who used his power to lay down liquor regulations by edict. Liquor may be served in public only with meals in Arizona, Colorado, Delaware and several other states. New York forbids drinkers to stand while imbibing, and Pennsylvania requires sitting only for the stronger beverages. Missouri, at one stage of its bill, planned to permit sale of hard drinks only on trains, steamboats and in St. Louis (which would have brought about, if nothing else, the long-sought recovery of rail and river traffic).

Any store may sell liquor by the bottle in California and Rhode Island, while New York forbids chain stores to do so. Indiana permits only drug stores to sell bottled goods, and New Mexico requires the stores to have been in operation three years. Licenses cost from $8.34 to $500 in New York, range up to $1400 in Rhode Island, sell for $50 flat in Connecticut and none is required for the numerous bootleggers of the dry-voting Carolinas and various other prohibition states. Anyone can purchase drinks in California, while most other states bar minors and known drunkards, and New Mexico requires the customer to have a $3 drinking permit.

There are other wide differences among the states in all phases of liquor control. No one who views the spectacle of varying experimentation in this field can say that a deadening uniformity is falling upon the members of our Union, as the states' righters are so fond of declaiming.

WE LEARN A NEW WORD.

In the letter column recently, one of our correspondents used a term which, no doubt, puzzled many of our readers. He said that Congressman Cochran, in his fight against high liquor prices, wanted to put within the reach of every man the common drinks of yore—the "shot," the "pony" and the "racheputzer." These are all synonyms for a drink of straight whisky, and the literal translation of "racheputzer" is throat-cleanser. It is not German of the purest ray serene. Brother Goethe never employed it, nor did Comrade Schiller. Nevertheless, waving aside all crabbed pedantry, we have added it to our vocabulary.

THE BANKER COMES TO BAT.

Once it was all drama and plumed, glittering romance, but that was long ago. Baseball is, and has been for years, big business, as occasional glimpses at the statistics reveal. Even so, the banker, ever the power behind the throne of industrial affairs, has managed to escape, so far as we know, any specific mention in the publicity of baseball. It has remained for Connie Mack, patriarch of the game, to drag the banker out of his invisibility and install him in the glare of the headlines.

Mr. Mack has again smashed his ball team, as he did far back in 1914, but the dispersion of 1933 is somewhat different. There is a similarity, to be sure, in the circumstances of both devastations. Then, as now, business was bad. Then, as now, Philadelphia, wearying of the supremacy of the Athletics that were annually adding a new flag to the flutter of pennants, was absenting itself from the grandstand in battalions, regiments, divisions, finally in legions. Operating expenses had run beyond the revenue, and Mack finally touched off the explosive that shook the baseball world. They were peddled here, there and yonder, those stars of yesteryear, and the team's lean treasury was replenished, and pennants became a dim memory and penance a bitter, protracted actuality. Year after year, Mack floundered in the iniquity of last place, while Philadelphia drained her cup of retribution to the dregs. Business prudence counseled the procedure, which, however, was in a measure optional. There is nothing optional, it seems, in the present decision. The banker spoke, and Mack mounted the auction block, and the Philadelphia players that have written diamond history will wear other colors.

Plato pronounced the verdict. Ruin follows the trader's rule. That is to say, when the banker comes to bat, even as great a pitcher as Grove is knocked out of the Athletics' box. Connie Mack and Philadelphia may ponder that, perhaps, as they trudge the long, steep road of reconstruction.

The Spotlight on Personal Devils

SO much of our current discussion has to do with statistics and graphs and broad general tendencies and movements and forces and what not that it gets to be tiresome and unreal. We are not really at home among these abstractions and impersonal things, and every now and then we cry out with Leonato in "Much Ado About Nothing," that you cannot > Fetter strong madness in a silken thread.

> Charm ache with air, and agony with words.

We must have something substantial to chew, something personal and definite to deal with. Like Leonato, we then exclaim: "Which is the villain? Let me see his eyes."

And if there is no real villain around, we invent one. We have now reached the point where Prof. Tugwell is being fitted out with horns to frighten ladies and gentlemen of property, and Lewis Douglas is being set up as the personal devil who is opposing the children of light. Prof. Tugwell, it appears, is leading a sort of personal conspiracy to subvert the American scheme of things, and Mr. Douglas is the hard-hearted wretch who stands guard at the Treasury and is blocking the millennium which, but for him, would be just around the corner.

If these things were true, it would certainly save a lot of time and trouble. You get rid of Tugwell, and then we all move along happily and prosperously in the good old way. Or, you get rid of Douglas and, before you know it, the New Deal has been dealt and you have made a grand slam.

I do not think these things are true. Mr. Tugwell might be as much of a Socialist as they say he is and Mr. Douglas all the Tory that they say he is, and still the personal diagnosis would not be convincing. It would not be convincing even if the President showed any symptoms of entrusting his whole conscience to the legendary Tugwell or to the legendary Douglas.

For revolutions are not made by opinions nor prevented by them. I do not think it is possible to find an instance where a social order has been radically altered because someone thought some other kind of order would be better. There has to be a complete breakdown of the old order, a total paralysis and an extinction of all hope that it can revive, before a genuine social revolution occurs. When these conditions do not exist, you may get a change of government, in moments of excitement even a violent change; you may get an eighteenth amendment or a grandiose law, but when the smoke clears away, you are pretty sure to find the essential institutions and habits of the nation the same.

That, for example, is why Marxism has worked out exactly contrary to the Marxist theory. According to that theory, the first Communist state should have been the most advanced capitalist state. Instead, Communism is triumphant in the least capitalistic nation among all the great Powers.

Why? Because in Russia, and nowhere else, there was, as a result of the war, a complete breakdown of the social mechanism and a collapse of all authority and enterprise. Had there been no Communist dictatorship, there would inevitably have had to be a military dictatorship, and that dictatorship would have had the task of creating an economic system on the ruins of the old system.

That the dictators happened to be Communists rather than Czarist Generals and Grand Dukes was, it seems to me, due to the fact that the Generals and the Dukes were defeated and demoralized and discredited men, whereas the Communists were fresh, and were organized and ready to take power. I believe this because the Communists got nowhere at all in any country where the old order had any life left in it or any leaders capable of defending and operating it.

The moral, it seems to me, is that a social system is not overthrown by conspiracies, nor by propaganda, but only by its own weakness. The only way to defend a social system is to make it work. The only time to have fears for it is when it does not work. As long as it works, providing the bulk of the people with the satisfactions they normally expect from it, it is not susceptible to revolution. The body politic, if it is reasonably healthy, throws off infection; it is only when it is sick that it loses its immunity. A social order which is a going concern can be reformed at this point or that, but to any realistic revolutionist, it is a poor prospect.

All of this will, of course, not be intelligible to those who are in the habit of describing everything they do not agree with as revolutionary. There are men, for example, who think that collective bargaining is revolutionary, or revaluing the currency, or a steep income tax, though measures of this sort are accepted as a matter of course by a conservative country like England. These measures may be good or bad, wise or foolish, but they have nothing to do with revolution or the perpetuation of American institutions.

If we are looking for really radical tendencies in Washington, we must not look to Mr. Tugwell's opinions, whatever they may be, but to those conditions where the old order of things shows serious evidences of paralysis. There are not many, I think, but there are some which are worth watching, particularly, I should suppose, the failure of the private capital market to perform its functions. In so far as it fails to perform its functions, you are bound to get an increasing tendency to supplant it by public authority.

Carried to its logical conclusion, that would involve a very great change in the character of capitalistic society. This tendency is, therefore, in the real sense of the term, radical. But how far it will go is still perhaps an open question, depending upon whether the paralysis in the private capital market is temporary or more fundamental.

Tendencies are vague things, and one cannot be sure what they mean, and rarely do they proceed to their logical conclusions. But if it is revolution and radicalism we are interested in, the things to watch are evidences of paralysis in the old order rather than the ideology of Prof. Tugwell.

The President and the Dollar

From the Wall Street Journal.

THE demand that the President take his stand unalterably upon the rock of sound money ignores too much. It is conceivable that the President realizes more acutely than his appointed advisers on the one side or his volunteer advisers on the other that the United States was already deeply involved in one of its recurring money wars when he came to the White House, and that he sees it his duty to "ride the whirlwind and direct the storm." If such should perchance be his intuition of the country's mood and such his view of his own relation to it, it would be wholly logical for him to refuse to ally himself prematurely with any faction.

It is good reasoning to believe that an actual test of Prof. Warren's gold market machinery will be more convincing of the sagacity or the folly of the whole college of currency coaches and dollar tutors than any amount of ex cathedra pronouncements for them or against. And it is conceivable, if only barely conceivable, that it can be given a test without quite taking the country out on the slippery slope where all movement is in one direction.

To those who take their principles seriously, still more to those who think everything is a principle, and most of all to those who passionately believe that economic principles exist but political principles do not, such an attempt at a sympathetic understanding of the new monetary policy will appear contemptible. These are forthright folk and want their President to be forthright, first, last and always. To them, it may be suggested that economic fevers have several times seized hold upon the United States and, while they have never proved fatal, they have seldom yielded to treatment by the orthodox practitioners of forthrightness. They have usually had to run their course, to burn themselves out.

So, the President may be thinking, must it be with this one. To be sure, he said Oct. 22 that the gold operations were to be not an expedient but a policy. But he also said in the same address that their purpose was a higher price level and that if they should be found not to serve that purpose, something else would be tried. The new policy was, therefore, an experiment, and an experiment it remains.

President Roosevelt is under a responsibility from which the demanders of certainty and stability are happily free. He must hold the legislative and executive departments together as one steadily functioning machine, if that is humanly possible. The President alone bears the whole responsibility to the country for the practical consequences of his policies. Among the various group divisions of public opinion, the executive for all the people must find a passable road, out of them he must integrate a workable national program.

His declaration, now or soon, that he would never use the inflationary powers of the Thomas amendment would certainly recruit the ranks of the greenbackers; it could easily precipitate the very thing that the sound money demanders shudder to think of. A middle course of—let us say—reasonable devaluation and stabilization is in a legitimate sense politically impractical before the experiment already seven months in gestation has brought forth its kind. The third alternative of soft yielding to the wilder inflationists would make an abrupt end of that guiding principle of social control which suffuses the New Deal and gives it the character it has.

It is inept, or worse, to ask the President to forget that Congress is coming.

OFFICIALS are keeping very quiet about it, but Army and Navy Intelligence workers report an unusually large number of Japanese military and naval officers in the United States. Several of them have been arrested, the latest being Maj. Satohata Takahashi, taken in on a deportation warrant by the Labor Department in Detroit last week. Takahashi was organizing a society for the promotion of colored races—Negroes, East Indians, Japanese—in the United States. He had no visible means of support and had entered the country illegally.

Other cases include that of two junior Japanese naval officers who were studying at Harvard, and during their vacation took a motor trip to California. Near San Diego they had a smashup, one was killed, the other seriously injured. In their pockets were found sketches of San Diego harbor.

Another interesting case was that of a Japanese naval officer who spent several days riding back and forth in busses between Los Angeles and the naval base at San Pedro. What he was interested in was talking to American enlisted men who also rode on the busses.

His mission proved fruitless, for most of them were suspicious and wouldn't talk. The Navy kept close track of his movements and had a line on most of his conversations. His chief questions were regarding the treatment of enlisted men in the Navy. He was interested in morale.

Secretary Evarts' chief difficulty, according to historians of that day, was in making sure that none of the spiked oranges was served to Mrs. Hayes.

As the undercover struggle progressed to the climax, Barney's telegrams increased in number and size. The President was much amused. Peek, and not the liberals, lost out.

Future of the NRA.

ONE of the complaints of the NRA Labor Advisory Board is that labor has no conception of what the New Deal is about. NRA advisers complain that when labor is given a New Deal, it spoils the whole effect by trying to get too much out of the grab-bag, or else falling down altogether.

The following case, reported from Belleville, Ill., is illustrative:

The International Headquarters of Brewery Workers, located in Cincinnati, mailed out orders to local unions to take a vote as to whether to support the NRA. Out of 52 members present in the Belleville local when the vote was taken, 51 voted against the NRA. Only one member favored it.

After the result had been mailed back to Cincinnati, a letter from international headquarters brought word to disregard the vote order since there would be "no NRA after Jan. 1."

Red Heads.

IT was a case of one red head helping another that brought to Dr. James M. Doran, former Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol, the choice plum of director of the Distilled Liquor Institute. To get the job there was a hot, undercover scramble. Scramblers were "Tanglefoot" Bob Lucas, former executive director of the Republican National Committee; John Philip Hill, former wet Representative from Maryland, and Bob Jackson, secretary to the Democratic National Committee.

Against such an array, Doran didn't seem to have much chance. But he had an ace trump up his sleeve. Joe Tumulty, a fellow red red, secretary to Woodrow Wilson, and general counsel for the National Distillery Corporation, was for him. Joe had kept Doran on as Commissioner after March 4, and in the final showdown Tumulty got Doran the distillers' job.

The "unsung" heroes of the turf, the hard-riding, hard-working "exercise boys" want a new deal in their business. They are demanding an $1800 a year minimum in the horse racing and breeding code pending before the AAA. At present their pay ranges from $30 to $50 a month and "keep."

The Fellowship Forum, Ku Klux Klan weekly which at the height of its power in 1928 had a circulation of over 300,000, is dying. It is now being published monthly, has a circulation of only a few thousand.

The Government union among NRA employes set in motion several weeks ago with a fanfare of publicity is a flop. . . . At the second meeting, only 60 out of a total of 1600 employes, showed up. . . . Author of the model anti-lynching bill which will be introduced at the coming session of Congress is a gentleman of distinguished Southern lineage—Prof. James H. Chadbourn, of the University of North Carolina. He worked three years in preparing the measure, had the assistance of a number of outstanding Southern lawyers and law school deans. According to Chadbourn, 3753 persons have been lynched since 1889, and only 67 have been punished.

General Hugh Johnson is not the author of the expression "crack down" in connection with NRA activities. . . . A red-headed reporter put the words in his mouth when he inquired what was contemplated against a certain automobile manufacturer.

Mrs. Keeler left at noon yesterday for New Orleans to recuperate. The party was to have been given at the St. Louis Woman's Club next Wednesday. Present plans are to give the party in January.

COAL
meets the Challenge!

THE time has come to face the facts about fuel. High pressure salesmanship promoting the use of gas and oil for domestic heating has confused the public, and obscured the basic, undeniable advantages to be obtained only through the use of coal and coke.

But the thinking man will not permit a barrage of publicity and salesmanship to becloud the issue and to double and even triple his heating costs.

He Knows—that coal or coke is the most economical fuel, and that he can heat his home with them at one-half the cost of gas or oil, or even less.

—that coal or coke heat is absolutely dependable, and not subject to interruptions by Winter storms when he needs heat the most.

—that coal or coke heat is absolutely safe, quiet and odorless. No danger of a violent explosion, no nerve-racking hum and no disagreeable smells.

—that coal or coke produces a steady, even heat. Not hot one minute and cold the next when the burner shuts itself off.

—that with a modern stoker, of which there are a number on the market, he can have automatic smokeless, sootless heat with coal at a much lower cost than with other fuels.

TRUTH SERVICE

FULLWEIGHT QUALITY

BURN COAL AND HELP EMPLOYMENT

Coal and coke are local products, produced right within the St. Louis trade territory. Being solid fuels, their handling creates much employment—in the mines—on the railroads—in the yards and in handling and delivering. Every dollar spent for coal stays at home, or comes back home from our immediate trade-territory to buy the products of our factories and mills and to increase trade at St. Louis stores. Buy coal—keep your money at home and assure more employment for yourself, your friends and your neighbors.

Before you change fuels, investigate the advantages and economies offered by modern coal-burning heating plants and appliances. The Coal Exchange or any member thereof will gladly send a competent engineer to inspect your heating system and suggest changes for modernizing and improving it to make it serve you better. There is no charge for this service. Just phone:

COUNTY SEWER BILL GOES TO GOVERNOR

Measure Sponsored by Taxpayers' Association Is Sent to Governor.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 14. — The sewer district liquidator bill for St. Louis County, authorizing the Governor to appoint one liquidating officer who would replace seven separate boards of supervisors in winding up the affairs of seven sewer districts in the county, was finally passed by the House today and goes to Gov. Park for his approval. The vote was 119 ayes and no noes.

The bill passed the Senate last Tuesday. It carries an emergency clause which would make it effective as soon as signed by the Governor. It was sponsored by the Taxpayers' Protective Association of St. Louis County, which has been carrying on extensive litigation contesting some of the outstanding obligations of the seven districts.

The districts were ordered dissolved after the repeal of the Ralph sewer law, under which they were established in 1931. Outstanding claims against the districts, which never built any sewers, are estimated at about $1,000,000.

Under the act, the authority of the present district boards of supervisors would terminate, and all of their duties be assumed by the liquidator. He would have full power to liquidate the affairs of the districts, to contest claims, compromise such claims, adjust district taxes where uncollected levies exceed outstanding indebtedness, and to carry on any necessary litigation.

The salary of the liquidator for handling the affairs of the seven districts would be limited to $250 a month, and the compensation of one attorney he would be empowered to employ would not exceed $200 a month. The Governor has power to remove the liquidator from office at any time, with or without cause, and to appoint a successor.

Several suits for accountings of the affairs of the districts, and others involving validity of outstanding obligations, are pending in the courts. Several thousand suits to collect tax levies for preliminary expenses incurred by the districts also are pending.

CWA FUNDS FOR REVISING ST. CLAIR ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

511 Persons Will be Employed on $53,000 Job for Twenty-Four Days.

The St. Clair County Board of Assessors and Board of Review will employ 511 persons for 24 days, beginning tomorrow in revising its assessment system with $53,000 in funds provided yesterday by the Civil Works Administration. The Board of Supervisors will meet this afternoon at Belleville to approve expenditure of $1700 of county funds for needed supplies.

Each of the 36,610 buildings in the county will be inspected, measured and classified as to size. Another factor in determining assessments will be the district in which property is located. A card index system will make this information readily available and result, officials said, in more equitable assessments.

Employment will be given persons who have registered at the CWA bureaus. The plan will require construction engineers for surveying industrial plants, estimating clerks for residences and stenographers.

DEFENDANT TO TESTIFY IN FIRE KILLING TRIAL

Rockford Woman to Tell Her Story of Ex-Husband's Death in Auto.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 14.—The defense began its presentation of witnesses today at the trial of Mrs. May Hanson, charged with the murder of her divorced husband.

Announcement that Mrs. Hanson would testify tomorrow was made by Defense Attorney John E. Goembel shortly after the State rested its case. Goembel moved for a direct acquittal but did not argue the motion and Judge Arthur E. Fisher overruled it immediately.

Goembel also said he would present his own chemists to offset the State's expert testimony concerning the burning to death of Earl Hanson in his automobile last August. The State contends Mrs. Hanson set the car afire after she had thrown gasoline on her husband.

The defendant's sister, Miss Florence Mudler, was called to the stand today, apparently in a defense effort to discount State evidence that stains on the dress Mrs. Hanson wore the night Hanson died were made when she knelt in honeysuckle bushes alongside the lane where his car passed.

Miss Mudler testified that after the death of Hanson she went to the Hanson home and took from the mantel there a vase containing honeysuckle branches with berries on them and took them to her own home. It is the defense contention, to be brought out in arguments, that Mrs. Hanson's dress became stained in picking the bouquet, not in kneeling beside the driveway to attack her husband.

The prosecution read yesterday from a diary and letters in efforts to show a motive for the death.

The "Little Brown Book"—the diary the State maintains Mrs. Hanson wrote—made sarcastic references to Hanson. In a letter written to Hanson's employer, head of a milling machine company, were the words:

"But let me warn you that if he (Earl) is ever caught prowling around here again I'll vow he'll not look the same when he leaves."

The diary, read by Max Weston, Assistant State's Attorney, after Judge Fisher ruled it admissable, was filled with terms, "the yellow pup," "dirty skunk" and "sneaking liar." Also were entries alleging Hanson refused to buy food and that at one time a physician called to examine Mrs. Hanson found her "half-starved."

Reading of the diary—written before the Hansons' divorce a year ago—occupied most of the afternoon session.

Among the entries were:

"Dec 30, 31 (1930): June (the Hansons' daughter) and I went to Milwaukee for a visit. He left a $2 check which was supposed to take us up to Milwaukee and back. Generous?

"Jan. 2—All week I've had nothing with my coffee, so I had to walk to town to buy some yeast and flour so that I could make some coffee bread.

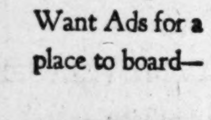
"Jan. 21—Wed.—Am half starved. Tonight I refuse to get any more meals for the yellow cur.

"Feb. 28—Earl didn't come home all night.

"Mar. 2—He come home about 2 o'clock and took out all his belongings.

"March 27 (Friday)—Ask him for some money to get something to eat. Was told at the shop office that I would get thrown out because I've asked my $800 a month man for something to eat after I've nearly starved all week."

Now, you would be agreeably surprised, wouldn't you, if—while looking through Post-Dispatch Want Ads for a place to board—



You found an advertisement in which the inducement was real "homemade pies like mother used to bake"? Well—!

$25,000 Damage to Temporary Steel Framework Caused by High Seas.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—Seven hundred feet of an 1100-foot temporary trestle on the Golden Gate bridge project were washed away by high seas last night.

Officers of the contracting firm said the trestle was a steel structure, strong enough to withstand ordinary winds and currents but that such heavy seas had not been expected. A $15,000 derrick at the end of the trestle was washed away. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Last Aug. 14, the oil tanker Sidney M. Hauptman plowed through the trestle during a fog and caused damage estimated at $20,000 and a month's delay in construction. Six weeks ago a guide tower and part of the outer end of the trestle were swept away by strong tides.

By the Associated Press.

The cases against Donnelly, John Zook and Aaron Levin, similarly charged, will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow. Four others are held on warrants charging destruction of public property, and indictments will be asked for them, Sawyers said.

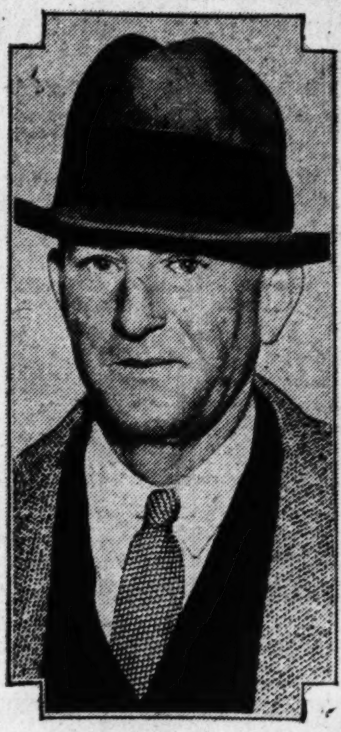
JOBLESS MAN HELD FOR IMPERSONATING FEDERAL OFFICER



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
JOHN GROVER NAGEL

ARRESTED FOR POSING AS NARCOTIC AGENT

Unemployed Shoemaker Deceived Bride With "$10,000 Job," She Tells Officers

A jobless shoeworker, whose wife of less than three weeks thought he was "a $10,000 a year Government narcotic inspector," was arrested last night after the bride had discovered the Government job was a myth.

But she forgave him today, as Federal agents prepared to seek a warrant charging John Grover Nagel, 43 years old, with impersonating a Federal officer. It was decided to hold him for further investigation, his wife leaving him with the injunction, "Now, don't do any more lying, John."

Nagel was arrested at his mother's home at 4734 South Grand avenue where his wife had gone from Hotel Statler when he failed to reappear Friday after telling her to pack up because he had instructions to report to Washington.

Nagel admitted to police and John M. Tully, narcotic inspector in charge of the Federal office here, that he was "just a fool—and I'll never do it again."

He explained, police said, that he became so discouraged after losing his job, home and wife that he "took to drinking" and when friends asked him what he was doing he would say, "Oh, I'm with the Government." His first wife divorced him in May, he said.

Shortly afterward he began to court Mrs. Charlotte James, a widow, then residing at 4750 South Grand avenue, he said, and they were married Nov. 29, going to Hotel Statler.

Mrs. Nagel thought she had married a narcotic inspector until Saturday morning when she called the narcotic office to inquire where he was.

Tully interviewed her, learned that he had told her he worked "on big cases" and traveled about the country so much that his first wife divorced him. After talking to Tully, she moved from the hotel and subsequently received a postcard from Nagel from Springfield, Mo., telling her "not to worry," that he had a rush assignment that had taken him first to Memphis, Tenn., and then to Springfield.

When he appeared last night his wife telephoned Tully, who went with Detective-Sergeant Roach and arrested him. Inquiry at the hotel developed he had failed to pay a bill there of about $45, explaining to the management he would do so as soon as his Government check arrived. Mrs. Nagel said he had borrowed $20 from her "until the check came."

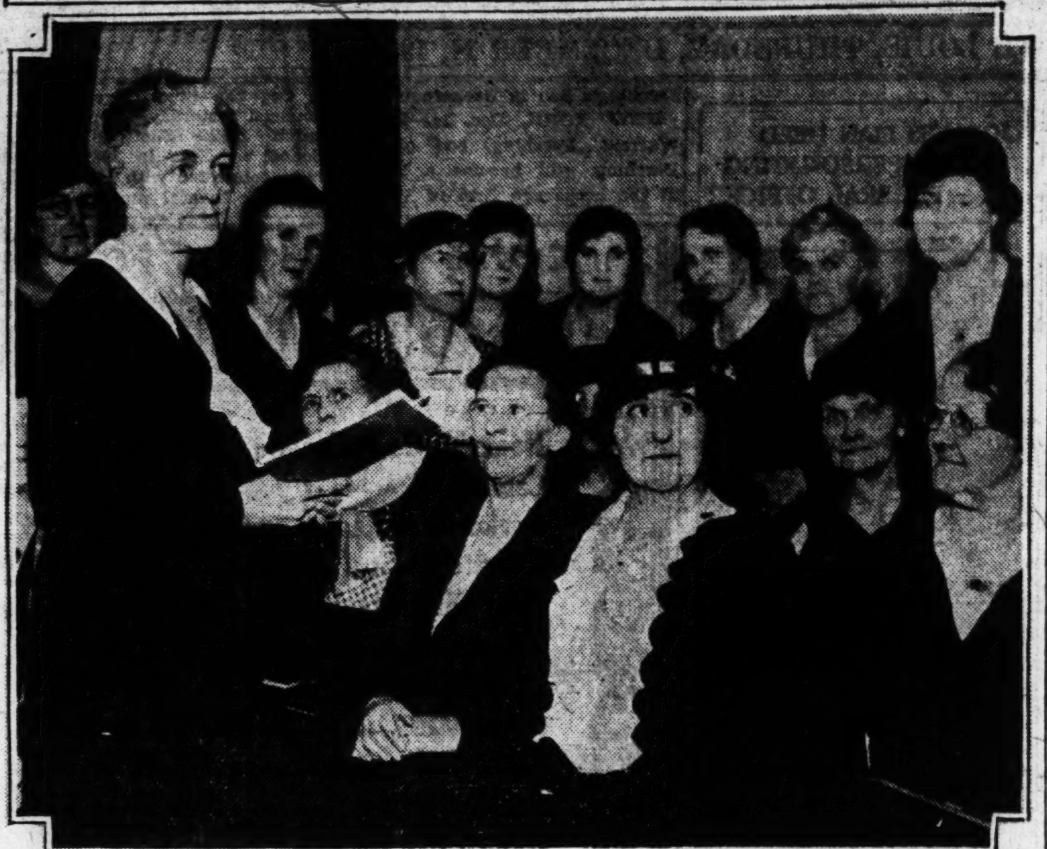
Leader of Farm Women Speaking



MRS. CHARLES W. SEWELL of Otterbein, Ind., as chairman, addressing session held in Chicago in connection with the American Farm Bureau convention. The meeting was attended by farm women from 20 states.

MILIUS SHOE CO. OFFICER SAYS STRIKERS VIOLATED AGREEMENT

He Declares Firm Will Not Arbitrate as Long as Men Are Out.

A charge that the section of the agreement between the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union and the Milius Shoe Co., prohibiting strikes or lockouts, was violated by employes, who struck Monday, was made today by William S. Milius, treasurer of the company.

Milius said the company would not arbitrate with employes as long as the latter were on strike, and he recited Section 4 of the agreement, which, he said, stated there should be neither strike nor lockout and provided for arbitration of differences arising during the term of the contract. He added that all employes on the payroll last Monday were free to return to work without prejudice.

The workers voted to strike because, they alleged, the company showed discrimination against active union members in the seasonal layoff of 165 workers in the last month. The 625 workers who walked out said their offer to reduce their working hours to keep the 165 on the payroll was disregarded by the company.

SEEKS INJUNCTION TO FORCE COLLECTIVE BARGAINING VOTE

Labor Board Calls in Attorney-General When Steel Company Prevents Election by Employes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The National Labor Board today turned over the Weirton Steel Co. case to Attorney-General Cummings with a recommendation that the chief of the Department of Justice obtain an injunction to permit the board to conduct an election at the company's plants.

"We are proceeding clearly in accordance with the law," Senator Wagner, chairman of the board, said.

The board abandoned its effort to hold the election tomorrow as originally planned. The company, although it agreed once to permit the board to supervise an election, later told the board's election supervisors they would not be allowed on the property.

Cummings began inquiry with the view to determining feasibility of seeking an injunction against company officials.

Wagner said whether heads of the company would be prosecuted for violation of the National Industrial Recovery Act had not been definitely determined.

"Our first purpose," he said, "is to see that the men have a fa chance to express their prefer for representatives for collec bargaining."

ARLOW SHAPLEY SPEAKS TO ST. LOUIS HARVARD CLUB

ells of Setting Up Seismological Station After Consulting Father Macelwane Here.

Harlow Shapley, professor of stronomy at Harvard and director the Harvard Observatory, spoke efore members of the St. Louis arvard Club at luncheon at Hotel tatler yesterday. Shapley, a naive Missourian, was on his way ome from the University of Missouri, where he had delivered a ecture.

Shapley talked of recent changes t Harvard and told of the new eismological station set up there. When we were setting it up and ince we wanted to do the thing ight," he said, "the first thing we id was to come to Father Macelwane at St. Louis University." The nstruments there are so sensitive they record the tilt of the earth caused by the incoming tide, although that must be measured in thousandths of millimeters.

He told anecdotes about Einstein and the Abbe Le Maitre, author of the theory of the expanding universe. About six years ago the Abbe had attempted to get his doctor's degree at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, using his monograph on this theory as his doctor's thesis, but "because of ome red tape," he didn't get it. The theory is now necessary as a asis for any study of cosmogony.

HARLOW SHAPLEY SPEAKS TO ST. LOUIS HARVARD CLUB

Tells of Setting Up Seismological Station After Consulting Father Macelwane Here.

Harlow Shapley, professor of astronomy at Harvard and director of the Harvard Observatory, spoke before members of the St. Louis Harvard Club at luncheon at Hotel Statler yesterday. Shapley, a native Missourian, was on his way home from the University of Missouri, where he had delivered a lecture.

Shapley talked of recent changes at Harvard and told of the new seismological station set up there. "When we were setting it up and since we wanted to do the thing right," he said, "the first thing we did was to come to Father Macelwane at St. Louis University." The instruments there are so sensitive they record the tilt of the earth caused by the incoming tide, although that must be measured in thousandths of millimeters.

He told anecdotes about Einstein and the Abbe Le Maitre, author of the theory of the expanding universe. About six years ago the Abbe had attempted to get his doctor's degree at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, using his monograph on this theory as his doctor's thesis, but "because of some red tape," he didn't get it. The theory is now necessary as a basis for any study of cosmogony.

ST. LOUIS INVESTMENT HOUSES CONSIDER ARKANSAS PLAN

Large Part of $47,142,000 Road Bond Issue Sold Here; Gov. Futrell Calls Conference.

A committee representing St. Louis investment houses which handled Arkansas road improvement district bonds will confer with Gov. Futrell of Arkansas at Little Rock tomorrow on a new plan which has been proposed for refunding of the bonds.

A large part of the $47,142,000 road district bonds outstanding was sold by St. Louis houses, and Gov. Futrell has stated he wishes assurance of the St. Louis dealers that the holders of the bonds whom they represent will accept the new plan before he calls a special session of the Legislature to enact it into law. It is proposed that new 25-year bonds bearing 3 per cent interest be issued to take up the old road district bonds on which the interest rate varies from 4½ to 6 per cent.

The chairman of the St. Louis committee is Kelton E. White of G. H. Walker & Co. Members who are to confer with Gov. Futrell are I. A. Long of the Mercantile-Commerce Co.; R. D. Kercheval of the Boatmen's National Co., and Roy Dickey of Whitaker & Co. The committee met today but deferred a decision on the question of recommending acceptance of the new bonds.

CORONER'S JURY FINDS MINERS KILLED EACH OTHER

Little New Evidence Other Than Testimony That Pair Had Not Quarreled in Cafe.

HARRISBURG, Ill., Dec. 14.—After listening to 12 witnesses, a Coroner's jury last night returned a verdict finding William Swain and Clyde Williams, leaders of rival mine union factions, killed each other in a fight on the main street of Galatia Saturday night.

Little new evidence was brought out at the inquest that there had been no quarrel between Williams and Swain in the Lambert Restaurant, across the street from the scene of the shooting, as had been reported previously.

Loren Pittman, like Swain, a leader in the United Mine Workers, who was wounded in the fight, is recovering in a hospital at West Frankfort.

$2000 DIAMOND RING STOLEN FROM JEWELRY STORE TRAY

Salesman Finds $200 One in Its Place After Waiting on Two Young Women.

Theft of a $2000 diamond ring was reported to police yesterday by Ernest C. Beger, salesman for the Hess & Culbertson Jewelry Co., Ninth and Olive streets.

Beger said two well-dressed young women visited the store, asked to look at diamond rings valued at $900 or more, and after a half hour, departed. He discovered later that a $200 ring had been put in place of one valued at $2000.

8 FIRMS LOSE BLUE EAGLES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — The Recovery Administration has ordered the surrender of the Blue Eagle by eight establishments which were charged with violating the re-employment agreement. They are: Iroquois Laundry, Buffalo, N. Y.; R. M. Baker Beer Garden, Fort Worth, Tex.; Boston Model Bakery, Haverhill, Mass.; White House Cafe, Pensacola, Fla.; White House Restaurant, Portland, Ore.; Blue Boar Cafeteria, Atlanta, Ga.; White Cigar Store, Norfolk, Va., and Merchants' Milling Co., Hagerstown, Md.

Some of these were reported to have promised compliance after local investigation and to have continued underpaying and overworking their help. One was charged with "boasting of the fact that they have not had to comply nor do they intend to do so." Several pleaded they were too poor to comply but the local boards found the evidence otherwise.

BROTHER IS INJURED

Motor Car Skids on Gravel on Highway 74, Overturns.

One man was killed and his brother was seriously injured, shortly after noon today when an automobile in which they were returning to Chaffee from Cape Girardeau, skidded on gravel and overturned on Highway 74, just south of the city.

Fred Lenon of Chaffee was killed instantly, crushed to death under the 1927 model Nash roadster in which the pair were riding. His brother, Raleigh, has a probable fracture of the skull and a broken right shoulder blade.

From the Cape Girardeau Southeast Missourian. November 29, 1933.

Fred Lenon's policy had been in effect only 4 days! The accident occurred before it was necessary for him to pay the first premium on the policy, although by his own wish he had made an advance payment of one month's premium.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Specialties pushed upward in a rather quiet stock market today, while the majority of issues were content to follow a steady routine. Heaviness of grains was a retarding factor, although there was little selling pressure evident except in a few spots. The close was mildly irregular. Transfers approximated 1,550,000 shares.

The dollar had a relapse in foreign exchange dealings despite the fact that the gold price again was unchanged. Sterling was up more than 7 cents and French francs rallied around .13 of a cent. Wheat dropped about 1½ cents a bushel and other cereals eased. Cotton was fairly steady, however, and silver recovered. United States Government securities were a bit hesitant, but some corporation bonds improved.

Some of the principal share gainers eased off near the close. Allied Chemical, up more than 5 at one time, finished around 4. Auburn was up about 2 after an early advance of 4. The metals, including United States Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, McIntyre and Alaska Juneau, came back for gains of 1 to about 3 points on the hope that the gold price might be raised tomorrow. Among gainers of fractions [illegible] 1 or more were United States Steel, Case, American Commercial Alcohol, du Pont, Chrysler, American Can, Union Pacific and Continental Can. American Telephone, ex-dividend, dropped 2½, Western Union was off 2 and American Tobacco B lost more than 2. There were a number of small declines.

Wheat finished with losses of ¼ [illegible] ½ cent a bushel. Corn was off ⅝ [illegible] ⅞ of a cent and oats were ¼ lower to ⅛ higher. Barley and rye were up ½ to down ¾. Winnipeg wheat was slightly lower. Cotton eased 15 to 25 cents a bale. Bar silver was advanced ¾ of a cent an ounce to 43¼ cents.

The British pound, at mid-afternoon, was up 7½ cents at $5.11½, and French francs showed a gain of [illegible] a cent at 6.14 cents. Dutch guilders were strong, advancing [illegible] cents to 63 cents, and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs moved up [illegible] and .65 of a cent, respectively. The Canadian dollar gained ¼ of a cent at 100.25 cents.

News of the Day.

While Wall street appeared somewhat disappointed that the gold [illegible] was not given a small tilt—there were rumors late yesterday that this would be done—the financial district seemed resigned to stabilization possibilities. Leading bankers were skeptical regarding any immediate monetary agreement.

In Financial Field.

The RFC rounded out a fortnight [illegible] no change in its daily gold price, which has been $34.01 since Dec. 1. Sterling opened at $5.07, up 3 cents, and French francs at 6.06 [illegible] .05 cent.

The weekly Bank of France statement disclosed a smaller gold loss [illegible]00 francs, compared with 450,000,000 in the previous report [illegible] ratio was down very slightly.

Wall street expects that the Federal reserve statement, to be published tomorrow, will show another substantial increase in bill purchases. The New York bank has been an active buyer of acceptances this week, which has seen firmer money markets. Aid thus rendered is understood to have brought a substantial boost in member banks' excess reserves.

Day's 10 Most Active Stocks.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 3 TO 5 POINTS LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—After selling off a few points during today's early trading in response to relatively easy Liverpool Cables, cotton turned steadier on a little trade buying and covering promoted by rallies in foreign exchange and steadiness in the stock market. March contracts sold up from 10.11 to 10.19 or about 2 points net higher and the mid-afternoon market was quiet within a point or so of yesterday's closing quotations.

Futures closed steady, 3-5 lower, Dec. 9.93n; Jan. 9.95; March 10.13-14; May 10.26-@10.27; July 10.40@10.41; Oct. 10.60. Spot quiet; middling 10.15. nNominal.

Dec. opened, 9.97; Jan., 9.97; March, 10.12; May, 10.26; July, 10.40; Oct., 10.59.

There was also some selling here through houses with foreign connections, but initial offerings were absorbed by trade buying and a little commission house demand encouraged by the opening tone of the stock market. January liquidation continued in evidence after the opening with considerable switching of January to later deliveries, but general business was quiet after the call and prices held fairly steady. March contracts after selling off to 10.11 under the early pressure rallied to 10.14, active months showing net losses of about two to four points before session had gone far.

The market remained quiet later in the morning but showed a generally steady tone in sympathy with the action of the Stock Market and a rally in foreign exchange. March contracts worked up to 10.17 with the general market ruling within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing quotations at midday.

The Census Bureau report showing 475,368 bales consumed in this country for November against 502,434 last year, was slightly under expectations, but attracted no special attention as an immediate market factor.

WHEAT CLOSES NERVOUS AT A PRICE DECLINE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Notable setbacks of grain markets took place late today following a moderate show of strength earlier.

Weakness of corn became a decided bearish factor, with considerable stop loss selling in evidence. Large receipts of corn at Northwestern markets attracted attention together with reports that some farmers in Minnesota and South Daokta were reluctant about accepting the Government loan policy as to corn.

Wheat closed nervous, ¼@1½ under yesterday's finish, corn ⅝@⅞ off, oats ¼ down to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Grain prices averaged higher early today, influenced by upturns of securities. Besides, cable reported a better feeling in the Liverpool wheat market with shorts disposed to cover. Opening ⅛@⅝c up, wheat afterwards reacted somewhat. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ higher, and subsequently altered little.

In the wheat market, deferred futures showed a rise of more than a cent a bushel later. Some notice was taken of comment that more rain was again needed in domestic winter wheat territory southwest. On the other hand, December contracts representing wheat now in bins here showed a downward price trend, on account of liquidating sales by traders unwilling to accept delivery.

Corn and oats displayed more of a lagging tendency than recently. Domestic primary receipts of corn were liberal, 904,000 bushels against 426,000 a week ago and 326,000 at this time last year.

Provisions offerings were scarce, and the market advanced.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Raw sugar was quiet early today and no sales were reported. The undertone, however, was easier and it was believed that nearby sugars could be obtained at concessions of 1-32c from last paid spot prices, or 3.20c, but refiners showed no interest. Philippines for December-January shipment were still offered at 3.15c.

Futures opened unchanged to 1 point higher on a little covering and commission house buying, but soon weakened under renewed liquidation and selling by producing interests. The inactivity in the spot market was probably responsible for the selling, while aside from covering on the scale down there was little support in evidence. January contracts, after selling at 1.15c, declined to 1.14c, while March sold off from 1.21c to 1.19c, with the market at mid-day ruling around the lows and from 1 to 2 points below the previous close.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.40c for fine granulated, with a fair inquiry reported.

Futures closed steady, 1 to 2 lower; sales 11,050 tons. Dec. 1.14n; Jan. 1.14b; March 1.19@1.20; May 1.25; July 1.3[illegible]@1.32; Sept. 1.36.

Dry Goods Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Cotton goods were steady Thursday on a basis of 6⅝ cents asked for January-February delivery of print cloths. Burlaps were quieter and steady. Tweed effects are sought in spring dress goods. Shipments of rayon orders show some increase.

MODERATE RISE IN LATE BOND TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Bond prices moved up moderately in the late trading to close from fractions to 2 points higher over a large part of the list, most prime corporate issues improved slightly.

U. S. Governments showed a preponderance of declines ranging from 1-32d to 9-32ds of a point. Some series of the Treasury 3⅜s were up 2-32ds.

A sharp advance in communications issues, notably International Telephone and Postal Telegraph, brought heavy realizing but some of the gains were saved to the close.

Foreign bonds were in an irregular range throughout the session.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Raw sugar was quiet early today and no sales were reported. The undertone, however, was easier and it was believed that nearby sugars could be obtained at concessions of 1-32c from last paid spot prices, or 3.20c, but refiners showed no interest. Philippines for December-January shipment were still offered at 3.15c.

Futures opened unchanged to 1 point higher on a little covering and commission house buying, but soon weakened under renewed liquidation and selling by producing interests. The inactivity in the spot market was probably responsible for the selling, while aside from covering on the scale down there was little support in evidence. January contracts, after selling at 1.15c, declined to 1.14c, while March sold off from 1.21c to 1.19c, with the market at mid-day ruling around the lows and from 1 to 2 points below the previous close.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.40c for fine granulated, with a fair inquiry reported.

Futures closed steady, 1 to 2 lower; sales 11,050 tons. Dec. 1.14n; Jan. 1.14b; March 1.19@1.20; May 1.25; July 1.31@1.32; Sept. 1.36.

MODERATE RISE IN LATE BOND TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Bond prices moved up moderately in the late trading to close from fractions to 2 points higher over a large part of the list, most prime corporate issues improved slightly.

U. S. Governments showed a preponderance of declines ranging from 1-32d to 9-32ds of a point. Some series of the Treasury 3⅜s were up 2-32ds.

A sharp advance in communications issues, notably International Telephone and Postal Telegraph, brought heavy realizing but some of the gains were saved to the close.

Foreign bonds were in an irregular range throughout the session.

CWA AWARDS FUNDS FOR TUBERCULIN TESTS

All Missouri Cattle to Be Included in Project—Fund of $27,700 Alotted.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 14.—Dr. H. E. Curry, State Veterinarian, announced yesterday that his division of the State Department of Agriculture had been allotted $27,700 of Federal Civil Works Administration funds, to carry on bovine tuberculosis eradication work and for testing of dairy herds.

The allotment, approved by Wallace Crossley, State director of the CWA, will provide employment for 84 persons, including 40 veterinarians, until Feb. 15. Virtually all of the fund will be used in testing herds for tuberculosis. Work will be started Monday in Bates, Dade and Saline Counties. Dr. Curry said he could not estimate how many counties would receive testing work.

Dr. Curry applied for an allotment of $49,700, but this was reduced to $27,700 by the CWA in approving the project.

An application has been made by Dr. Curry to the Federal Agricultural Adjustment Administration for an additional $398,000 of Federal funds to carry on bovine tuberculosis eradication work in the State, but has not been notified whether the application will be granted.

The CWA allotment makes no provision for payment of herd owners for tuberculous cows which are destroyed. This indemnity now is paid from Federal State and local funds.

At present only 28 of the 114 counties in Missouri are rated as modified accredited counties, as to bovine tuberculosis. This rating means that less than one-half of 1 per cent of the cattle in the county are tuberculous. Jefferson County is the only Missouri county in the St. Louis area with this rating.

RETIRED INVENTOR, ILL, KILLS INVALID DAUGHTER AND SELF

General Electric Employe for 32 Years Leaves Note Saying, "I Can't Go Any Further."

By the Associated Press.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Leaving his sick chair, Charles T. Hentschel, 65-year-old retired inventor, staggered yesterday into the kitchen, where his invalid daughter sat playing with paper dolls, shot her twice through the heart, and then returned to his chair and fatally shot himself.

The daughter, Elizabeth, was 26 years old. Both she and her father, according to neighbors, required constant care. The father had been thought to be unable to walk. In a note to his wife, Hentschel said: "I can't go any further. I have taken Elizabeth with me. Your husband, Charles."

Mrs. Hentschel had gone downtown when the shooting occurred. She found the bodies when she returned.

Until last January, Hentschel had been employed by the General Electric Co. and was known as an able inventor. Among the jobs on which he worked during his 32 years there was the designing of the Panama Canal locks. His retirement pension was said to have been enough for the support of the family.

SLAYER OF 3 IN OKLAHOMA STORE AN ESCAPED CONVICT

Youth With Girl Companion Held in Killings in Attempted Holdup.

By the Associated Press.

TALOGA, Ok., Dec. 14.—A youth held with 19-year-old Cleo Owens, in the killing of three persons in the attempted holdup of a country store at Fay, Ok., Tuesday, was identified yesterday as Fred Streetman, an escaped convict from the state penitentiary. County Attorney Ralph Gilchrist said he would file murder charges against Streetman and the girl.

Sheriff C. C. Jones, who reported that Streetman had confessed, said the prisoner disclosed his identity when the officer visited him in a nearby county jail where he was taken for safekeeping.

Streetman escaped from the penitentiary at McAlester last Aug. 18. He was sentenced to five years from Bryan County for automobile theft.

THE finest talent alive! The funniest comedians . . . the sweetest singers . . . the smoothest conductors of the biggest bands! Make them walk smack into your living room, gather the family around, and listen to the greatest show on earth—for a gate price of about one cent an evening!

A radio does this for you. If you've been limping along without one, get one quick, and see what fun it is to stay home nights. If you've got an old one that has served its time and is weak on tone but strong on static, treat yourself to a good one for Christmas. That's only fair. Otherwise you'll be blaming distinguished tenors for wheezing that's not in them . . . or you might honestly believe that world famous fiddlers squeak! The greatest show in the world deserves to be heard true.

If you already have a good radio, turn it on oftener and know what's doing. The electricity it eats up won't do you any harm—not with St. Louis' new rate, the lowest in the United States.

Talk to your electrical dealer about radios and other Christmas presents, too. Electrical appliances make the best ever, and they are surprisingly low in price.

TO INHERIT BIRTHDAY THAT R. L. STEVENSON FORMALLY GAVE AUNT

MISS ANITA LESLIE

DAUGHTER of Shane Leslie, English novelist, and niece and namesake of Mrs. Bourke Cockran. Mrs. Cockran, as a girl, met Robert Louis Stevenson, famous writer, in Samoa, in 1891. In conversation she complained of the fact that her birthday fell on Christmas, virtually depriving her of an extra gala day each year. Stevenson whimsically drew up a formidable legal deed of gift bestowing his own birthday, Nov. 13, on Mrs. Cockran. Mrs. Cockran now says she intends to bequeath the birthday to her niece in her will. If either Mrs. Cockran or Miss Leslie ever fails to observe the day, the rights revert to the President of the United States. Stevenson stipulated that the day be observed by "sporting fine raiment, eating rich meats and receipt of gifts, compliments and copies of verse."

CARTHAGE, HIGGINSVILLE AND LEBANON VOTE BOND ISSUES

Securities Will Be Used to Obtain Public Works Loans and Grants.

Bond issue proposals for municipal improvements with aid of Federal Public Works funds were approved in special elections Tuesday at Carthage, Lebanon and Higginsville.

Proposals totaling $153,000 for school improvements, a municipal park and two viaducts were approved at Carthage by votes of more than 11 to 1. Lebanon voters approved an $80,000 issue for construction of a city sewer system by a vote of 132" to 200. Higginsville voted 687 to 296 in favor of a $24,000 issue for a municipal swimming pool and sewer extension.

The Lebanon project, which will include main and lateral sewers and a disposal plant, will give employment to 250 men for eight months. The total cost will approximate $120,000, of which $32,000 will be received in Federal aid.

The Federal grant would increase the expenditures at Carthage to $250,000. The public works program, if approved by the Federal Government, will get under way about the middle of February.

FOR PWA FUND FOR CHURCHES

A public works allotment for church repairs, virtually suspended since 1929, was recommended yesterday in a letter addressed to President Roosevelt by the Leaded Glass Association of St. Louis.

Pointing out that virtually all such work was done by hand and would employ craftsmen unfitted for other work because of specialized training, and therefore not reached by Federal, state and municipal building, the letter stated, "A relatively small amount of money would provide a vast amount of local employment in cities, towns and hamlets, and if funds were made available in the form of loans at a low rate of interest and extended over a long period of time, many churches could and would take advantage of the opportunity."

TO GET JOBS FOR VETERANS

State headquarters for a Veterans' Public Works and Civil Works Administration employment service will be established in Jefferson City, it is announced by Mrs. Mary Edna Cruzen, State Labor Commissioner. Dr. Neal D. Williams, of Excelsior Springs, Mo., recently was appointed Missouri Supervisor of Veterans' Placement Service by W. Frank Persons, Director in the Department of Labor.

Activities of various veterans' employment groups will be co-ordinated under the new arrangements. Preferential claim of veterans for PWA and CWA jobs was established in connection with legislation setting up the governmental agencies.

25-YEAR PRISON TERMS FOR FOUR IN ROBBERY

Two Convicted by Jury in Postoffice Holdup — Two Others Plead Guilty.

Four 25-year prison sentences will be meted out to participants in the robbery of the Preetorius Branch Postoffice, 3501 South Jefferson avenue, last Sept. 7, a holdup which was planned in order to cover up a $120 shortage in a postal clerk's stamp account.

The former postal clerk, Angeles W. Bowman, and another defendant, Charles Hines, were convicted yesterday by a jury in Federal Judge Faris' court which deliberated only 15 minutes. John L. Hert, who pleaded guilty at the start of the trial, was sentenced today and the fourth man, Thomas M. Bugg Sr., pleaded guilty and was sentenced last week. The sentences are mandatory for assaulting and endangering the life of a postal employe, with which the four were charged.

Bowman and Hines offered only two character witnesses in their defense. When their counsel asked for sentence to be deferred until motions for a new trial could be filed, Judge Faris said he was satisfied with the verdict and that such proceedings would be unnecessary.

The four defendants were arrested within 48 hours after the robbery and more than half the $3239 loot recovered by Postoffice Inspectors.

According to the testimony of Bugg, a Government witness, Bowman suggested the robbery because of the shortage in his stamp account at the station. Bugg, at that time head of the Bus Drivers' Union and previously a bank president, said he engaged Hert and Hines, former bus drivers, to hold up two of Bowman's fellow employes.

Bowman made a series of fake telephone calls to the station from supposed savings depositors, asking that $3000 be taken to the station for withdrawal. Off duty on the evening of the robbery, he remained in a saloon while Bugg took the holdup men to the station in an automobile and aided in the escape. The stamp shortage was discovered next day before Bowman could make it up with $120 worth of stamps bought by a friend at the Main Postoffice.

Further investigation resulted in the arrest of Bugg, Hert and Hines. The latter two were identified as the holdup men by Lorenzo O. Scheller and Harry G. Rothweller, clerks on duty at the time.

CITY ANSWERS SUIT ON WASHINGTON U. TAX

The city's argument, in its controversy with Washington University over a tax bill of $183,003 on the university's income-producing realty within the city limits, is contained in an answer, filed today in Judge Calhoun's court, to a suit instituted by the university last March.

The university sued to enjoin the City Collector from collecting the tax bill. It set forth that the university was exempted from taxes by the charter granted by the Legislature in 1853 to Eliot Seminary, and continuing in effect for the present institution.

The real estate in question, which the city is attempting to tax, is not used for school purposes, but its rentals form an important part of the university's income.

In the answer, prepared by City Counselor Hay and J. Wesley McAfee, the city states that the realty is subject to taxation under State law, and that no part of it is entitled to exemption.

"A portion of the property is subject to mortgages to secure indebtedness," the citys' answer says. "The mortgages are held by private individuals, who are not entitled to have their security enhanced by tax exemption."

The city contends also that the university should have made its protest to the city Board of Equalization or the State Tax Commission.

New Ford V·8 for 1934

Greater power at still lower cost through new Dual Carburetion—Increased motoring comfort because of simplified Clear-vision Ventilation—Easier riding through more flexible springs, deeper seat cushions and softer cushion springs—Distinctive new appearance—Many other features

1 More Miles Per Gallon—More Power, Speed and Efficiency with Dual Carburetion—Greater Oil Economy

The performance and economy of the 1933 Ford V-8 have been the talk of thousands of motorists. Owners said: "Leave it alone, don't change it." Dealers said: "Impossible to improve it!" But we have improved it—in every direction. We started with the engine. The Ford V-8 for 1934 is more powerful, more efficient, easier to start in cold weather, yet it is the most economical Ford to operate ever built—largely because of the new Dual Carburetor and Dual Intake Manifold. Furthermore, even in the coldest weather the V-8 engine warms up quickly and maintains an efficient operating temperature because of new thermostats in the waterline.

Added engine refinements—get the details about all of them from the nearest Ford dealer—reduce oil consumption and further reduce operating and maintenance costs.

2 Clear-vision Ventilation—and the Windshield Opens

There's nothing to obstruct the view in the new Ford system of Clear-vision Ventilation. It's built-in—simplicity itself. The same handle that raises the window glass also slides it back horizontally to the ventilating position, and then the forward motion of the car draws the air out of the body. Drafts are eliminated, passenger comfort is assured, and windshield will not fog in cold weather. Another interesting feature of the Ford system—the windshield can be opened! This, and the cowl ventilator, provide the additional air needed for hot-weather comfort.

Put It to the Test
Ride in this New Ford V-8 for 1934 and find out—personally—what it can do. It is the one sure way to find out which car gives you the most for your money.

3 Greater Beauty—New Radiator Shell and Grille—Fenders in Color

A car to be proud of, the Ford V-8 for 1934 has newly designed chromium-plated radiator shell and grille, and other distinctive features. Interiors are more attractive, with new tufted upholstery, new mouldings, new cove-type headlining, new instrument panel, new arm rests and new hardware. Swivel-type sun visors in De Luxe bodies prevent glare from front or side.

Fenders on all De Luxe cars are in color to harmonize with body colors—wheel colors optional. New enamel finish on all bodies and fenders has greater wearing quality and more enduring luster.

4 Transverse Springs—Comfort with Stability and Safety

Ford transverse springs provide the utmost stability and safety. Placed crosswise, they tend to prevent the body from tilting on uneven roads, and turns can be taken safely at relatively high speeds. Free and easy action of all four wheels is permitted because the outer flexible tips of the springs are attached to the axles. Thus the most sensitive parts of the springs receive road shocks first and absorb them before they reach the body. The advantages of the solid axle are retained.

What the Baseball Magnates Did

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Latest developments from the major league baseball meetings:

PLAYER DEALS.

St. Louis Browns traded Outfielder Carl Reynolds for Pitcher Ivy Andrews and Outfielder Smead Jolley of Red Sox and sent Jolley, Pitcher Wallace Hebert and Shortstop Jim Levey to Hollywood for Shortstop Allen Strange.

Dale Alexander, American League batting champion in 1932, was sent to Kansas City of the American Association with Pitcher Curtis Fullerton and Outfielders Harry Stumpf and Mel Alameda by Red Sox.

Browns bought Outfielders George Puccinello and Ray Pepper, formerly with Cardinals, from Rochester.

Detroit sold Outfielder Billy Rhiel to Montreal.

GENERAL.

Gerald Nugent, president of the Philadelphia Nationals, said Burt Shotton is still the Philly manager. Shotton isn't attending the meetings here.

The all-star baseball game will be played annually, the next game to be played at New York next July.

The Cubs and Chuck Klein came to an agreement on salary terms. His salary was reported to have been fixed at somewhere between $21,000 and $28,000.

By J. Roy Stockton.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Raymond Pepper and George Puccinelli, outfielders, have been purchased by the Browns from the Rochester club of the International League, a Cardinal farm, Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis American League club, announced this morning. Pepper and Puccinelli, who had trials in Cardinal uniforms in recent years, will be given a chance to win jobs in the Brownie outfield, one position having been made vacant by the trade of Carl Reynolds to the Red Sox, announced yesterday.

Reynolds was sent to the Boston club in exchange for Pitcher Ivy Andrews, Outfielder Smead Jolley and cash which was used to purchase Pepper and Puccinelli. The Browns then traded Jolley, Jim Levey and Pitcher Wallace Hebert to the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League for Shortstop Allen Strange.

Strange, according to Bill Lane of the Hollywood club, is one of the best prospects developed on the coast in recent years. He is 24 years old, well built for infield service and is described as a brilliant fielder. He batted .320 for Hollywood last year and is said to have shown steady improvement during his four years in organized baseball. He spent two years in the Piedmont League and two on the coast.

"I believe Puccinelli and Pepper will add punch to our club," Hornsby said. "They are right-handed hitters and can drive a ball a long way. It will help their morale to know they have an excellent chance to win regular jobs. When they were tried by the Cardinals they were under the handicap of trying to take a job away from regulars, and that is a pretty steep hill for young ball players to climb. I have seen them and know what they can do and am satisfied that they will help us."

Branch Rickey of the Cardinals always has been a booster of Pepper, and after Hafey was traded to Cincinnati, Pepper was considered a replacement for the California slugger. However, he tried too hard to fill Hafey's shoes and the result was that he did not play up to his normal ability. Puccinelli, making his first appearance in the big leagues during the late weeks of a season while Street was manager, helped to win several games with home runs, but was sent back to the minors, the Cardinals having an over-supply of outfielders at the time.

While the Browns were making the transactions the club owners of the two major leagues were doing a great deal of talking. The National Leaguers spent several hours discussing what was described as a much brighter outlook in Cincinnati, where new local capital was said to be interested in the club.

Then there was much moaning over the heavy burden of taxation on baseball, President Heydler, pointing out that the National League paid more than $600,000 during the past year in various kinds of taxes, including $370,000 to the Government in admission taxes, which, by the way, the cash customers actually paid. Heydler also helped to spoil the day for the magnates by citing several ladies' day games at which the home club collected more money for the Government in admission taxes than it could pay the visiting club as its share for putting on the day's show.

Meantime, the American League magnates devoted all of the hours of their meeting to a discussion of the revision of the agreement which binds together the eight clubs in a baseball partnership. The agreement now in force was signed in 1910 for a 25-year period and a new one will be ready for adoption before expiration of the old one in 1935.

Heydler and Will Harridge, president of the American League, were appointed a committee to arrange for a stupendous, mammoth celebration in 1939, which will be the 100th anniversary of the laying out of the first baseball diamond. One hundred years ago, come 1939, Abner Doubleday placed home plate and three bases, 90 feet apart in what they call a diamond, but which really is a square, and the plot of ground where Abner did his little trick is still preserved at Cooperstown, N. Y., as a municipal park. The leagues will celebrate the occasion and have asked John Picus Quinn, who pitched for Doubleday that afternoon, to try to be on hand for the 1939 contest.

Facts About the New Browns

George Pucinelli batted to an average of .294 in the International League last season. His total of 149 hits, included 29 doubles, four triples and 15 home runs. He scored 75 runs and batted in 89.

Ray Pepper, who finished with .289, also was something of a slugger. In 141 games, he made 156 hits, which number included 30 doubles, four triples and 11 homers. Scoring 71 runs, he batted in 97.

Allen Strange played 133 games for the Coast League team, pounding out 159 hits, scoring 90 runs and batting in 81. Included in his safeties were 28 doubles, five triples and six homers.

All three swing from the right side of the plate.

Paul Ivy Andrews, the pitcher from the Red Sox, won seven games and lost 13, while working 140 innings in 1933. He yielded an average of close to five runs a game. He walked 61 batters and struck out but 37.

Meeting Notes.

Clyde "Buzzy" Wares, Cardinal coach, will be one of Ray Doan's professors at his Hot Springs Baseball School in the spring.

The Boston Red Sox assigned Dale Alexander to the Kansas City club, thereby delaying the consummation of the Browns' deal with Boston, as Hornsby wanted Alexander for the Milwaukee club.

Cincinnati still is without a manager and Marty McManus still is in the running for that job, along with Jim Bottomley, Bob O'Farrell and Bill Killefer.

The grapevine carried a report here that there had been a fist fight during Tuesday's National League meeting, when a club official questioned the right of an official of another club to attend the meeting.

Several big league clubs were said to be interested when it was announced that Harold "Muddy" Ruel, after 19 years of service, had been given his unconditional release by the Browns.

Carnera Willing To Box Loughran In Miami, Feb. 22

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Upon his arrival today for a brief visit necessitated by his pending bankrutpcy proceedings, Primo Carnera promptly declared a willingness to defend the world heavyweight boxing title against Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia contender, in Miami, Fla., next Feb. 22.

Carnera and his American manager, Bill Duffy, were slated to confer with Madison Square Garden officials later in the day. The giant Italian said he had no other fistic engagements in Europe and would return to the United States for any suitable match.

Carnera, traveling alone on the Conte di Savoia, will sail for Italy tomorrow night on the same liner in order to be home for Christmas.

He went to bankruptcy court for a hearing this morning on the proceedings begun last summer, following his victory over Jack Sharkey for the world title. The Italian made no money from that fight and declared himself otherwise "broke."

Three Trades Brought These New Players to the Browns

SCHOOL BASKET DOUBLEHEADERS BEGIN TOMORROW

By Harold Tuthill.

Beaumont, Missouri State high school basketball champion, will open the defense of its City League honors, when it opposes Central, tomorrow afternoon at Beaumont, at 3:30 o'clock. In the other game of the afternoon, Roosevelt is host to Soldan.

From a survey of the squads in the league, it is apparent that the race will be closer this season than it has been for some time, since Beaumont will have only two lettermen—Bill Panos and Bob Gerst—in its debut lineup. George Toberman, the third veteran of the squad, has been out with sore ribs for two weeks and it is doubtful that he will start.

Beaumont Lineup.

Besides Panos at forward, Coach Raymond G. Polster will use Adolph Uhlemeyer. Arthur Kerls, a freshman, will hold down one of the guards and George Gruenewald the other. Gerst will start at center. Chief among Polster's reserves is Mel Nickel, who with Panos, will only be eligible until the next semester begins.

It will be an experienced team that Coach Vern Bradburn sends against Beaumont, because four of the boys earned their letters last year. They are Elmer Serb, forward; Ralph Dorsey, center, and Bernard Duncan and Richard Douglas, guards. The fifth member of the five will be either Courtland Schultz or Bud Stelzer, at forward.

The battle between Roosevelt and Soldan will be an experiment, as there are mostly newcomers on the two squads. The only Rough Rider who returned is Capt. Bob Graul, who will start at right guard. Bob's brother, Walter, will be at one forward, and Dick Hill at the other. Ed Gaebler will jump center and Ray Hoehle will be Bob Graul's running mate, according to Coach Walther Lorenzen. The Roosevelt second team consists of Milton Gaebler and Wilbert Berg, forwards; Henry Boecler and Wilbur Foeste, centers, and Paul Lehner and Marlowe Jovaag, guards.

Soldan's strength is as much an unknown quantity as Roosevelt's. Coach Harry White lost his entire first team by graduation and one thing and another, so he has to start from scratch. He picked as his probable starting five Dick Dougherty and Sam Kleg, forwards; Albert Ratz, center, and Charles McClellan and Stephen Kaufman, guards.

At Field House.

White also announced that Soldan's game with Central will be played as a preliminary to the Illinois-Washington contest at the Field House, Dec. 22, as a compliment to Capt. Hudson Hellmich of Illinois, who graduated from Soldan.

The opening gun in the City League campaign will be fired this afternoon when McKinley's Goldbugs do their stuff on their home floor at Emmaus Church, 2617 Shenandoah, against Cleveland, at 3:30 o'clock.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Cannie Connie.

BEFORE we dry up our lachrymal fountains needlessly, let us pause and consider whether there is anything to sob about in the predicament of that venerable and revered baseball leader, Cornelius McGillicuddy.

Many mournful outpourings have been written about Connie's sad case. But there is a decidedly optimistic side to the shield.

MACK.

To begin with, there are other magnates than Connie in worse financial distress. And most of these will remain in that situation for another season.

But Connie, by one move—a master stroke—has relieved himself of his burden, put a surplus into his treasury, and will take the field next campaign with a team that may take considerable whipping before it is crowded out of the running.

Makes a Virtue of Necessity.

REPORTS say that Mack received somewhere between $200,000 and $300,000 and several players, for five of his stars. If so he received plenty and his losses in playing strength are not nearly so heavy as they might seem at first sight.

To begin with, two of the players sold will be 35 years old next season, two will be 34 and the other will be 31. The usefulness of four of these men as stars has been greatly impaired. Grove, the remaining one, cannot reasonably have more than two years more of service at his best.

Connie, therefore, received a quarter of a million dollars for players whom he might have had to sell for the waiver price or release unconditionally had he retained them two or three years longer.

In fact, it appears to us that Connie has made a virtue out of his necessity and turned a very good trick for his club.

A Jubilee Aftermath.

NEVERTHELESS, there is something pathetic in the fact that the very year in which Connie Mack held the "jubilee" celebrating the fiftieth year of his connection with baseball found him back at the starting point of all his baseball endeavors. Beginning over again in the seventies is seldom a cheerful undertaking.

For those who think that Organized Baseball is a rainbow with a pot of gold at each end, we recommend a scrutiny of Mack's case.

He began on borrowed capital, many years ago. He won championship after championship—and in 1914 he was still so far from prosperity that he had to break up his championship team and sell it to obtain funds.

It took him 15 years to build up again. Seven of those years were spent in last place—and then once more he won to the top and won three championships in a row.

Two years later found him again in the hands of the bankers and yesterday saw him forced to sell his star players in order to finance his team for next season and lift its burden of debt.

"Just Around the Corner."

BUT Connie is youthfully hopeful at 70. He knows that he still has almost a team in the person of Jimmy Foxx. He will take the field with some very creditable young players like Higgins, a real find, and Pitcher Cain, who showed great promise last season. He has the makings of a good infield with Higgins, McNair, Williams, Warstler, Foxx and others available; and some sterling young outfielders in Cramer, Johnson, Coleman, Finney and others.

He has Kline, Mahaffey and other pitchers and doubtless will pick up new help. There are worse teams in the league than Connie's.

In fact, considering that Philadelphia will permit Sunday baseball for the first time in the existence of the Athletics, there is a reasonable probability that just around the corner there may be that rainbow in the sky for the esteemed mahout of those White Elephants.

A League Benefactor.

THERE is another reason for belief that Connie will face better times. The sacrifice of his veterans may not be in vain. The very gesture that cut down his own strength builds up the remainder of the league and thereby increases the earnings of his own and all other clubs in the cities aided—Boston, Detroit and Chicago.

Because of this owners should regard Mr. McGillicuddy in the light of a league benefactor. He has built up the league at the expense of his own team.

At least we hope he has built it up. If all the players live up to the prices paid for them, that goal will have been attained.

U. S. GIRLS BASKET CHAMPIONS GAIN 77TH CONSECUTIVE VICTORY

MANGUM, Ok., Dec. 14. — By grace of just one point, the Oklahoma City University Cardinals ran their world's record series of girls' basketball victories to 77 games last night by beating the Spencers of Chicago, 21-20, for the third straight night.

The national champions, closely guarded in every part of the court, scored but four points in the last half and were kept scoreless by the Chicagoans during the last period.

Lahoma Lassiter, Mangum girl, tossed three first half field goals for the Cardinals to give them a 17-9 lead at the half, but with Lillian Rozhon banging away for three long shots in quick order, the Coals soon cut down the advantage.

A. A. CLUBS TO PLAY ALL-STAR GAME NEXT YEAR

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—The All-Star baseball game innovation, adopted by the major leagues as an annual feature, will be tried in the American Association next year.

The association magnates, full of ideas for making the game more attractive, yesterday drew up plans for a contest next July in which the league leader at the time, will meet a team of stars selected from the other seven clubs. Preliminary plans indicated the game will be played either at Columbus or Minneapolis.

To date, four new managers have been named for the 1934 campaign, Kansas City signed Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Cleveland Indians from 1928 until the middle of last season. Previously announcements had been made that Donie Bush would return to Minneapolis, Bob Coleman would manage St. Paul and that Allan Sothoron, former Louisville manager, would lead the Milwaukee Brewers.

Sothoron will have the busiest job in the league. Not only will he manage the club, but officials of the St. Louis Browns, which control the Milwaukee club, said he would be in complete charge as general and playing pilot.

The club owners also met with 25 baseball writers, from whom they asked suggestions for improving the league. The writers recommended display advertisements in the newspapers, organization of a news bureau to send out news developments and features.

POST-DISPATCH FREE BOXING SCHOOL

Western A. A. U. Boxing Committee Chairman
Supervisor Men's Athletics Municipal Community Centers

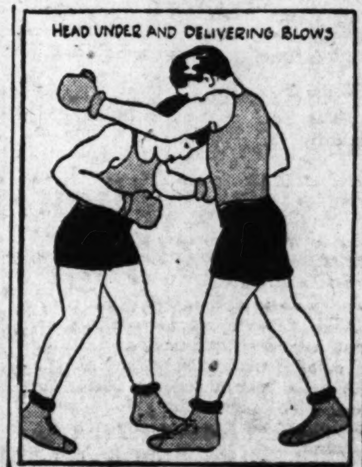
NO. 14—INFIGHTING.

AS A RULE, it is the well-built, rugged, short, stocky boy who becomes the hard-swinging infighter. He has found out that his opponent cannot flick those long jabs at him if he gets in close. My advice to the short, stocky lad is to adopt a crouch and try infighting against tall, rangy boxers.

When you slip, duck or weave under blows to get in close, start delivering short, snappy uppercuts and hooks to both the body and head. If you can't get to the head, keep "shooting" them to the body until the guard comes down and then bring your jolts to the head. Stay with your opponent. If he tries to retreat, follow him.

To obtain the best results when infighting, try to keep your head under his and rest it on his chest. Look at the illustration that shows a man in close with his head under and delivering short-arm blows.

When infighting, the knees are slightly bent and both of the feet are on the same line, which makes your whole body face your opponent squarely. Infighting is really a clever art, for you must also learn to block as well as to deliver those short uppercuts and hooks.



HEAD UNDER AND DELIVERING BLOWS

UNIFORM BALL IN 1934; SUNDAY TWIN BILLS ONLY AFTER JUNE 15

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Sunday doubleheaders will not be permitted in the major leagues until after June 15, during the 1934 season, the club owners of the National and American circuits decided at their joint meeting here today. The decision was a compromise, Clark Griffith of the Washington club having introduced a resolution designed to prohibit all synthetic double bills.

The two leagues also decided to standardize the ball for next season and Will Harridge, president of the American, and John Heydler of the National were authorized to agree on specifications.

It also was announced that a game similar to the All-Star affair played in Chicago last July would be played in New York on a date to be selected by the schedule makers. Details of arrangements for the game will be left to the major league advisory council, and proceeds will go to a fund to carry on the charitable work of the association to help old ballplayers.

World Tour Next Winter.

John Shibe of the Philadelphia Athletics was granted permission to take a team of American League players on a world tour after the close of the 1934 season.

National League clubs had been invited to join in the world tour proposed by Shibe, but the club owners in the senior circuit declined to participate, fearing that the trip might hurt some of their players.

Nothing was done about the question of radio broadcasting, and most of the other questions decided by the magnates concerned the major-minor agreement.

A resolution was adopted providing that when a major league club helps financially a club in a Class B, C or D league, in consideration of getting an option on players on that club, the players thus obtained will not count in the player limit of the big league club until they have been actually acquired.

A Shot at Secret Ownership.

The rules governing the indebtedness of leagues and clubs to players, umpires and other debtors, were rewritten and it was provided that such debts would constitute liens on the territory involved, in the event of the collapse of a league or club.

The selective player agreement was made to read that in cases of a player being on the ineligible list, the time would not count in computing the eligibility of the player to be selected by clubs of higher classification.

It was provided that, before the opening day of any league season, the proper authorities were to receive a certification of any stock ownership by any league or club in any other league or club, the purpose being to prevent secret ownership of minor league clubs by major league organizations. This rule was not new, but revised and clarified. Agreements concerning option on players or financial promises also will have to be included in the certified reports.

NEW COMMITTEE IS NAMED TO PICK NEW GRID COACH AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 14.—Led by Clinton (Cupid) Black, the cohorts of the new deal have assured themselves a football team in the making at Yale. The word was out today that a new football committee would be named after the New Year and a new coach chosen. The new mentor probably will be either Harry Kipke of Michigan or Bernie Bierman of Minnesota.

WHEN pennant winners do not pay
As Connie Mack has stated,
The famous teams of yesterday
Must be disintegrated.
And so before they grow too old,
Or crippled up and battered,
To highest bidders they are sold,
And to the four winds scattered.

When interest payments must be met
Old Connie leads his aces—
Those A's who led the alphabet
And many thrilling races.
When banks insist on being paid
And he must needs deliver,
He liquidates his stock in trade,
And sells 'em down the river.

So now the Philadelphia fans
Once more the sack are holding,
While Connie is perfecting plans
A winner to be molding.
And as at building he is skilled,
Although the chance looks slender,
'Round Jimmy Foxx he hopes to build
Another flag contender.

Too True.

Undismayed by seven years in the cellar, Connie Mack has wrecked another pennant winning team. However, when notes are due, Mammon will be served.

When the pinch of poverty comes, both Philadelphia teams seem to be fortunate in having liquid assets with which to stem the tide of outrageous fortune.

Although "Lefty" Grove isn't as young as he used to be, Eddie Collins probably thinks that he is the Moses who can lead the Red Sox out of the wilderness.

And if there is anybody who knows all about the athletes purchased from Connie Mack it is Eddie Collins. When it comes to taking a flyer in the ivory market Eddie can be trusted not to buy a pig in a poke.

The sale of his stars will enable Connie Mack to balance his budget and help President Harridge to balance the American League, which has been somewhat top heavy.

However, unless something is done to strengthen the Browns he will have to weigh his hand when he puts them on the scale or they won't jiggle the beam.

A restaurant keeper, who has had many ups and downs, leaving a trail of failures behind him, once told us that a caterer was never down and out as long as he had a coffee pot. Connie Mack manages to hang onto his coffee pot. He still has Jimmy Foxx.

He is better off now than he was in 1915 when all he saved from the wreck was "Stuffy" McInnis and a franchise. It took him 14 lean years including seven in the cellar to get back on top. And at the time Connie was about 19 years younger than he is now.

The major leagues decided not to go back to the commission basis and re-elected Judge Landis for a seven-year term on a flat salary.

Terry Defeated in Landslide.

Stix Team Beats Picked Club in Benefit Contest

Showing a new forward line, with "Scotty" Nilsen back at center forward and Jimmy Roe working at inside left next to Willie McLean, a position he played last season, the Stix, Baer & Fullers gained a 3 goals to 2 victory over a picked eleven from the other three clubs in the St. Louis League at Walsh Stadium last night.

In the preliminary the German Sport Club, municipal champions, and Clearys continued their hot battle of the last year's final series by battling to a scoreless draw. The double header, a charity affair for Father Jimmy Johnston's St. Malachy Parish, drew about 2500 persons, who were treated to a fine exhibition of soccer.

Nilsen scored two of the goals for the Stix, putting through what proved the deciding marker after 20 minutes of play in the second half. Billy Gonsalves tallied the other. Mary Selby and A. Garcia scored for the picked club. Frankie Pastor was at a new position in the Stix lineup, playing the full game at left halfback.

COLUMBIA

STANFORD COACH PICKS SQUAD OF 30 FOR BATTLE NEW YEAR'S DAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Continuing their indoor practice, Columbia's regulars had a letup yesterday in the hard work of preparing for the Rose Bowl football game against Stanford.

The first team did not engage in contact work during the two hour session but went through a drill on fundamentals and spent most of the time running through signals. Al Ciampa alternated with Newt Wilder at center for the regulars while Joe Richavich replaced the ineligible Joe Ferrara at tackle. It was the first move toward breaking in a substitute for Ferrara, who is not expected to recover his scholastic standing in time to make the trip to Pasadena.

While the varsity was having an easy drill, the second team went through a hard scrimmage against the assistant coaches' "Stanford" team. The coaches were on the offensive most of the time, mixing up ground plays with passes. The reserves did a fair job of halting the attack but left Coach Lou Little with one great problem. Lou confessed that he doesn't know for certain that the "Stanford" plays his squad has been stopping in its defensive drills are the ones used by Stanford.

Columbia's itinerary on the way to the Stanford game was announced today. The squad will leave here next Tuesday and arrive in St. Louis at 1:20 p. m. Dec. 20. After a workout in St. Louis the team will leave the same evening for Dallas where it will remain from 12:15 to 7:30 p. m., Dec. 21. The next stop will be El Paso, Dec. 22. The squad will reach Tucson Dec. 23 and remain there until Dec. 30 when it will depart for Pasadena.

By the Associated Press.

Ends, Moscrip, Norgard, Smith, Trompas, Packard and Mangan.

Centers, Muller, Bates, Blanchard, Brandin.

Quarterbacks, Alustiza, Hoos, Sim.

Fullbacks, Grayson, Hillman, Todd.

The practice, held in the rain, wound up the formal workouts on this field. Further practices have been postponed because of end quarter examinations starting next week. The squad will leave here Dec. 23 for Hollywood.

BEAUHULD WILL MAKE PRO DEBUT IN FIGHT WITH CAIRO BATTLER

One of the city's most promising young fighters, Bill Beauhuld, North Side lightweight, will make his professional debut on Jack C. Tippett's boxing card tomorrow night at the Central Sports Arena, 2807 Olive. Beauhuld will be pitted against Mickey O'Brien of Cairo, Ill., in the eight-round preliminary.

Possessing a terrific punch, Beauhuld won most of his amateur bouts on knockouts. He dethroned Vic Gimarino as the Mississippi Valley A. A. U. champion at the last district tournament. In following bouts he handed lacings to Farrell Moore, Wild Bill Finnegan, Walter Wilbert and other leading local battlers.

The three Kansas City fighters, Steve Ketchell, lightweight; Johnny Owens, middleweight, and Lloyd Weems, featherweight, who meet local battlers in 10-round inter-city bouts, will arrive today. Ketchell faces Lou Terry, Owens battles Joey Parks and Weems takes on Elmer Savage.

Lewis Signs in Court For Match With Steele; Posts $1500 Forfeit

By Damon Kerby

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, the wrestler who at various times has been recognized as world's champion, says he is looking forward with pleasure, satisfaction, etc., etc., to a match with Ray Steele at the Arena, Dec. 20, a match for which he signed under highly unusual circumstances in Judge Kirkwood's Court late yesterday afternoon.

The signing took place after court had adjourned in the trial of Harry S. Sharpe, former referee, who is suing Promoter Tom Packs as a result of alleged injuries Sharpe suffered following a wrestling match at the Coliseum, Feb. 17, 1930.

Testimony offered by Promoter Packs, on the witness stand, led up to the signing. He was being cross-examined by Sharpe's counsel, who was attempting to show that Packs uses wrestlers of one particular group, or circuit, and excludes other wrestlers from his cards.

Asked if he operated under a franchise, Packs replied "there was no such thing in wrestling."

"Do you have your own circuit?"

"No. I use any wrestler I can get if I want him."

Denies Wrestlers Are Paid Salaries.

"Do any of your wrestlers work on a fixed salary?"

Packs replied in the negative, and explained that he discussed financial terms of wrestlers, in a general way, with Commissioner Taylor, and also submitted lists of wrestlers whom he desired to use.

Spectators in the crowded courtroom leaned forward eagerly, for here was "inside stuff" that has long interested St. Louis wrestling customers.

"Was Gus Sonnenberg's name on any of the lists you submitted to the commissioner?"

"He's a former world's championship claimant."

"That doesn't make him a champion. A lot of wrestlers claim titles. You could claim a title. That wouldn't make you champion."

"Was Don George's name on the list?"

"No."

"Was Ed Lewis' name on the list recently?"

If spectators were interested before, they were doubly interested now, for Lewis, in town for a match at the Coliseum last night, was sitting in the courtroom, his big head thrust forward as he listened to the cross examination.

Lewis Not on the List.

"No; Lewis' name was not on that list recently," answered Packs in evident heat." Not since he ran out on a match for me last summer. I'd sign him right now, though, if he'd choose anybody but a bum."

"Would you match him with Londos?"

"I don't know whether I could. I don't know whether I could meet Londos' terms."

At this point A. E. L. Gardner, Packs' attorney, broke in with an objection.

"If the Court pleases," he said, "this is all very entertaining, but is a little beside the points at issue. As the hour is growing late (4:50 p. m.) may I suggest that we adjourn for the day."

The suggestion was acted upon favorably by Judge Kirkwood, and he quickly retired to his chambers.

Lewis and Packs Face-to-Face.

While the jury was filing out Lewis strode forward into the inside railing separating court attaches and spectators. He was followed by the spectators.

Packs left the witness stand and met Lewis half way.

Lewis quickly denied he had "run out" on Packs. Spectators milled around. "We'll have a match right here," someone suggested.

"Wait till the jury gets out! Wait till the jury gets out!" cautioned the court stenographer. Those gentlemen, 12 good men and true, were departing with reluctance from the scene of confusion. There was a brief lull until the door was shut behind the back of the last juror, and then the storm, if storm it was, broke.

Lewis said he would sign for a match right there, but he wanted Londos. Packs said he could take either Steel or Pesek, on Dec. 20. (Steele and Pesek were matched to meet in a bout at the Arena on that date.)

Prefers to Meet Londos.

"I'll take either or both, but I want Londos," was the substance of Big Ed's reply.

There was more milling, spectators took sides, more or less, and Commissioner Taylor said he would produce a blank contract within 10 minutes. He did. It was suggested to Lewis that the terms be on a 60-40 basis, the winner get the long end of the purse.

"Anything's all right with me; only I want Londos. I'll sign an a winner-take-all basis."

And thus he was signed, as perspiring photographers who were hurriedly called to the scene of action exploded their flashlights.

The terms are: Winner take all of 30 per cent of the net receipts. Charity will receive 15 per cent of the proceeds.

Would Force Londos Into Match.

Commissioner Taylor promised Lewis that he (the commissioner) would try to obtain a match between Lewis and Londos within 90 days, providing Lewis beats Steele; that if Londos refuses to wrestle Lewis within the specified 90 days, he (Londos) would be barred from showing in Missouri.

Lewis said he would put up the Lewis today put up the $1500 cash appearance forfeit with Commissioner Taylor. Steel, according to Taylor, already has $5000 up as to signify his willingness to meet "all comers."

Who's going to referee?

"Not Harry Sharpe," said the commissioner.

Collegian No Match for Lewis.

Lewis, weighing 264 pounds instead of 245 pounds as announced from the ring, pinned Mayes McLain, former football player, after slightly more than 30 minutes of wrestling in the main event of the Coliseum mat show last night. An announced attendance of 2051 persons paid $756.10 to witness the show.

Lewis used his usual specialty—the headlock—to end the event. After being pinned, McLain was apparently "out" on the canvas. He was carried to the dressing room by Referee Fred Voepel, suffering, according to the examining physician, from a strained neck.

McLain, a former football player of note, proved a tyro on the mat. He offered little if any opposition and practically no defense. The bout, from most any angle, was a drab affair.

Real Showmanship Here.

If the main event was drab, the other bouts more than made up for the lack of fireworks. Spectators whooped it up in the best wrestling fan manner as George Hagen and "Whitey" Hewitt wrestled to a 30-minute draw; "Gentleman" Jack Smith flipped Jimmy Parker, and George Mack downed "Silent" Abbott, a deaf mute, who in some respects resembles John Schwake, the former fighter.

Following the final event Lewis tried to make an announcement from the ring but he was howled down. He then spoke over a radio at ringside.

Brilliant Girl Pays $144 to Show At Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 14.

ONE of the most freakish payoffs in pari-mutuels history happened here yesterday afternoon in the third race, which was won by Belle Fille, with Brilliant Girl second and Merry Miss third.

Belle Fille paid $10.80 for a $2 win ticket, $6.60 place and $4.40 third—which is quite rational. But Brilliant Girl paid $50.40 for a $2 place ticket and the amazing sum of $144.40 for a $2 show ticket. Merry Miss rewarded her show backers with $49.40 for $2.

ANDERSONS TO USE REGULAR LINEUP IN CUP MATCH SUNDAY

The starting lineup of the Andersons for the second round match in the national cup tie competition, Sunday afternoon, at Sportsman's Park, was announced last night by Johnny Marre, owner of the team.

The same array of players who have been performing brilliantly in recent games will start. Joe Rodriguez, who is playing his first season in the big league, will be between the uprights. The fullbacks will be manned by Carl Dorley and Milt Zensen.

On the halfback line will be Elmer "Al" Benoist, Earl Fay and James Kenny. Two newcomers, John Simmerman, outside right, and Mark Selby, center forward, will be on the forward line. Dinty Moore and Jim Cronin, inside stars, and Gene McAuliffe, wingman, will be the club's other goal-getters.

Eddie Croak, pilot of the Ben Millers, will select his opening lineup after tonight's final workout. He plans some changes in his halfback and forward lines.

SIX PIN TEAMS ROLL OVER 3000 IN LEAGUE PLAY

Six of the eight teams rolling in the A. B. C. Scratch League on the Washington Alleys last night rolled better than 3000, with the Alexander & Sons, 3170, showing the way. This big score enabled the Alexanders to win two out of three from the Wooster Lamberts. The Lambert five had 3101. Two of the Alexanders' games were over 1100, with counts of 1101 and 1125.

Charles O'Donnell, putting together games of 236, 196 and 267 for a 699 total was the star of the winners, followed by Bob Bruce, who had 690. Otto Stein Jr., paced the losers with 653.

The Silver Seals, with 3111, won the odd game from the Charles Krons, the Krons totaled 3029. Buzz Wilson, 676, Ben Cohen, 662, and Grueber, 660, topped the winners, while Brunsmann, 649 and Weinstein, 639, did the best bowling for the losers.

With Frederic hitting 640, the Gus Krons counted 3030 to win three straight from the Jule Schmitts, paced by Diering with 608. The Carondelets totaled 3053 and won three from the St. Louis Dairies. McElheny, 656, and O'Donnell, 641, topped the winners, while Heuermann had 643 for the losers.

The first annual optional handicap bowling tournament to be started on the Wellston Recreation Alleys next Wednesday night, has been approved by the Greater St. Louis Bowling Association and a team of officers from the body will compete in the event. There will be no doubles and singles. Handicaps on a 66 2-3 basis will be figured on a scratch figure of 1050.

The entry fee will be $6.25 a team, with all entrants rolling in No. 1. If the team also cares to take a shot at the No. 2 prizes, an additional $6.25 will be required, with the one score figuring in each class. There will be one prize for each four teams entered in the competition. Some of the leading teams have already entered. Those wishing to enter should write John J. Fitzgerald, 5942 Easton avenue, or phone EVergreen 9216.

BASKETBALL TEAMS IN BENEFIT GAMES DEC. 21

The Sisler Basketball League, unit of the American Soft Ball Association, will sponsor a special benefit basketball program Thursday night, Dec. 21, at the Coliseum. An admission charge of 10 cents will be made to witness the three games arranged that evening.

Two of the outstanding quintets in division No. 1 of the Sisler League, Wellston Journals and the Jefferson Barracks Lions, will meet in the opening contest. Both teams are undefeated. The second game will bring two more undefeated fives together, the Aquinas Club and Hellrung & Grimm, of the girls' division. The charity program will be climaxed with a game between a group of well-known athletes under the leadership of George Sisler, to be known as Sisler's all-stars, and a second group to play under the heading of the Coliseum Sharpshooters. The latter group will have Mike Nyikos, St. Louis U. coach; Eddie Davidson, Al Pezolt and other prominent cage coaches in this district.

Wichita Dropped; Hockey League to Have Four Clubs

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 14.

THE American Hockey Association now is a four-team circuit.

League officials, meeting here yesterday, announced cancellation of the Wichita, Kan., franchise, leaving Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Kansas City and St. Louis. President W. F. Grant of the league said, however, that Wichita may return next year if financial backing and a seating capacity of 4000 are obtained.

The schedule will be rearranged soon. Grant said Tulsa would open against the champion Kansas City Greyhounds on the Tulsa ice, December 22.

Tulsa took most of the Wichita players. "Five or six" players, Grant said, probably will be released to keep the Tulsa club within the league limit of twelve.

Michigan Eleven Drew 57,252 More Than Last Year

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 14.—An increase of 57,252 in attendance at University of Michigan home football games this season over that of 1932 was revealed last night in the annual report of the Michigan board in control of athletics. Total attendance at the five 1933 home games was estimated at 201,553.

The report, presented by Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, chairman of the board, covered the 12-month period to June 30, 1933, and indicated a net profit for the organization of $30,000. No estimate of the revenue from football ticket sales this fall was included, but a substantial increase over the $178,665 gross income reported from the 1932 season seemed likely in spite of reduced admission fees.

Attendance at the home football games this season was as follows: Michigan State, 16,664; Cornell, 26,108; Ohio State, 83,529; Iowa, 21,631; Minnesota, 53,621.

FLYERS OPPOSE TULSA TEAM IN GAME TONIGHT

By W. J. McGoogan.

In a game which will be particularly interesting from the standpoint of the goal keepers, the St. Louis Flyers will meet the Tulsa Oilers in an American Hockey Association contest at the Arena tonight.

Mike Karakas, youthful and sensational goalie who minded the net for the Flyers last season, then turned down an offer from the same club this year to go with Tulsa, will tend goal for the Oilers while Mickey Murray will be in the nets for the Flyers.

Murray Looks Good.

Thus far the St. Louis team has not suffered by the change in goalies for Murray has done better than Karakas, but needless to say each man will be anxious to outshine the other tonight.

As usual Tulsa has a good team. Under the direction of Kay Iverson are such goal getters as Norman Locking and Sonny Wakeford, both of whom are familiar to St. Louis fans. And while Tulsa has not done so well this season they will cause trouble before the schedule is completed.

Both teams have been drilling hard for the contest with daily workouts at The Arena. The Flyers returned from their successful journey to Oklahoma City where they avenged the defeat inflicted upon them here last Friday night with a 3 to 2 victory, Saturday.

They missed out on a game at Wichita due to trouble in the Wichita ranks, but returned to St. Louis and immediately began preparations for the struggle with Tulsa. The bruises and contusions which several of the Flyers suffered at Oklahoma City Saturday night have had a chance to heal and the club also has had the advantage of several days' practice together so Al Hughes' men will be ready for the Oilers.

Tied for Second.

Today the Flyers are tied with Kansas City for second place with four points each, representing two victories apiece with Tulsa one victory behind. Oklahoma City is out in front with eight points due to four triumphs, but they have been defeated their last two outs.

Princeton Five Wins.

HENRY FIGURING OUT LINEUP FOR GREEN BAY GAME

Gwinn Henry, coach of the St. Louis Gunners, has about decided on his starting lineup for the local pros' football contest with the Green Bay Packers, Sunday afternoon, at the Public Schools Stadium. The veteran coach will start a different combination from that which began hostilities against the Chicago Cardinals last Sunday.

With Chester "Swede" Johnston, plunging back, still receiving daily treatments for his dislocated ankle, Henry is grooming three other ball-luggers for the fullback assignment. However, there is a possibility that Swede's ankle will be strong enough for him to break into the game.

The Fullback Job.

It is almost a certainty that the starting fullback will be picked from Benny La Presta, Joe Spudich and Dick Thornton, who recently rejoined the Gunners after playing the season with the Philadelphia Eagles in the National League.

Don Moses, quarterback, whose long, accurate passes and tricky drives have made him popular, and Dick Frahm and John Breidenstein, great blockers, are the other starters. Frahm, by the way, will be starting his fifteenth straight game for the Gunners.

Bob Gonya, the big lineman who left the Gunners to join the Philadelphia Eagles during mid-season, made such a clever showing in his first practice since he rejoined the team, that he is bidding for tackle berth and is in line to begin the game with Sandy Sandburg, the "iron man" of the line.

The 18 Green Bay players and their coach, Curly Lambeau, are due in town tomorrow. If they arrive in time they will work out in the afternoon on the Gunners' practice field on the David Ranken School grounds. After making the best showing of any eleven in the National League during the last half of the championship race, the Packers, who are bringing all their regulars here for the game, are expected to prove the Gunners' toughest opponent to date.

Owing to the city-wide interest the coming game has aroused, the Gunner management last night announced that 5000 midfield reserve seats will be put on sale today. This is the first time this season the Gunners have reserved any portion of the stadium. Tickets, which will cost $1.65 at the gate, can be purchased for $1.15 before game time at 4525 Olive street and Friedman-Klings, 526 Olive. Regular pasteboards, which are worth $1.10, can be had for 75 cents if bought ahead of time. The admission price for women is 75 cents, but their tickets can be obtained in advance for 40 cents.

KENTUCKY DERBY PURSE MAY BE CUT FROM $50,000 TO $25,000

CINCINNATI, Dec. 14.—The Cincinnati Times-Star says the added money value of the famous Kentucky Derby may be cut from $50,000 to $25,000 by stockholders of the American Turf Association at their meeting in Chicago Dec. 18.

Col. Matt Winn, executive director of Churchill Downs and leader of the association, the paper said, is "leaving it up to the stockholders," but the paper commented that several holders of Turf Association stock feel the purse should be reduced.

PONZI GAINS HIS FIFTH VICTORY IN POCKET TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Although not highly rated in the advance dope, Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia Italian, today was the man to beat in the world pocket billiards title tournament.

He had a close call yesterday, lagging a long way behind Charles Seaback of Astoria, N. Y., but rallied to win, 125 to 109, in 25 innings for his fifth straight victory.

Ponzi will defend his position tonight against Ralph Greenleaf of New York, the defending champion, and this afternoon Taberski was matched with Pasquale Natalie of Chicago, and the Philadelphians, Kelly and Mosconi, were opposed.

The standing:

Meyer featured in the bowling in the Purity League at the Cinderella alleys, Michel turning in a 264 game and Meyer counting 653 with high games of 245 and 234, and helping the Purity team win three games from the Uniteds. The Sidneys took two from the Rieths in the other match, H. Maness, 530, and Walter Kerr, 589, scoring high.

Myrtle Schulte's Vescovo Recreation team gained a 144-pin victory over the Scanlon Golf Shops, a group of men bowlers, in a special match at the Vescovo Recreation last night. The Vescovos rolled 2699 and the Scanlons 2555. Ann La Breque did the best shooting for the women with 592, while O. K. Sanders anchored for the Scanlons with 532.

When Earth Becomes Round.
Happiness Does Exist.
Garbage Made Useful.
How to Write a Book.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1933.)

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14.

VIENNA reports from Graz, Austria, one of the greatest landslides in history. An entire mountainside covering nine square miles is sliding toward the village of Wienen, and authorities believe the village is doomed.

That is far from us, but it may interest our descendants millions of years hence.

Mountain slides and mountain tops are constantly slipping down, the crumbling effect of frost and erosion helping the work.

A million streams wash soil into the ocean, gradually filling those depths. Volcanic eruptions and land upheavals do little to counteract this eternal "leveling power."

In time, within the few hundred million years that men still have to go on this earth, their planet may become absolutely round and smooth. If that happened the oceans would cover the earth miles deep everywhere, and men could take their choice of living afloat, eating sea food, or digging canals big enough to hold the oceans and lakes.

Some scientists believe that the inhabitants of Mars, a planet, 500,000,000 years older than the earth, have already done that. They think they see martian canals as straight lines in the telescope.

There is happiness somewhere on earth, praise heaven. H. E. Dugan writes from Glendale, Cal., "I have just returned from a trip through the Mother Lode mining section of California and gold sections of Nevada and Arizona. And does it look like 'old times' in these places? I'll say so. The large properties are daily adding miners and many have given each miner a Christmas bonus in advance and extra dividends to stockholders. The hills, rivers, old workings are crowded with 'young America,' all hoping to get rich. Many are making good wages. NOT A SPECK OF DEPRESSION in the many mining towns."

Officials interested in efficient, honest management of cities, might learn of something to their advantage by communicating with William Sydow, Director of Public Service in the City of Miami. Unlike some "highly civilized" Northern cities, that dump sewerage and garbage into the ocean that their citizens may bathe in it, Miami has long got rid of garbage by burning.

At first, the project cost money for fuel and labor. Then Mr. Sydow, who is a competent engineer and a public-spirited man, attached to the burning garbage steam boilers for production of power.

With the steam thus supplied, Miami pumps its water supply, saves the cost of power for that purpose, saves also all that it formerly cost to burn the garbage.

True, there is "nothing it in" for politicians, but there is something in it for taxpayers, and they may be interested.

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of former Vice-President Curtis, says if you want to write a book "just jot down notes, whenever you think of anything interesting, then make the notes into a book." That is one way, and simple; there are other ways.

An able Frenchman, who wrote "The Three Musketeers," could dictate two novels at once to different secretaries, shifting from one secretary to the other, picking up the different characters.

Goethe spread the preparation and writing of "Faust" over a generation. He was past 70 when he wrote the second part.

Montesquieu spent 30 years writing his "Spirit of Laws" and devoted only a few weeks probably to his "Persian Letters." Perhaps 100 read the "Persian Letters" for one that read "The Spirit of Laws."

It is said that Shakespeare, who paid little attention to his own writings after he left London and returned to Stratford, never bothered to put them in book form, or seemed to think much of them, would scribble on a stray piece of paper additional lines and hand them to an actor on the stage. And nobody that ever lived could write such lines. That's what you might call "impromptu talent."

Col. Lindbergh with his wife, "riding on the tail of a tropical storm," landed his red flying ship at Port of Spain, Trinidad, having flown 1100 miles in nine hours and 39 minutes from Brazil. His next stop will be the U. S. A., probably at Miami, then to New York City, about 2600 miles in two jumps.

Who will build the ship to fly the continent comfortably nonstop,

P. HAL SIMS

Responding to a Two-Bid

WHEN you hear those blessed words from your partner, your first reaction should be one of gratitude to Lady Luck, who has presented you with a game regardless of the apparent worthlessness of your hand; your next reflection should be that you have a function to perform in bidding which is in every way as important as the more sensational role assumed by the opening bidder. The safety of the hands may depend entirely on you; it has a safe destination—either for game or for slam—but in many cases the opening bidder is helpless unless you give him the information at your disposal in the correct manner. Derrick Wernher employs a metaphor in this connection which in my opinion is exactly right. He says that the two-bid reminds him of a gigantic ocean liner such as the Leviathan, incomparable in size, speed and power, approaching the land. Before it can reach its berth safely tiny little puffing tugs have to meet it and guide it safely to its pier. Without them it would be helpless—at the mercy of tide, wind and current. Yet when the passengers have been safely landed, the praise is for her captain and crew, her designers and her staff. The little tugs return home unnoticed and forgotten. When your partner opens with a forcing bid, he may drift without steering way and be wrecked if you do not perform your tug job properly.

HAL SIMS

What Do You Know About the Situation?

1. You know that your partner has only two or three losers in his hand, according to whether he has bid a minor or a major suit. For slam purposes, can you eliminate any losers for him? For this you must supply some high card or cards.

2. You know that there is a game somewhere. To ascertain in which declaration the game should be bid, your partner is interested only in your distribution. He does not need from you any high card for game, but he does need to find the best fit in the two hands. Your 13 cards, therefore, supply the key to joint holdings of 26 cards solely by their grouping.

3. You know that the suit he has bid consists of at least five cards; consequently Q x x or K x is normal support for that suit.

4. The bidding can proceed unhurriedly, as there is a broad expanse of leeway available. The bidding must be taken to game at least; so make use of your freedom to make constructive or sign-off bids all the way up to the game level, which is seldom below four, though at times the bidding will stop at three no trumps.

There Is Only One Unnatural, Artificial Response.

The only response which can be so characterized is when you respond with a hand which would have required you to pass had your partner opened with a bid of only one. That is to say, when you respond only because you are forced to respond. Your way of saying this is by means of the minimum negative.

Response of Two No Trumps.

This tells your partner two facts about your hand:

1. That you do not possess any five-card suit headed by the king or queen-jack; and that you do not possess a six-card suit of any kind.

2. That you do not provide the means for him to get into your hand twice, either in no trumps or with his suit as trumps. I really think of this artificial response as being natural in its own way. You employ a bid still in the range of two-odd to tell your partner that you lack a normally natural response. From now on he must take control, as your further function consists solely in not passing below the level of a game. If he bids a second suit you are called on to show your preference in the ordinary manner; but any slam bidding must then be done by the opening bidder by virtue of his own hand.

The air pilot now picks up news on wireless. Some day he will pick up power in the same way, taking it from different waterfalls and power plants as he crosses the continent, and from the west and east sides of the Atlantic Ocean as he crosses to Europe. The thing has been done in a small way experimentally, just as Marconi's wireless began by sending a single letter across the ocean. Some day wireless power will be a reality and flyers will not have to carry tremendous burdens of gasoline.

FAREWELL to the SANDWICH ERA

Formal Manner of Dining to Return With Repeal

By Henry (Count) Hoffmann

Wine Steward, Hotel Mayfair

THE sandwich, I believe I read in Ripley's "Believe It or Not," was invented by the Earl of Sandwich, who was so taken up with gambling that he slapped a piece of roast beef between bread rather than sit down to dinner like a gentleman. During prohibition, it was natural for Americans to follow the Earl of Sandwich. Dinner degenerated into a hasty period of filling up. Men in the hotel business began to feel like gasoline filling station attendants, instead of restaurateurs.

But it is all coming back. Wine, liqueurs and civilized dining will be here soon. And it is up to some of us old fellows to tell the public how to serve wines with meals, how to enjoy themselves, how to live like civilized people.

I invite you to pull up your chair. As a concession to American taste I will serve you with a dry Martini cocktail — one-third Italian vermouth, two-thirds gin, a dash of bitters and an olive on a toothpick. But, mind you, one cocktail is all you get.

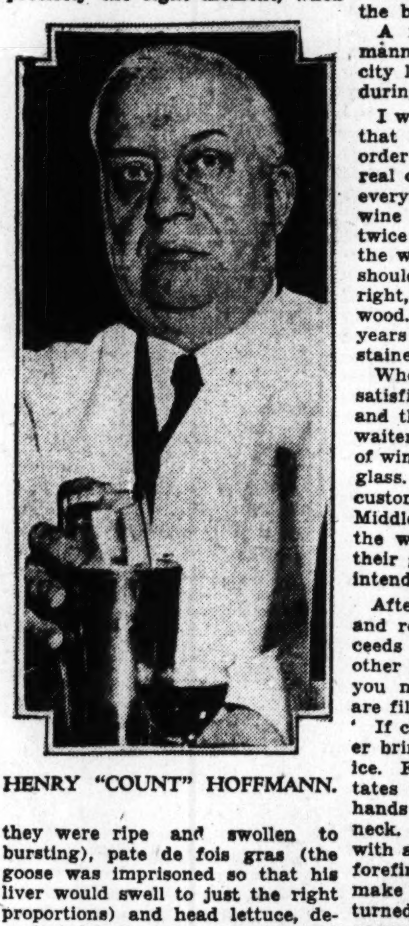
You will notice that beside your cocktail glass there are four different kinds of wine glasses. With the soup I will give you Amontillado sherry. The hot turtle soup accentuates the feeling of well-being. Then you get a fish course, flaky white filet of sole a la Marguery. Another glass and another wine, this time a white wine, Sauterne of Bordeaux or Chablis of Burgundy.

Now that you are ready for the piece de resistance, the main part of the meal, which during the "sandwich era" was condensed and swaddled in bread. Roast saddle of lamb will do very nicely. With the roast you must have a bottle of good red wine—Beaume Burgundy, Chateau Lafite Bordeaux or Rhine Rotweine. The wine will help you digest your dinner by stimulating your gastric juices.

Now you come to your last glass—a shallow goblet that will come into use with the salad for Champagne. By this time conversation is lively and witty. You are no longer hungry, but you want something to nibble at—a dessert or a bit of cheese. If cheese, I recommend a hefty Camembert or Roquefort, a cheese that can swing a haymaker and walk on its own power. With this you get port wine.

Finally, the searing hot coffee blesses all that you have eaten and drunk. About this time you have your choice of three or four liqueurs—Benedictine, Chartreuse, Grand Marnier or Cointreau. You drink this out of a thimble and inhale rather than drink each fiery, heavily perfumed drop. Then you light a cigar or a cigarette and can tell the world that you have dined and wined in a civilized manner.

Of course, that meal is a banquet. People don't banquet every night of the world. Now I will give you a light lunch. Sauterne, Chateau Yquem (the grapes were picked at precisely the right moment, when they were ripe and swollen to bursting), pate de fois gras (the goose was imprisoned so that his liver would swell to just the right proportions) and head lettuce, decapitated in its prime. Another old favorite was "cold bird and a bottle." This was good for supper after the theater. Cold chicken or duck with a pint of good claret, Medoc or Graves.



HENRY "COUNT" HOFFMANN.

A REVIVAL of formality in manners and dress will come on the heels of repeal, I believe. The service of wine and liquors always was surrounded by a great deal of ceremony and hocus-pocus in the good old days. There is a meaning to most of this ritual, and I will try to explain it.

People will not want to dine in business suits and sports clothes when they know that a wine butler in knee breeches will bow and scrape. If wine gains any popularity, you can bet your bottom dollar you'll see twice as many tuxedos and claw-hammer-tailed coats at restaurants as you saw during the blighted days.

A return of formal dress and manners will put new color into city life, that began to grow drab during the World War.

I will tell you some of the things that you may expect when you order your first bottle of wine. A real connoisseur of wine can tell everything he wants to know about wine by the cork. If it swells up twice its natural size and is spongy, the wine is unacceptable. The cork should smell only of wine. To be right, the cork should be hard as wood. If the wine is more than 20 years old, the cork should be stained half its length.

When the host says that he is satisfied with the cork, the label and the cobwebs on the bottle, the waiter carefully pours three drops of wine into the bottom of the host's glass. This invariable European custom is said to date from the Middle Ages, when hosts first tasted the wine they served to prove to their guests that no foul play was intended.

After the host tastes the wine and remains alive, the waiter proceeds to pour the wine into the other glasses. Now here is a point you must remember: The glasses are filled only three-quarters full.

If champagne is served, the waiter brings the bottle in a bucket of ice. For a full five minutes he rotates the bottle by rubbing his hands back and forth over the neck. Then he removes the cork with a deft twist of the thumb and forefinger. If the cork does not make a loud pop, the wine is returned to the cellar. A sort of steam or vapor always comes out of the neck of a good bottle of champagne when it is opened.

When liqueurs are served after the meal, the real skill of the wine waiter is exhibited. Liqueurs are served in thimble-like glasses. I have seen waiters who pour just enough benedictine to make a round bubble at the top of the glass without spilling a drop over the side of the glass.

Old brandy is served in large goblets. The gourmet warms the liquid in the bottom of the glass with his hands. He sniffs the fragrance of the bouquet, talks about it and occasionally takes a small sip. A dyed-in-the-wool Napoleon brandy drinker often devotes two hours to the consumption of an ounce of rare old brandy.

AS to the care of wines, I will quote from my book, "Home Party Recipes," that I wrote when I presided behind the bar at McTague's. Says the book: "The place in which it is intended to keep wine, whether it be a cellar or other storage, should fulfill the following conditions:

"First, should have an even temperature varying only from 53 to 55 degrees; second, should be as dark as possible; third, should be protected against vibrations of the ground which are caused by passing street traffic and by freight trains on railroads; fourth, should never contain anything whatever which might cause fermentation, such as beer, cider, vegetables, fruits, shrubs, etc.

"Finally, all bottles or jars containing wines must be well corked and kept in a reclining position. Whenever a bottle or jar has been opened but not entirely consumed at the time, we always recommend that such left-over remnants should be placed in one or more smaller bottles, which should be completely filled and well corked."

The reason for all this is that deterioration of wine is chiefly due to the action of air, light, heat and cold.

Here are a few rules to observe in the service of wines:

1. All red wines—Bordeaux, Burgundies and Chianti—should be brought up from the cellar two to three hours before serving and poured at room temperature.

2. White wines should be served very cool; therefore, they should not be fetched from the cellar until serving time.

3. White ports, sherries and madeiras are served cool, while red ports, tarragons and liqueurs are served either cool or at room temperature, according to individual taste.

4. Champagnes and sparkling wines—Burgundy and Vouvray—are always served on ice. The bottle should be kept lying flat in a cool cellar, because if they are vertical for more than 24 hours the corks in the bottles dry up and the gas contained in the bottle escapes.

Capes Being Worn By Smart Parisians

PARIS.—The Princesse May de Faucigny-Lucinge is among smart Parisians who are wearing capes. She has a three-quarter-length Molyneux model of brown and beige checked wool which she wears for sports with a skirt of the same fabric. A brown velveteen blouse completes the costume.

Stuffed Celery

Another version of this ever popular entree. Cream with a silver fork two cakes of pimento cheese, add two tablespoons finely ground English walnuts and sufficient mayonnaise to smooth into a paste. Season with salt, paprika, cayenne and a few drops of Worcestershire sauce Spread in the grooves of crisp celery.

Christmas Salad

Eight strips pimientos.
Eight almonds.

Arrange pears hollow side down on lettuce to represent Christmas bells. Arrange pimiento strips at top for "bow" and almonds for the "clapper." Serve with French dressing or mayonnaise.

Oyster Stuffing

There are those who like the piquant flavor of oysters in their turkey stuffing. Three cups breadcrumbs, one-half cup melted butter, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons lemon juice, two tablespoons minced parsley, three cups oysters. Add seasoning and butter to breadcrumbs. Clean oysters, removing the tough muscle. Add the other ingredients and stuff the turkey. More breadcrumbs may be used if the fowl is a large one.

The Coming Movies

NIE

CHARLES RUGGLES, Charles Farrell and Marguerite Churchill have the leading roles in "Girl Without a Room," the headline attraction on the current double bill which started today at the Missouri. In the story Ruggles and Farrell are artists of the new school who go to Paris to study. Ruggles is a forward chap who constantly becomes involved in affairs with models, while Farrell is a bashful Southerner whose main interest is his art. After a party in their apartment they awaken the next morning to find Miss Churchill preparing breakfast for them. A series of comic situations are said to follow, with Ruggles fighting a duel and going to the extent of singing a song for the first time in his screen career. "From Headquarters," with Eugene Pallette, Hugh Herbert, George Brent, Margaret Lindsay and Dorothy Burgess is the second feature on the program.

ON THE screen at the Ambassador, beginning tomorrow, James Cagney will be starred in "Lady Killer," with Mae Clarke and Margaret Lindsay in the leading feminine roles. Cagney is cast as a theater usher with ambitions to get into pictures. He finally gets to Hollywood, where he gets a "break" in the movies, playing small roles which find him doing parts ranging from Little Lord Fauntleroy to an Indian chief. Raymond Hatton and Leslie Fenton are also in the cast. Guy Lombardo and his royal Canadians, a popular radio orchestra, will be the attraction on the stage at the Ambassador Theater.

THE double-feature program at Loew's State Theater this week, starting tomorrow, will consist of "Blood Money," George Bancroft's initial Twentieth Century starring vehicle; and Ed Wynn, stage and radio star, in "The Chief." In the former, which was especially written for Bancroft by Director Rowland Brown, there are said to be numerous unexpected plot twists and dramatic situations. In addition to Bancroft the cast of "Blood Money" includes Judith Anderson, popular Broadway star, making her cinema debut; Frances Dee, Chick Chandler, well known Broadway juvenile, who also makes his screen debut; Blossom Seeley, Ann Brody and Sandra Shaw. "The Chief" was, of course, suggested by the character Ed Wynn made famous on the radio network. It is a narrative of the adventures that lifted a simple Bowery boy to local fame and won him the affections of a torch singer. Supporting Wynn are Dorothy Mackaill, Charles "Chick" Sale and William (stage) Boyd.

TWO former screen favorites who have not been seen in the films for some time, Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall, come back again in "Curtain at Eight," the feature picture at the Fox starting tomorrow. Also on the bill will be "You Made Me Love You" with Thelma Todd as the star. In "Curtain at Eight," Jim Hanvey, the detective of the Octavus Roy Cohen stories, has a difficult task in discovering the murderer of a matinee idol, Wylie Thornton. On the face of things it appears that everyone who has come into contact with Thornton has had the motive and the opportunity to do him violence. But, meandering and unorthodox as his methods may be, Jim Hanvey finally "gets his man." On the stage, the Fox will present "Joy Belles" with Eddie South and his orchestra, Rube Demarest and Olive Sibley and others.

"LITTLE WOMEN," Louisa M. Alcott's widely-read classic which has been transferred to the screen in a faithful and wholly-delightful manner and which has broken all attendance records on Grand avenue, is being held over for a second and final week at the St. Louis Theater. Katharine Hepburn is featured as Jo in "Little Women," and the supporting cast includes Joan Bennett, Paul Lukas, Edna May Oliver, Jean Parker and Frances Dee. Glorifying American family life and ideals of the '60s, "Little Women" is one of the most wholesome of the cinemas to come out of Hollywood in many years. Borrah Minnevitch and his Harmonica Band also remain for a second week to headline the stage program at the St. Louis. The "Little Women Ballet," featuring Trudy Pickering, is a dance specialty atmospheric to the feature motion picture.

BEAUTY CLINIC

WHEN one refers to a woman as being "beautiful," it is generally the impression of her eyes first, and then the smoothness of her skin. Eyes tell you her age, how well or how happy she is. An extremely clever woman does not have to be all three of these, for she knows the secret of looking young and beautiful. She knows the proper way to treat the muscles around the eyes to maintain their firmness.

Sunken eyes, drooping lids, wrinkles and puffiness under the eyes are real enemies of beauty. There are many remedies for such ailments such as special eye creams that round out the delicate tissues and muscles around the eyes, helping to do away with those fine lines that come from strain and neglect. Find yourself a cream of this nature and start now.

Remove the outside leaves from the head of lettuce, wash thoroughly in cold water and drain. Wrap in a damp cloth and put near the ice or in a covered dish in the mechanical refrigerator. It will keep fresh and crisp.

The Blizzard

ALL the animals piled into the automobile Two-Ways with Willy Nilly, and off they started, barking, quacking, cawing, crowing, chatting. It was snowing when they started and as they continued the snow came down more heavily.

"I'm afraid," said Willy Nilly, "that this will be a regular blizzard."

"Well be able to get to the place we're to meet Santa, won't we?" asked Rip, the Dog, who was feeling a little uncertain about this.

"I hope so," said Willy Nilly, doubtfully. Now the automobile was having a very hard time making any headway. Suddenly its rear wheels turned around and around and the car slid into a snow bank. Then it stopped.

Willy Nilly tried to start it again but it refused to move.

"We'll be late," quacked Mrs. Quacko. "Will Santa Claus wait for us?"

"He may wait for a little while, but he has so much to do I'm sure he couldn't wait very long," answered Willy Nilly. "To think we have this chance to see him, and now are stuck in a snow bank."

"I'll fly on ahead and see if I can find Santa and tell him," said Christopher Columbus Crow.

Off into the blizzard flew Christopher. They waited and waited and waited. And the wind blew and the snow came down wildly, furiously. Willy Nilly was afraid now that not only had they missed Santa, but that Christopher would be lost in the storm.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

My dear Mrs. Carr:

IN order to help my sister and her husband pay off on a home which they were about to lose, my mother and I took over the second mortgage and paid up five years interest. Before even one payment could be made to reimburse us, the husband left and has never been heard from. We have learned since what his weakness was, but my sister not wanting us to discover this, allowed us to become deeply involved in their financial affairs.

There are other things connected with the whole affair which I am telling you but do not want published. Although this sister has been, and is now, practically supported by us, I would not mind my money going in that way, but for the fact that although we do so much she has become self-assertive and very aggressive. Moreover, she is even resentful of the help we have given her; does not allow her daughters to assist around the house. Of course, some day she will leave my mother, high and dry, after all that has been done for her. If she leaves now, the children will run the streets. She has no idea what child care means.

I wish we could live happily, as it would be hard on these children to have to go with her where their standard of living must be so lowered. There is a sensible thing to do in a problem of this kind. What is your opinion?

WOULDBE RIGHT.

Of course we could say, without hesitation, that your sister needs to be taught responsibility, you and your mother have not given her a chance to feel it. And she is not the kind, evidently, to take it on herself, without being resentful. Just how to go about this, is not so easy. But perhaps you have discovered in this case, and through others you have observed, and perhaps through experience, that it seems hard for people to forgive those who do them a kindness, if, in accepting it, any reflection upon themselves, is involved.

It may be just this kind of vanity, which persists with your sister. It is too bad for the children to have to suffer and to be given the wrong standards through the small viewpoint of their mother. But I am afraid, the only thing to do is to allow your sister to have her head, and to do as she pleases about the children. You and your mother have done everything you can, except coerce her, and that you cannot do.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I READ your column every day in the paper. I read about "M. D." and I have a doll, which I do not want. How can I get it to her?

MARY S.

You will have to give me your name and address (which will not be used in the paper) so that I can send you her address or tell her where she may get the doll. Thank you for the offer.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM in my last year of school and am to attend a dance given by our club at a hotel. Mrs. Carr, I have never had a party dress and cannot afford to buy one, as I have worked my way through school. If one of your readers has one put away, which they will not wear again I would appreciate it very much if they would let me have it.

Please do not say go to a charity organization, because I cannot make myself do so. I am 19 years old, five feet, five inches tall and weigh 123 pounds. Sincerely,

HOPEFUL READER.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WILL shorten my story as much as possible. When I was two months lacking 19 years old, I married my husband, then 32 years old, much against my wishes. But mother was persistent and after some time I yielded. I really believe mother meant well, thinking I'd have a good home and saying, "love will come later."

I tried my best—in a kind way and by getting angry to make this man what I wanted—a fine, clean and loving husband. He lacks all these qualities. I had to obey and be bossed about, which was easy, as I was brought up by a strict mother, trained to obey. But I had to make my own money for clothing my two children and myself—on the farm, working as hard as any man in the field. I took it all, of course, on account of the children and did not want the disgrace of divorce.

I have never spoken against my husband to my children; but since they are old enough to see for themselves, they tell me I am foolish to keep on; that I deserve more happiness. They are ashamed of him, though they never say so. Nor do I mention it.

I tried to be a good wife, giving my wages to my husband and helping wherever I can. I am now in St. Louis, working, and have had a talk with him. He says we should stay together, but it is becoming unbearable. I think I can't hold out longer. The reason I have done this is because our bank closed and we owed money and I earn more than my husband.

LONELY.

Sometimes there is more than appears in the word "incompatibility," as it is used with regard to domestic affairs. There is no question about it in your case, but be-

WHERE BABIES GO TO SCHOOL

Tiny St. Louisans Get An Early Start In This Kindergarten

AN EDUCATIONAL institution where the only entrance requirement is that the student be able to climb out of a crib is the Progressive Pre-school, conducted by Miss Christine Glass, B. S., M. A., in the "Old Blossom Place," a 20-room house with extensive grounds at 829 North Union boulevard. On bright days, the passer-by may see groups of the students enjoying themselves outside, during the play periods, some just past the toddling stage, some nearing the age of "graduation" into kindergarten. For Miss Glass will admit a child at 18 months, or younger if able to walk, and will continue the training through the fifth year.

The school, as well as many others throughout the city conducted on a similar principle, has proved a boon to mothers who lack the facilities or time to give their children th epreliminary training they feel a child should have. Especially in the case of an only child, or one whose parents live in an apartment, is the pre-school a help in affording the child companionship, or, more important, co-operation and mutual consideration as well as collective training.

Believing that certain disabilities arise from being the oldest or the youngest child, just as much as from being an only child, Miss Glass has divided her school into four groups, according to age. The first group includes those between 18 and 30 months old. The second, those around 3 years; the third, those around 4 years old, and the kindergarten, or fourth group, the 5-year-olds. "And," she explains, "the day's routine for each group is built around the child's needs for food, sleep, activity, physical and mental, and sunlight."

UNLIKE the ordinary day nursery which is concerned chiefly with the child's safety, here the nursery school, which includes the first three groups, cares for both the physical and mental health of the child. An attempt is made to establish correctly the basic habits, and the routine is much as you would find in any well-ordered home. No attempt is made to push the child, but rather to help him grow and adjust himself to a world outside the home and where he is not the center of all attention. The kindergarten combines regular kindergarten work with the planned all-day routine of the nursery school. More is done as an organized group. Attention is given to work habits and activity more definitely planned as to handiwork periods.

MISS CHRISTINE GLASS.

School begins at 8:30. And the first lesson of the day is self-reliance. Each child must remove his own wraps, even if it means sitting on the floor to tug at a stubborn button or zipper. Coats must be placed on hangers and hats in each child's private locker.

Then comes physical inspection. A trained nurse, maintained by the school as a member of the staff, inspects each child, isolates and sends home those not well enough to be in the group. And here you find none of the usual child's fear of doctors. The nurse's inspection is taken as a matter of course, part of the day's routine.

AFTER physical inspection, an hour of free activity follows, spent out of doors if possible. The large playground is equipped with toys and gymnasium apparatus to encourage healthful physical exercise. The children are divided into play groups and the play equipment is built to size according to the age needs of each group. Play is supervised and spontaneity discouraged only when it is not consistent with the child's safety or the well-being of his comrades. Such exercise as climbing, in which all children delight and in which they cannot indulge in a city apartment, is encouraged. In fact, special apparatus has been built on which the youngsters satisfy this climbing urge. But perhaps the most popular of all the playground equipment came about as the result of the ingenuity of a young man of three in placing a board on two boxes. Balancing on this "wall" is great sport and is typical of how children are encouraged to invent games for their own amusement.

When the play hour is over, faces and hands are washed in the miniature bathroom, and everyone gets ready for a mid-morning snack, consisting of orange juice and crackers. The orange juice is served in brightly colored cups and the crackers on a flowered plate. The children take turns, even in the 18-to-30-months group, in helping the group teacher set the table. And these tables, too, like the bathroom and playground equipment, are built to size, with chairs of corresponding height.

Then comes the morning rest period. Each child has his own cot, of his own size, and all, except the youngest group, open and arrange the cots without aid. This rest period is designed to teach the child how to relax and prevent fatigue from overactivity.

Another hour of outdoor play follows and then a short story and dramatization period, and then preparation for luncheon. This is a hot luncheon, and is considered the child's main meal of the day. The age-needs of each child are considered and each mother is furnished with a menu for the week so the meals which the child takes at home can be planned accordingly. Again self-reliance and independence are taught by allowing the child to help arrange the table and serve the food. Effort is made to form desirable food habits and to correct food aversions. The problem of the child in the 18-to-30 months groups who spits out his food when he does not like it, the 2-year-old who makes faces and refuses to eat it, and the still older one who says "I don't like it," but eats it anyway, are all handled individually and it is not long before the child learns to eat anything that is set before him, unless he is a real food problem. Refusal to eat is often the child's way of centering attention on himself. Mother and father wiggle their ears to get him to eat his oatmeal or imitate Popeye to coax him into tasting his spinach, but at the pre-school this meal-time three-ring circus is frowned upon and his only inducement to eat, outside his own hunger, lies in the privilege of telling the cook, when he has eaten everything on his plate, that he is ready for dessert.

PREPARATION for the nap follows luncheon. Each boy or girl is given as much responsibility as he or she can handle in arranging the cot, undressing and getting into pajamas. Children who have broken the nap habit are encouraged to re-establish it and in commenting on the fact that after only a short time in the school most children go to sleep without any effort at all, Miss Glass says "Insomnia is cured in the moment that the suggestion in the child's mind is reversed; in the moment when he comes to regard it as characteristic of himself not to make a fuss about going to bed, but to sleep with extraordinary readiness and soundness."

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

My dear Mrs. Carr:

IN order to help my sister and her husband pay off on a home which they were about to lose, my mother and I took over the second mortgage and paid up five years interest. Before even one payment could be made to reimburse us, the husband left and has never been heard from. We have learned since what his weakness was, but my sister not wanting us to discover this, allowed us to become deeply involved in their financial affairs.

There are other things connected with the whole affair which I am telling you but do not want published. Although this sister has been, and is now, practically supported by us, I would not mind my money going in that way, but for the fact that although we do so much she has become self-assertive and very aggressive. Moreover, she is even resentful of the help we have given her; does not allow her daughters to assist around the house. Of course, some day she will leave my mother, high and dry, after all that has been done for her. If she leaves now, the children will run the streets. She has no idea what child care means.

I wish we could live happily, as it would be hard on these children to have to go with her where their standard of living must be so lowered. There is a sensible thing to do in a problem of this kind. What is your opinion?

WOULDBE RIGHT.

Of course we could say, without hesitation, that your sister needs to be taught responsibility, you and your mother have not given her a chance to feel it. And she is not the kind, evidently, to take it on herself, without being resentful. Just how to go about this, is not so easy. But perhaps you have discovered in this case, and through others you have observed, and perhaps through experience, that it seems hard for people to forgive those who do them a kindness, if, in accepting it, any reflection upon themselves, is involved.

It may be just this kind of vanity, which persists with your sister. It is too bad for the children to have to suffer and to be given the wrong standards through the small viewpoint of their mother. But I am afraid, the only thing to do is to allow your sister to have her head, and to do as she pleases about the children. You and your mother have done everything you can, except coerce her, and that you cannot do.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I READ your column every day in the paper. I read about "M. D." and I have a doll, which I do not want. How can I get it to her?

MARY S.

You will have to give me your name and address (which will not be used in the paper) so that I can send you her address or tell her where she may get the doll. Thank you for the offer.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM in my last year of school and am to attend a dance given by our club at a hotel. Mrs. Carr, I have never had a party dress and cannot afford to buy one, as I have worked my way through school. If one of your readers has one put away, which they will not wear again I would appreciate it very much if they would let me have it.

Please do not say go to a charity organization, because I cannot make myself do so. I am 19 years old, five feet, five inches tall and weigh 123 pounds. Sincerely,

HOPEFUL READER.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WILL shorten my story as much as possible. When I was two months lacking 19 years old, I married my husband, then 32 years old, much against my wishes. But mother was persistent and after some time I yielded. I really believe mother meant well, thinking I'd have a good home and saying, "love will come later."

I tried my best—in a kind way and by getting angry to make this man what I wanted—a fine, clean and loving husband. He lacks all these qualities. I had to obey and be bossed about, which was easy, as I was brought up by a strict mother, trained to obey. But I had to make my own money for clothing my two children and myself—on the farm, working as hard as any man in the field. I took it all, of course, on account of the children and did not want the disgrace of divorce.

I have never spoken against my husband to my children; but since they are old enough to see for themselves, they tell me I am foolish to keep on; that I deserve more happiness. They are ashamed of him, though they never say so. Nor do I mention it.

I tried to be a good wife, giving my wages to my husband and helping wherever I can. I am now in St. Louis, working, and have had a talk with him. He says we should stay together, but it is becoming unbearable. I think I can't hold out longer. The reason I have done this is because our bank closed and we owed money and I earn more than my husband.

LONELY.

Sometimes there is more than appears in the word "incompatibility" as it is used with regard to domestic affairs. There is no question about it in your case, but before deciding to change conditions, I think you should find some older person, who has known both of you, and who understands better than a stranger could, and ask what might be done to salvage this marriage. Or, if it is hopeless, to suggest some way in which you could get away from it conscientiously. Also you should talk to a good, dependable lawyer. Of course, you could take your case to the Domestic Relations Court. But, in your case, I do not believe that is necessary.

Dear Martha Carr:

OUR club of girls (11 to 13 years old) want to make dresses for dolls, toys and such. We will appreciate it if you will tell me who will enjoy them.

SPORT CLUB.

That's a fine idea, and I am more than willing to co-operate. Make what you feel you can, in the next week or 10 days. Write me what you have to give and I shall be glad to send you names of children to whom these things may be given.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM 20 years old and have been dancing since the age of 14. I am considered an attractive girl but don't let it go to my head. My mother is a wonderful seamstress, which helps my appearance. I have a very large wardrobe, but my dresses probably wouldn't add up altogether to a half dozen of my girl friend's everyday dresses.

I have several men friends whom I see nearly every week. Each one means as much to me as the other, not saying, of course, that I am crazy about them all.

Each of these has proposed marriage or spoken of buying me a diamond for Xmas. I have refused them all. All treat me with respect.

My neighbors are continually after my mother, telling her all sorts of things that will happen to me if she lets me run around. Now my mother knows every one well and always tells me she knows I'll not do anything wrong.

One neighbor asks me where I am going, who with, and so on. I would like to tell her that it's none of her concern; but it so happens we have a store and I'd just ruin my father's trade.

I am having such a good time, and my mother always says that she had her good times, so she wouldn't begrudge me mine. I really think she worries about what the people think.

FOOD FOR GOSSIP.

Of course people talk, especially those whose curiosity and love of gossip, runs away with their common-sense and good breeding. But it is going too far, when they become inquisitive and ask impertinent questions. As I have said many times, in this column, in answer to complaints about familiar neighbors, that a little distance preserved and the right formalities, eliminates the opportunities for intrusion.

You will be agreeable and on friendly terms, excessively polite, perhaps. Pointed questions may be greeted with a smile and nothing more. It may be that your standards and your ideals are the best, yet, sometimes, a little flightly manner and silly, boy-crazy attitude, will bring on these troubles. Some of the points you have made and which, for your sake I have not used, indicate that you might give a little time to serious things. Have a good time and do not concentrate until you are ready; but show that these boys are just good friends and have not turned your head.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I must tell someone my troubles or it will kill me in time. So I am coming to you for help. I am married to a man who nags 24 hours a day and who has a son (my step-son), who is just like him.

I had to go to work when he lost his job and the step-son is in high school. He nags me for money until I am about crazy and then I have to give it to him. I have been in the hospital; and still, now that I am home, they will not help me.

I have a little boy of my own and I want to leave these two ungrateful men and take the little one away and work for ourselves.

HEARTACHE.

You have made the mistake of giving up to these men just because they were disagreable. Of course, after they found out that you would give up if they fussed enough, these tactics are employed as a matter of course. Tell them you are making plans to leave and this may change them. But I think a hearing at the Domestic Relations Court would be proper before you make your final decision.

Dear Martha Carr:

I WANT to ask you how to obtain a divorce with little or no money. My husband was sent to the penitentiary for two years. Thank you in advance, I always enjoy reading your column.

One whose memory goes back 20 years or more can almost smell the burning alcohol lamp and hear the "shush" of the air being pushed out of the rubber bulb of the old-time burnt wood equipment, when she sees the wood plaques, boxes and sundry articles with designs scorched upon them by a hot needle, now being shown. But the needle to be used in pursuing this revived pastime is conveniently wired for use with electricity. The pictures of Gibson girls or Dutch children in wooden shoes once seen in the patterns traced upon the wood have given place to more modernistic motifs.

Proper Feelings

Dear Mrs. Post:

A VERY dear friend of mine has a daughter 17 years my junior, who insists on calling me by my first name. I resent this obvious lack of respect for me, and I am surprised that the girl's mother does not check the habit because I have always known her to be instinctively aware of what displeases others. Is there anything I can say to the daughter or must I drag the mother into the situation? If I take no notice I am afraid other young people will follow this one's lead and then it will be even more serious.

Answer: Say to her frankly that you don't want her to call you by your first name because there is too great a difference in your ages.

My dear Mrs. Post: May a daughter-in-law wear a mourning veil at the funeral of her mother-in-law? And second mourning for awhile afterwards? I don't want to appear to others to be unnecessarily grief stricken, which will be misinterpreted as "effect," but I do mind the passing of my husband's mother deeply; he was as dear to me as an own mother and why shouldn't I consecrate her memory with the same respect that I would show a real mother?

Answer: By all means wear mourning for her; in fact, you would seem lacking in respect—let alone feeling—if you did not.

Dear Mrs. Post: The president of our company goes to the same church that I do and on occasion our clergyman stops in to see him and usually has to wait a few minutes in the outside office, where I sit at a desk in full view of the "waiting bench for visitors." Our clergyman never misses walking over to talk with me and I am always at a loss to know whether I should stand to shake hands with him because he is older and in respect for his position. I would stand under other circumstances, of course, but I am not sure that I ought to stand in the office.

Answer: If you are busy typewriting or telephoning, you could not rise. If you were at the moment free, you would most probably stand while shaking hands, as a mark of respect.

A MODERN NEW SERIAL

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE.

BREAKFAST was over and Linda and Doctor Barry were in the small den off the living room, which was Rolfe Barry's favorite chess refuge. Her father had gone to his office, and Faith Barry was in the kitchen.

"Well?" The girl settled herself in the chair that was her father's special pride, and picked up one of the ivory castles still in position on the chess board in front of her.

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

LINDA BARRY is very much in love with DICK LAWTON when they go to Moon lake for a month to carry out the "experiment" suggested by her UNCLE JIM. Dr. Barry sends along MRS. ABBOT as chaperon while Linda cooks and keeps house for her fiance. Linda can hardly believe that this selfish, domineering person is the same Dick with whom she had been dancing rapturously for two months, but she meekly swallows her pride and makes apologies for the misunderstandings which become increasingly frequent.

The worst insult to her pride is Dick's pleasure in the company of his former wife, NATALIE, who is vacationing nearby. But Dick is absolutely opposed to Linda's friendship with DR. KIM RALEIGH, working in Dr. Barry's laboratory cottage. One day Dick tells Linda he is going fishing, then later telephones that he drove Natalie to town instead. Furious, Linda immediately packs her bag and asks Kim to drive her to the train.

Kim, deeply in love with her, asks her to marry him when he learns that she is through with Dick. Linda consents, and they are married before traintime. Kim sends her on home, to be met by her bewildered parents and Uncle Jim.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"You don't love him." The statement was positive, and Linda looked at him alarmed. Her uncle's uncanny habit of reading her thoughts, as usual.

"No, I'm not in love with him," she said softly, rubbing the castle between her fingers.

"Yes, I did."

"Spite?"

"No—I was afraid"——

"Afraid you'd go back to Dick when you didn't want to go, when you found out that Dick wasn't the man for you." Another positive statement. "I didn't sleep all last night thinking about you and Kim, dear. Worrying about you."

"There's no need to worry, Uncle Jim. I'll learn to love Kim and everything will be all right. He's—he's very fine."

"Of course he's fine! He's one of the finest men I've ever known, besides being one of the finest surgeons. That's what I'm afraid of, Linda. Kim isn't like the ordinary man. He's too sensitive to be ordinary.

"I don't believe he's known many women. He's idealistic, bound to be, because of his inexperience with women. He's put you on a pedestal miles above him, Linda. So far above him that he can hardly see you"——

LINDA nodded. That was exactly what Kim had done. Now, if she could only try to come up to his ideal!

"I'm afraid for him, Linda, if you hurt him. Afraid for his future. He might go all to smash if you did something to him—that would hurt him. You don't know him well enough yet to know that, but I do.

"He was a stripling out of Johns Hopkins when he first came to St. Vincent's Hospital, and I've watched him like a hawk ever since. I've talked to him, I know him. Eight years ago he came, and when he handled his surgeon's tools the first time before me, three days after he came to the hospital, I knew what lay before him. The most glorious future a surgeon can have—for he's a genius, my dear, at the operating table.

"Already he's passed everybody in the hospital. It's only youth that is holding him back. Patients are queer mortals. They insist the doctor who cuts them open shall be gray and mature. I wanted to talk to you about Kim because I like and admire him so much I wish I had a hundredth of his genius."

"I'm going to try my best, Uncle Jim—"

"I want you to try more than your best, Linda. I want you to put every ounce of your being into trying to love him. He's worth it, his future is worth it.

"I didn't dream when I sent you up there that he'd fall in love with you. I didn't dream that you'd see him at all, for I knew that he didn't like women, and I thought that he wouldn't show his face to you all the time you were there.

"When I began to get Mrs. Abbot's letters about his talking to you, I was amazed. I thought I had got him all wrong. When his telegram came yesterday, I didn't know what to think. Kim's love, Linda, isn't anything to be cast lightly aside. It's something to be treasured."

'I'm going to try," she said again.

"I was angry when I got his telegram, not at him but at you, angry at you for doing such a thing to him, because I knew instinctively what you had done. Mrs. Abbot has turned out to be an excellent sleuth, and I was aware 10 days ago that my experiment at the lodge wasn't turning out so well, or maybe that it was turning out too well."

"Too well. Perhaps if Natalie Lawton hadn't been there—" she murmured.

"No, it would have been the same. Dick apparently doesn't wear well under the strain of domesticity. Some men don't. Natalie Lawton would have come into your life sooner or later—. That was inevitable. She might have come later when you and Dick were married. It's just as well she came before, so you could see what she was like.

"From Mrs. Abbot's letters, I imagine her to be a disagreeable woman. She cast Dick off once and then when she saw he was about to take another wife, couldn't bear to let him go. That was what she was showing you, Linda, her power over Dick."

"I SEE that now only too clearly. At first " thought it was only because I was jealous. I was jealous, of course, but she was playing with Dick deliberately to make me more and more jealous. I'm glad I found out in time."

"You still love, Dick." Dr. Barry's third positive statement.

"Yes, I do—but I think I can get over it pretty quickly. In my heart I don't admire him. I'm constantly criticising him to myself, so I'll get over him."

"I hope so, Linda, for Kim's sake. Does Kim know you love Dick?"

"Of course!"

"And he's willing to wait until you love him?"

"He is."

"You've a great responsibility on your shoulders, child, more than I'd like to undertake if I were you. A hard course to steer. The best thing to do, if you'll take some advice from a seasoned old doctor, is not to see Dick again."

"Shan't. Don't worry."

"Well, that's all. I only wanted to warn you not to hurt Kim. I've got to run along to the office." He pulled out his watch, and went to say goodby to his sister-in-law.

Linda later instructed her mother. "If Dick calls—you know his voice—you're to tell him I'm not at home. I'm not going to answer the phone at all when I'm in the house, so I'll be safe that way."

"Linda, that's wrong. You owe an explanation to Dick, regardless of how you feel about him. He's entitled to it."

The girl shook her head vehemently. "I'm not going to talk to him, and I'm not going to see him. That's final. I want to forget him, mother, don't you see?"

"Then if you want to forget him, you must love him a little. Do you?"

"No——" she lied, to save explanations.

At 9 o'clock that night the doorbell rang, and Linda ran upstairs because she had recognized Dick's car from the front window. Mrs. Barry answered the bell and 10 minutes later came up into her daughter's bedroom.

"Dick's down in the living room, dear, and you have to see him. I insist on it. I tried to tell him you didn't want to see him, but he walked right in and said he'd wait until you came down if he had to wait all night. He's capable of it, from the looks of him."

"You must, dear. You must be fair to him. It's only right. Get yourself together, and go downstairs."

"MOTHER," she whispered desperately, "I tell you I can't!"

"Linda, I ask of you so little to what other mothers ask of their daughters. And I'm asking you to go down and see Dick Lawton and explain to him why you didn't marry him. I'm just old-fashioned enough to feel that you must do that.

"I can't have him coming to the house all the time. That's what he'll do, pester us to death until he sees you. If you get this explanation over tonight you'll have it over for always."

"I can't!"

"You must. You must get this over tonight. And you'd better put some rouge on your cheeks, and some lipstick on your lips. You look like a ghost." Faith Barry moved to the door. Her short stature seemed to take on majestic height as Linda watched her.

"Don't be a coward, Linda."

Coward—that was what her mother thought she was. But it wasn't only cowardice that made her dread going down to Dick, although she was afraid, too. It was the uncertainty within herself that made her hesitate. She wasn't strong enough to face Dick yet, and face him bravely. She still loved him too much.

With a supreme effort Linda stumbled to her feet and went to her dressing table. If she could only pull herself together—go down there calmly, meet his eyes firmly . . .

Her face was a white, weaving blur in the mirror. Mechanically she picked up a powder puff.

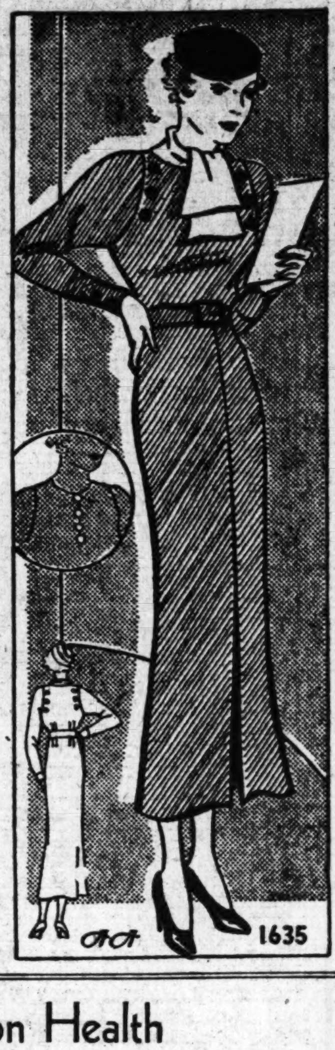
Today's Pattern

Tailored Simplicity



THE new tailored mode adopts simplicity in a delightful way. That's why this frock is such an overwhelming success! Nothing could be more youthful nor more effective than the close-to-the-throat collar, the interesting sleeve line with fullness achieved through a slightly lower arm hole, and the center seam with snappy pleat to animate the skirt. The small sketch shows the collar omitted. We'd recommend a sheer wool, mossy crepe, faille or bengaline—and the frock would be smartly correct for all occasions.

Pattern 1635 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes two and one-half yards 54-inch fabric and seven-eighth yard 39-inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

A Talk on Health

Preventing Colds

THE common cold, despite its prevalence and its hoary age, is still a good deal of a mystery, and what we know about the specific ways of preventing it amounts to very, very little.

However, in medical science, as in many other spheres, we are at times compelled to accept a crumb where even half a loaf cannot be had.

Fortunately there are a few worthwhile crumbs to be picked up in our search for ways to fight the common cold.

The first crumb, and perhaps the most important, is diet. It has been demonstrated fairly well that the diet which is well balanced, that is, which is made up of a variety of foods and which contains an abundance of vitamins, and particularly a sufficiency of vitamin A, favors resistance to infection.

A number of American and English research workers have shown that when the diet is deficient in vitamin A, the lining membranes of the respiratory and digestive tracts undergo degeneration and in consequence become permeable to bacteria.

It is possible that because of defective diet certain individuals are particualrly susceptible to colds. There is no risk involved in acting on the hypothesis that an improved diet may help one to escape colds.

Crumb number two deals with infection. Though we do not as yet know definitely what causes the common cold or whether the different germs associated with it are responsible, we do know from common experience that one "catches cold." Therefore, it is a practical and wise policy to avoid too close contact with those who have colds.

A good precaution in this direction is to wash one's hands thoroughly in hot water and with soap before eating. It is quite probable that much contagious material is carried by soiled hands. Soiled here means not dirty, but bacterially infected.

The third crumb concerns adequate dress, and here keeping the feet dry and the extremities warm is of special importance.

Chemistry and Health

GREAT and fundamental strides have been made in recent years in determining more clearly the relation of chemistry to health.

Diet is undeniably the sphere in which greatest progress has been registered in recent years in medicine, and here chemistry plays an important role.

The discovery of vitamins, their chemical analysis and reproduction, have given us a deeper insight into human physiology and the nature of abnormal and disease conditions.

These studies have led us far afield and from the study of diets and vitamins we have been led into the field of hormones and to such remote and apparently unrelated subjects as the sexual cycle and cancer.

In hormones and vitamins, therefore, we have two very important groups of chemical substances, one of which is produced in the human body and the other by outside living things.

It appears, however, that the body can also in a measure produce its own vitamins out of crude substances.

Thus, we know that under the stimulus of sunlight, the body can make what is a substitute for, if not identical with, vitamin D. We also know that the yellow-colored material found in so many fruits and vegetables, notably in carrots, when taken into the body can be converted into vitamin A.

Fascinating and highly promising is the analysis of the chemical structure of both hormones and vitamins. These analyses lead us into the mystery of the effects of these substances and may give us the means wherewith to solve some of the puzzling problems of modern-day medicine, including perhaps that of cancer.

Climate and Health

WE do not as yet understand fully just how climate affects health, but both experience and reason point to an intimate relationship between the two.

And it stands to reason that since the life and well-being of all animal and vegetable organism are affected by temperature and season and shelter, man, too, must be subject to such influences.

Perhaps one reason there has been so much confusion and so much disagreement on this subject is that we have searched for universal principles, applicable to all humans under all conditions, when as a matter of fact, there are only relative principles, applicable under particular circumstances.

Consider, for example, the matter of exposure in winter time. There is a saying in England that "It is the hard gray winter that makes hard British men." There are some robust individuals who not only can stand severe cold, but even seem to thrive on it.

But there are other humans in contrast, to whom a 10-degree drop in temperature is an invitation to cold and bronchitis.

In recent years the influence of climate on health has been subjected to close inspection. One of the outstanding conclusions drawn from these studies is that different human beings react differently to cold, wet and wind, and that a substantial number of humans must use every means at their command to protect themselves against the rigors of winter climate.

In Holland it has been demonstrated that a sharp fall in temperature always increases head colds. In Germany it was found that with atmospheric disturbances there comes an increase of infectious diseases.

The conclusion is that unless one belongs to that heroic group of humans who are relatively insensible to cold and who can brave it without suffering, it is wisest to protect oneself against cold, wet and wind by adequate clothing and adequate shelter.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

You See What You Want to See.

FOR 50 years I've been looking around—and what have I seen? I'VE SEEN WHAT I WANTED TO SEE.

ELSIE ROBINSON

I've seen hate and malice, viciousness and vulgarity. I've seen constant evidence that we humans are the meanest and weakest of beasts—that there is no real honor; no justice — that love is just the purring of our own ego.

I've seen the hopelessness of our fate—the futility of our struggle—the "proof" that the dice are loaded against us from the start—that life's a mockery and death is the end of everything.

For 50 years, looking around, going hither and yon—I've seen that. Yet, at the same time——

I've seen miracles of tenderness—gallant courage—noble sacrifice—men striding like gods above the mud of their own misery—women riding like triumphant Valkyries above the darkness of their own confusion.

And above those tender, triumphant men and women I have seen God, holding His world in His great hand—waiting, with endless patience, for that little spark of Himself which He placed in every human heart to smolder and spread and finally break into clean, courageous flame.

Fifty years looking around. Seeing heaven. Seeing hell. And here's the strange part of it—SEEING THEM IN THE SAME PLACE—IN THE SAME PEOPLE.

For I didn't have to pick my spots, or my persons, to make these amazing discoveries. While I stayed in the same spot, worked, day after day, with the same persons, these revelations came to me. Meaning what?

MEANING OF COURSE THAT IT WAS ALL IN MY OWN EYE. I SAW WHAT I WANTED TO SEE. I FOUND WHAT I LOOKED FOR.

When I wanted to see squalor and despair, there they were, mountain high, midnight black, all about me. But when I wanted to see the stars, there they were, shining endlessly. It was all up to me. I could see what I chose to see.

AND SO CAN YOU!

"But that's idiotic!" you say. Nobody chooses to find misery. It's thrust upon us."

You're right. None of us WANTS to find misery—CONSCIOUSLY We don't CONSCIOUSLY say, "I want to find proofs, today, that there's nothing decent in the world—that there's no use hoping or fighting—that it's all a wretched mockery, and the sooner we die, the better."

None of us CONSCIOUSLY says that — but we say it UNCONSCIOUSLY. For always there is fear in us. And fear is always snooping, sneering, squirming, hating—and whispering.

Day and night, fear whispering in our hearts, "Don't take a chance! Don't trust! Don't hope! Don't dare to love! See all the cruelty, the dishonesty, the selfishness around you. See the fate of those who've been foolish enough to believe—silly enough to be generous! Can't you see for yourself that kindness doesn't pay—that everybody's out for himself?"

Day and night fear chilling our hearts, darkening our eyes—making us UNCONSCIOUSLY look for mean excuses, squalid evidence.

But always, side by side with savage fear, that greater, braver thing we call SOUL urging us on, lifting us up—pointing to the stars. Not fully grown yet, that SOUL. Not yet able to altogether conquer fear. But strong enough to defy it, throttle it at times, sweep away the darkness and show TRUTH and BEAUTY shining clear and tall.

So we go along we see what we want to see—what the dominant thing inside us wants to see. In the same places—the same people—we see what we want to see; beauty or ugliness, hope or despair. With the clouded bitter eyes of FEAR, or the clear, exultant eyes of the SOUL, we see our world, our fellow man—and GOD.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W.: That Frances Williams report about regretting her recent sudden wedding to Miguel De Sousa was the result of a fierce fight between the two at a party in Hollywood Saturday night. The gendarmes were called but they turned the groom loose, and the Hollywood papers muffed the story. . . . Frances will have the shackles melted as soon as possible. It was "one of those mistakes," both believing the other had too much money. . . . You didn't know it—but at the opening of "All Good Americans" you were surrounded by the bodyguard—of Tommy Manville Jr. He goes everywhere that Tommy goes. He phoned a girl to break a date, and was saying: "I'm home and I can't talk loud or long, I'm afraid I'll wake my mother and sister." . . . At this point the phone operator interrupted and said: "Five cents, please, for another five minutes," so now the girl is going to kill him.

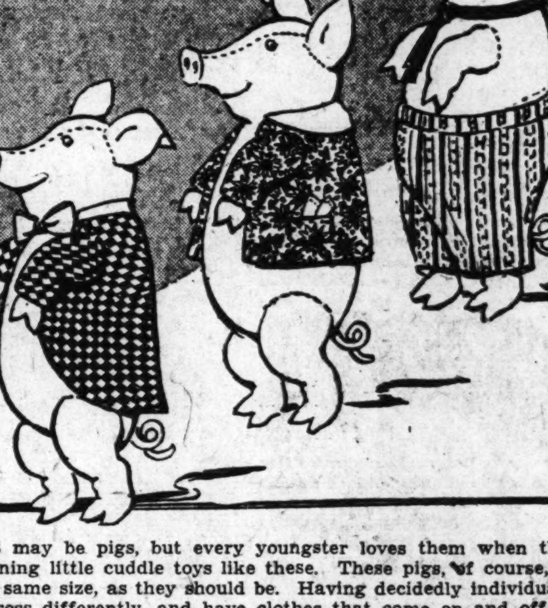
Three Little Pigs in Cloth



PIGS may be pigs, but every youngster loves them when they are cunning little cuddle toys like these. These pigs, of course, are all the same size, as they should be. Having decidedly individual taste, they dress differently, and have clothes that come on and off. Their arms are floppy, which makes them lively little pigs, and easy to dress. They are simple to make, and measure about 10 inches in height.

Pattern 582 comes to you with the pattern for a pig and for the three different costumes shown; detailed directions for making the pig and the clothes, and yardages are given.

Send 10c for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

AN EXTRAORDINARY FEAT OF MEMORY—The historian Thomas Babington, Baron Macaulay was a voracious reader in his boyhood and his power of memory was extraordinary. Forty years after reading two poems in the "poet's corner" of his country newspaper in 1813, he repeated the poems perfectly from memory. All during the forty-year interval, he had never recalled the poems even once, yet his recitation was as perfect as though he had memorized them only the day before.

The Legior boys enjoyed a squirrel supper at Memorial Hall, Monday evening. About 80 were present. It was a fine supper, and for entertainment the boys had Harold Inglish bring his night club troupe up from Joplin. Among other acts on the program was a fan dance. It is claimed this fan dancer used a very narrow fan. A few of the guests of the older generation hastily gathered their things and left when the fan dancer came on the stage.

FRISBY REPORTS

WASHINGTON — Congressman Horace Frisby arrived here today after a hitch-hike through the Middle West to make a first-hand study of conditions.

"I found," declared Frisby, in a preliminary verbal report made to a prominent waitress, "that all over the land, the ladies of the W. C. T. U. look with disfavor on those who voted to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. I also discovered that there is a widespread sentiment in favor of speedy recovery from the depression. In Iowa, I held informal hearings for farmers' wives, and cheered these brave little women by promising to send each and every one of them a government pamphlet on china painting, and how to make a lace curtain stretcher with hammer and saw. My meetings were so crowded that I had to limit attendance to those who brought a jar of fried chicken. I was surprised to discover how many of these people, even in this day and age, have never even heard the story of the farmer's daughter and the traveling salesman."

1. —Just the opposite. Prof. Knight Dunlap, eminent psychologist of Johns Hopkins, discusses this brilliantly in his book, "Social Psychology." He says, "In the manifold situations in which emotional sympathy between man and woman is essential, the man must adapt himself to the emotional moods of the woman. He must be ready to be gay when she is gay, serious when she is serious, tender and comforting when she is sorrowful, aloof and detached when she is aloof. Such adaptations as he wishes her to make to his moods, must be brought about carefully, by an obvious and not too sudden display of his moods, and by such justification of them as will appeal to her general devotion and affection, and her other interests." I shall quote again soon from this excellent and sane discussion of love and marriage.

2. —Certainly, because the average age has increased from about thirty years to not far from fifty. Millions of people who formerly died all the way from infancy up to the twenties and thirties, are now kept living up into the forties, fifties and sixties. Statisticians have shown that taking care of old people is going to be an increasing burden on both the Government and the younger people as time goes on.

3. —No, the aim of science is to find out how nature works and what actually happens. The question why is one that grows up in our own psychology because we are beings endowed with curiosity. These are problems for the philosophers to wrestle with. Science tries to find out how the universe works, but philosophy tries to find out why it is significant, why it means anything to us whether it works this way or that.

Orange Creams

(Delicately Flavored Crisp Cookies)

One cup butter.
Two cups sugar.
Two tablespoons cream.
Four tablespoons orange pulp.
Three eggs.
Two tablespoons grated orange rind.
One tablespoon grated lemon rind.
One-half teaspoon lemon extract.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Four cups flour.
One teaspoon cream of tartar.

Cream butter and sugar. Add cream, orange pulp and eggs. Beat well. Add rest of ingredients, mixing lightly. Chill dough five hours or longer. Break off bits of dough, flatten down three inches apart on greased baking sheets. Bake 10 minutes in moderate oven.

Broiled Canned Peaches

These are delicious used as garnishings for the chop platter. Drain halves of peaches from their juice, place in a shallow baking pan with hollowed side up. Fill each hollow with a dab of butter and sprinkle each peach very lightly with salt. Broil under the oven flame until the peaches are a light brown. Serve at once.

Don't Improve Upon It

When you have made a successful cake or pudding, don't try to change it in any way or make it carelessly without the recipe. Use the same recipe, measure accurately and use the same brands of ingredients and then the dish cannot go wrong.

Homesickness

MRS. JONES was a devoted mother and spent a large part of her time with her children.

She was always there to tuck them in bed at night, and seldom left home lest they feel lonely in her absence. When she did go out, the tears and wails with which the children celebrated her departure made her so wretched that her whole trip would be spoiled by the memory of them.

In time, however, the children themselves had to leave home to go to school and college, or to pay visits to friends. But the pattern of their early life stayed with them, and their suffering at the inevitable separations was so acute and deep that it shadowed their school period.

One of the most wretched experience of childhood, and one which is seldom taken seriously enough is homesickness. The agony is very real, often real enough to affect a child's health, for the child who is enduring it often cannot eat or sleep and takes no pleasure in anything.

It is easier to prevent than cure, for if it has been allowed to develop in a child, it is almost impossible to overcome until the child is old enough to help in effecting the cure. The mother who has her child's future welfare at heart will forego the subtle flattery of being too necessary to her children.

If she is wise she will not let them interfere with her normal social life any more than possible; she will accustom them to being occasionally looked after by others, and will not allow them to become in any way dependent on her presence.

As they grow older she may send them on an occasional visit of a few days to some friend or relation and so further loosen the tie and prepare the child for a normal and independent life.

HOUSE DRIVE FOR SENATE ACTION ON PARK BILLS

Group Threatens to Hold Up Liquor Bill or Delay Its Effectiveness for 90 Days, to Force Measures to Floor.

UNDERCOVER MOVE TO GET 51 VOTES

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 15.—It became known today that there is being secretly organized in the House a group which, if enough members are enlisted, will be pledged to vote against any liquor control bill and against adoption of an emergency clause to it unless the Senate committees let the important public works bill and revenue-for-relief measures reach the floor.

If 51 Representatives can be brought into the organization, the emergency clause on the liquor bill can be defeated, in which case there would be no liquor law for the State until 90 days after the adjournment of this special session of the Legislature, which would put the time not earlier than the latter part of March.

This move results from the refusal of Senate Committees to report to the Senate the Governor's 1 per cent sales tax bill and his bills to permit smaller municipalities of the State to build municipal utility plants through the issuance of revenue bonds.

Because of the secrecy with which the movement is being carried out, it was impossible today to identify definitely those who are promoting it, but several Representatives said they had been approached and had agreed to join in case the required number was obtained. They would not consent to be quoted by name while any doubt of the success of the movement existed.

States Case for the House.

"The House passed the sales tax bill which is required to meet the unemployment relief demands," one of them said, "and the Senate Committee on Ways and Means is arrogantly holding the bill, refusing to permit it to go to the floor of the Senate for a vote. A bare majority of that committee, seven or eight Senators, are assuming the power of legislation for the entire Senate.

"The House passed a bill to authorize smaller municipalities to build electric, gas, water and sewer plants through the issuance of revenue bonds. The Senate Municipal Corporation Committee is refusing to permit the Senate to vote on that bill, which has been opposed here by a powerful public utility lobby.

"There are many members of the House who feel that unemployment relief should come ahead of thirst relief, members who would vote for almost any kind of a liquor bill, knowing that whatever is adopted will be changed at the regular session of the Legislature only a year away, if these Senate committees would report these bills.

On Probable Criticism.

"It may sound a little like blackmail and probably it will subject us to some criticism, but most of us come from counties which are dry and which are opposed to any liquor sales. However, we feel that the criticism would better be leveled against that small group of Senators who, by their actions, are refusing funds to feed and clothe the destitute unemployed, and who are choosing to take the side of the public utilities instead of the side of the people. They are all particularly anxious to get a liquor law in effect.

"We are not certain that 51 Representatives will agree to the plan, but if they do, the Senators on these committees will have to choose between postponing the effective date of a liquor bill and getting on the side of the people on these revenue and utility bills."

From almost the beginning of the legislative session two months ago, the Municipal Corporations Committee has been toying with four utility bills and refusing to report them to the Senate. Two weeks ago it received from the House a bill introduced by Representative Weakley of Pike County, in which was incorporated all the provisions of the four Senate bills. A week ago
